Fountain Accuses Cop, He Denies All Charges

Detailed charges against the ex-police chief and town marshal of Fountain, William E. Soltwedel, were released Friday by the town's board of trustees and a new date was set for a public hearing on the allegations.

Soltwedel, who asked for a public hearing before the board when he was discharged Dec. 22, had asked that the general charges issued at that time be clarified with exact times, dates and other pertinent details. The hearing, originally set for Monday night, has been postponed by the council until 7:30 p.m. Jan. 21. It will be in the municipal building in Fountain.

Charges as amended are summarized below. Soltwedel's reactions on first hearing the detailed allegations are in parentheses. The charges are that Soltwedel allegedly:

Was seen walking away from the East Side Elementary School and, on being stopped by another police officer, reported he had found a door of the building open and had entered, heard the noise of another person inside and had left to call for help. ("I didn't leave the building. I checked it and found a door open in the rear. The other police officer knew I was checking the building. I went through the building when I thought I heard someone else in there but I didn't find anyone.")

On either Dec. 9 or 19 at about 2:50 a.m. had a deputy on duty who apparently observed a burglary occurring at the same school, heard a door in the rear of the school slam, and did not drive or go to the rear of the school to identify or arrest the suspected criminal but sat in the patrol car and called for help on the police radio while the suspect escaped. ("The officer went around the building on foot and didn't see anyone. Two typewriters were taken but we recovered them a few days later in a field.")

Failed to properly recruit, train and supervise the police officers by permitting one officer to work in his own restaurant during hours when he supposedly was on duty as a police officer and by permitting other officers to spend time loafing at a local cafe leaving the only police car of the town parked in front of this cafe for several hours. When It Rains, It Pours There

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — The 250 residents of nearby Orleans made what they felt was a wise move before the Klamath River flooded their town.

They moved all their valuables to the public school on high ground.

An electrical short started a fire. It wiped out the school and all the possessions.

"But the townspeople are in good spirits," said Neil Hulbert, Humboldt Times photographer, after a helicopter visit there Thursday.

Catholic Says Church Opposes Birth Control

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson's vow to do something about the world "population explosion" drew fire Friday from an influential Roman Catholic.

He said the church still condemns contraception, with or without government support, as a serious evil.

Msgr. John C. Knott, director of the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said in a statement that his church, as before, opposes use of any public funds to promote artificial birth control here or abroad.

In his State of the Union message Monday, the President's carefully worded statement made no mention of specific birth prevention methods. He promised only to "seek new ways to use our knowledge to help deal with the explosion in world population and the growing scarcity in world resources."

See Strongest Declaration

In those words, some have seen the strongest public declaration yet by any American president of federal responsibility for curbing the population boom. Johnson's aides said it was designed to produce constructive suggestions for government action.

But Msgr. Knott, like former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1959, argued Friday that

Man Stabbed As Two Youths Are Subdued

An employe of a Sears store in the Southgate Shopping Center was stabbed in the arm Friday while he was attempting to subdue a juvenile armed with a butcher's knift, the sheriff's office reported.

Dale Peterson, employed at Sears, was taken to Penrose Hospital and treated for a cut on his arm. According to the sheriff's office, Peterson was to be released Friday night.

The incident occurred when two juveniles, aged 14 and 15, came into the Sears store at approximately 7:40 p.m. Friday and attempted to get the manager of the sporting goods department, Fred Taylor, to open a gun cabinet for them. When Taylor refused, the two left and went into the men's clothing department of the store with several employes following them.

According to Deputies Bob Snuggs and Jim Lewis, one of the juveniles was trapped in an aisle of the department by the employes, and a coat was flung over his head. The juvenile then pulled a butcher's knife and began lashing out with it, and it was during this lashing out that he inflicted the cut on Peterson's arm.

The two boys were apprehended and taken to the sheriff's office by Snuggs and Lewis, where it was learned that they were running away from home.

According to the sheriff's office, the 15-year-old youth was the knife-wielder, and was being held at the Zebulon Pike Center. The 14-year-old youth recently underwent brain surgery, and was released to the custody of his parents.

Change Foreseen In Gold Behind U.S. Dollars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury gave notice Friday that "sooner or later" there will have to be a change in the requirement that U.S. money be backed by gold.

A change in the gold "cover" requirement at home will be needed in order to free up enough gold for the government to go on supporting the dollar abroad as the mainstay of world trade, a Treasury statement said. Only Congress can reduce or eliminate the gold cover.

The Treasury said that neither the form nor timing of the administration's request to Congress has been "finally determined."

But officials agreed it would be better for Congress to act now rather than later when the amount of gold available for foreign exchange operations has shrunk to zero.

The gold cover requirement

Love Asks Tax Increase On Sales, Cigarettes

By GORDON G. GAUSS
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Democrats characterized tax recommendations of Gov. John A. Love in his message of Friday as a $38 million tax increase then held a strategy session to begin detailed consideration of the Republican chief executive's proposals.

Love outlined his views in a 45-minute address at a joint session of the legislature shortly before noon. He called for an increase in the state sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent and a boost in the cigarette tax from 3 cents a package to 5 cents. Love promised to use all of the money from the sales tax jump to replace property taxes levied by schools in local communities.

He said the entire cigarette tax would be used to finance construction at colleges and institutions.

Lt. Gov. Robert L. Knous, a Democrat, commented that "A $38 million tax increase this year, on top of the $13 million tax increase last year indicates a rather startling shift of position on the part of the Republican governor.

"While the reduction of local property taxes is commendable," Knous said, "this action

Institutions Get More in Love's Budget

DENVER (AP) — Appropriations for operating state institutions would increase more than $3.2 million next fiscal year if the legislature approves requests submitted to it today by Gov. John A. Love.

The governor requested $38,996,433 for institutions operations, including $37,872,998 from the general fund. The amounts compared with $35,770,850 and $34,603,100 appropriated for this

No Eating In Assembly

DENVER (AP) — There will be no munching during sessions of the House of this year's Colorado General Assembly.

Speaker Allen Dines, D-Denver, decided eating during the session was distracting. Legislators receive numerous foods from constituents.

Rep. Charles R. Conklin, D-Delta, announced a gift of a basket of apples from Mesa County growers. He said they would be available to pick up at the door during recess.

CU Would Get Largest Share Of School Money

DENVER (AP)—The University of Colorado would receive the largest share of $42,154,065 recommended by Gov. John A. Love for operating state colleges and universities during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The largest increase, however, would go to fast-growing Colorado State University at Fort Collins.

The University of Colorado recommendations for operation total $34,007,842 and those for CSU total $16,945,073.

Love recommended $1,133,430 for putting the proposed Metropolitan State College at Denver into operation but did not ask any capital construction money for the school.

A summary of the governor's recommendations:

University of Colorado—$34,007,842 for operations, including $20,056,341 from the general fund and $13,951,501 from special funds. This compares with $31,153,601 total for the current year, including $17,809,221 from the general fund,

Of the operating money $20,177,695 would be for the campus at Boulder and the extension centers, including $11,704,940 from the general fund, a 13.4 per cent increase. The remainder would cover operations of the School of Medicine, School of Nursing, Colorado General Hospital, Colorado Psychopathic Hospital, Children's Diagnostic center and $100,709 for dentistry training available through the Western Interstate

Alcoholic Beverage Consumption Is Up

DENVER (UPI) — Secretary of State Byron (Andy) Anderson said Friday consumption of alcoholic beverages hit a record high of 33.1 million gallons in 1964.

This compared with 31.8 million gallons in 1963.

Anderson's report showed 28.3 million gallons of beer were consumed in the state last year, 1.7 million gallons of wine and 3.1 million gallons of liquor.

Indonesians Stage Raid, Five Captured

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — Indonesian guerrillas landed 15 miles south of Singapore Island Friday. Malaysian security forces quickly captured five of the 14-man raiding party.

It was the fourth infiltration attempt in the past month. The guerrillas told Malaysian captors a 1,000-man landing force was prepared to follow them.

Malaysian Foreign Ministry spokesman Ahmad Nordin said this British Commonwealth nation can expect stepped-up attacks from Indonesia as a result of its withdrawal from the United Nations.

"Already there has been evidence of a massive buildup of Indonesia's armed forces along the Sarawak border," he said. Sarawak is one of Malaysia's two Borneo states. It shares the island with Indonesia.

Nordin said he believes Indonesia's quitting the United Nations was a pre-conceived plan arranged with Communist China.

The Indonesian guerrillas Friday captured two Malaysian fishermen and held them for five hours. The fishermen reported the Indonesians described themselves as the advance party for a 1000-man force of infiltrators.

Indonesian President Sukarno charges that Malaysia is a new form of British colonialism. He has vowed to crush the federation.

Liz, Sporting Shiner, May Cease To Be U.S. Citizen

WASHINGTON (UPI) Actress Elizabeth Taylor, British-born, sporting a black eye, is trying to renounce her American citizenship, a move that could give her a substantial tax break on her big film earnings abroad, it was learned Friday.

Miss Taylor turned up Friday in London sporting a black eye and silent on reports she is attempting to renounce her U.S. citizenship.

While Paris reports said the actress, 32, had planned to adopt British nationality, a Home Office official in London said there was no record to show she ever had lost it.

She appeared outside the hotel with a bandaged eye. A hotel spokesman said she had been in a toboggan accident and "she has quite a shiner."

Red Chinese Flying New Migs Over North Viet Nam

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, January 8 -- Red Chinese-piloted Mig-21 jet fighters are now flying patrols over the Gulf of Tonkin and North Viet Nam.

That is the latest foreboding development since the sudden appearance of sizable fights of these latest model Russian-type combat planes in this war-racked area several weeks ago.

None of the speedy and powerfully-armed Mig-21s have yet been sighted over Communist-imperiled South Viet Nam or adjoining Laos.

As reported to Washington authorities by U. S. Air and Naval forces, the patroling Migs are based on Hainan Island, in the Gulf of Tonkin off the southern tip of Red China and opposite the center of North Viet Nam's long coastline.

Usual route of the Red Chinese patrols is as follows:

From airfields in southeastern Hainan, the Mig-21s fly west across Tonkin Gulf to Dong Hoi, on the southern coast of North Viet Nam and near the northern boundary to South Viet Nam. From there the patrols head north to Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, where they refuel. Then heading south, they again traverse Tonkin Gulf to their home bases on Hainan.

From verifications by U. S. aerial reconnaissance, including pilotless planes, intelligence estimates that Red China now has between 70 and 100 Mig-21s in this region.

In addition to those operating

All Safe in Crash Landing

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—An airliner with 12 persons aboard made a safe belly landing in the rain Friday with a jammed landing gear.

A Central Airlines twin-engine Convair 240 en route from Amarillo, Tex., to Kansas City, Mo., had been scheduled to land at Topeka, Kan.

It made one pass over the Topeka Airport, headed toward Kansas City, then was diverted to the Tulsa Airport where it landed about (1:30 p.m. EST)

The plane had one landing gear up and one down when it passed over the Tulsa Airport, then landed with the wheels up. Its nine passengers and three crewmen alighted unharmed.

Bombing Results Not Known

SAIGON (UPI)—Vietnamese troops have turned a Communist attack into a bloody rout of the rebels near the former imperial capital of Hue, government military sources reported Friday.

The victory was reported as U. S. and Vietnamese planes continued to dump flaming napalm and bombs on the jungles of Phuoc Fuy Province seeking to destroy a regiment of some 2,000 Communist troops.

The Skyraider fighter - bombers have dumped three tons of napalm and 25,000 pounds of bombs in at least 16 strikes in the jungle area some 35 miles southeast of Saigon.

The planes also strafed the area with 20 m.m. cannon. But so far there has been no report on the success of the air operation against the rebels who appear to have melted into the jungles since their withdrawal from the Binh Gia battlefield last week.

Vietnamese sources said the rout of the Communists near Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, began Thursday when about 100 Viet Cong guerrillas attacked a platoon of government militiamen in daylight.

The 30-man platoon was camped near a major highway three miles south of Hue when the Communists struck.

Shanning Gets 3-Year Term

Richard A. Shanning was sentenced to three to five years in the State Penitentiary Friday by District Judge William M. Calvert. The defendant pleaded guilty Dec. 11 to simple robbery.

He was accused of stealing $125 from the Royal Liquor Store, 333 S. Tejon St. Nov. 5. In passing sentence the judge commented that as Shanning, 21, formerly of 115 Pawnee Ave. had received a dishonorable discharge from the army he was not eligible for probation.

Duane Earl Averill, 19, Alameda, Calif. was given an indefinite sentence in the State Reformatory for the burglary of the American Electric Co. Inc. 30 W. Costilla St., Nov. 30.

Averill was first charged with burglary and conspiracy but the second count was dismissed

He said the church still condemns contraception, with or without government support, as a serious evil.

Msgr. John C. Knott, director of the Family Life Bureau of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said in a statement that his church, as before, opposes use of any public funds to promote artificial birth control here or abroad.

In his State of the Union message Monday, the President's carefully worded statement made no mention of specific birth prevention methods. He promised only to "seek new ways to use our knowledge to help deal with the explosion in world population and the growing scarcity in world resources."

See Strongest Declaration

In those words, some have seen the strongest public declaration yet by any American president of federal responsibility for curbing the population boom. Johnson's aides said it was designed to produce constructive suggestions for government action.

But Msgr. Knott, like former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1959, argued Friday that

Man Stabbed As Two Youths Are Subdued

An employe of a Sears store in the Southgate Shopping Center was stabbed in the arm Friday while he was attempting to subdue a juvenile armed with a butcher's knift, the sheriff's office reported.

Dale Peterson, employed at Sears, was taken to Penrose Hospital and treated for a cut on his arm. According to the sheriff's office, Peterson was to be released Friday night.

The incident occurred when two juveniles, aged 14 and 15, came into the Sears store at approximately 7:40 p.m. Friday and attempted to get the manager of the sporting goods department, Fred Taylor, to open a gun cabinet for them. When Taylor refused, the two left and went into the men's clothing department of the store with several employes following them.

According to Deputies Bob Snuggs and Jim Lewis, one of the juveniles was trapped in an aisle of the department by the employes, and a coat was flung over his head. The juvenile then pulled a butcher's knife and began lashing out with it, and it was during this lashing out that he inflicted the cut on Peterson's arm.

The two boys were apprehended and taken to the sheriff's office by Snuggs and Lewis, where it was learned that they were running away from home.

According to the sheriff's office, the 15-year-old youth was the knife-wielder, and was being held at the Zebulon Pike Center. The 14-year-old youth recently underwent brain surgery, and was released to the custody of his parents.

Change Foreseen In Gold Behind U.S. Dollars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury gave notice Friday that "sooner or later" there will have to be a change in the requirement that U.S. money be backed by gold.

A change in the gold "cover" requirement at home will be needed in order to free up enough gold for the government to go on supporting the dollar abroad as the mainstay of world trade, a Treasury statement said. Only Congress can reduce or eliminate the gold cover.

The Treasury said that neither the form nor timing of the administration's request to Congress has been "finally determined."

But officials agreed it would be better for Congress to act now rather than later when the amount of gold available for foreign exchange operations has shrunk to zero.

The gold cover requirement

Love Asks Tax Increase On Sales, Cigarettes

By GORDON G. GAUSS
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — Colorado Democrats characterized tax recommendations of Gov. John A. Love in his message of Friday as a $38 million tax increase then held a strategy session to begin detailed consideration of the Republican chief executive's proposals.

Love outlined his views in a 45-minute address at a joint session of the legislature shortly before noon. He called for an increase in the state sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent and a boost in the cigarette tax from 3 cents a package to 5 cents. Love promised to use all of the money from the sales tax jump to replace property taxes levied by schools in local communities.

He said the entire cigarette tax would be used to finance construction at colleges and institutions.

Lt. Gov. Robert L. Knous, a Democrat, commented that "A $38 million tax increase this year, on top of the $13 million tax increase last year indicates a rather startling shift of position on the part of the Republican governor.

"While the reduction of local property taxes is commendable," Knous said, "this action

Institutions Get More in Love's Budget

DENVER (AP) — Appropriations for operating state institutions would increase more than $3.2 million next fiscal year if the legislature approves requests submitted to it today by Gov. John A. Love.

The governor requested $38,996,433 for institutions operations, including $37,872,998 from the general fund. The amounts compared with $35,770,850 and $34,608,100 appropriated for this

No Eating In Assembly

DENVER (AP) — There will be no munching during sessions of the House of this year's Colorado General Assembly.

Speaker Allen Dines, D-Denver, decided eating during the session was distracting. Legislators receive numerous foods from constituents.

Rep. Charles R. Conklin, D-Delta, announced a gift of a basket of apples from Mesa County growers. He said they would be available to pick up at the door during recess.

CU Would Get Largest Share Of School Money

DENVER (AP)—The University of Colorado would receive the largest share of $42,154,065 recommended by Gov. John A. Love for operating state colleges and universities during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The largest increase, however, would go to fast-growing Colorado State University at Fort Collins.

The University of Colorado recommendations for operation total $34,007,842 and those for CSU total $16,945,073.

Love recommended $1,133,430 for putting the proposed Metropolitan State College at Denver into operation but did not ask any capital construction money for the school.

A summary of the governor's recommendations:

University of Colorado—$34,007,842 for operations, including $20,056,341 from the general fund and $13,951,501 from special funds. This compares with $31,153,601 total for the current year, including $17,809,221 from the general fund,

Of the operating money $20,177,695 would be for the campus at Boulder and the extension centers, including $11,704,940 from the general fund, a 13.4 per cent increase. The remainder would cover operations of the School of Medicine, School of Nursing, Colorado General Hospital, Colorado Psychopathic Hospital, Children's Diagnostic center and $100,789 for dentistry training available through the Western Interstate

Alcoholic Beverage Consumption Is Up

DENVER (UPI) — Secretary of State Byron (Andy) Anderson said Friday consumption of alcoholic beverages hit a record high of 33.1 million gallons in 1964.

This compared with 31.8 million gallons in 1963.

Anderson's report showed 28.3 million gallons of beer were consumed in the state last year, 1.7 million gallons of wine and 3.1 million gallons of liquor.

Indonesians Stage Raid, Five Captured

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI) — Indonesian guerrillas landed 15 miles south of Singapore Island Friday. Malaysian security forces quickly captured five of the 14-man raiding party.

It was the fourth infiltration attempt in the past month. The guerrillas told Malaysian captors a 1,000-man landing force was prepared to follow them.

Malaysian Foreign Ministry spokesman Ahmad Nordin said this British Commonwealth nation can expect stepped-up attacks from Indonesia as a result of its withdrawal from the United Nations.

"Already there has been evidence of a massive buildup of Indonesia's armed forces along the Sarawak border," he said. Sarawak is one of Malaysia's two Borneo states. It shares the island with Indonesia.

Nordin said he believes Indonesia's quitting the United Nations was a pre-conceived plan arranged with Communist China.

The Indonesian guerrillas Friday captured two Malaysian fishermen and held them for five hours. The fishermen reported the Indonesians described themselves as the advance party for a 1000-man force of infiltrators.

Indonesian President Sukarno charges that Malaysia is a new form of British colonialism. He has vowed to crush the federation.

Liz, Sporting Shiner, May Cease To Be U.S. Citizen

WASHINGTON (UPI) Actress Elizabeth Taylor, British-born, sporting a black eye, is trying to renounce her American citizenship, a move that could give her a substantial tax break on her big film earnings abroad, it was learned Friday.

Miss Taylor turned up Friday in London sporting a black eye and silent on reports she is attempting to renounce her U.S. citizenship.

While Paris reports said the actress, 32, had planned to adopt British nationality, a Home Office official in London said there was no record to show she ever had lost it.

She appeared outside the hotel with a bandaged eye. A hotel spokesman said she had been in a toboggan accident and "she has quite a shiner."

But the State Department said the dark-haired wife of British actor Richard Burton still holds U.S. citizenship be-

Red Chinese Flying New Migs Over North Viet Nam

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, January 8 -- Red Chinese-piloted Mig-21 jet fighters are now flying patrols over the Gulf of Tonkin and North Viet Nam.

That is the latest foreboding development since the sudden appearance of sizable fights of these latest model Russian-type combat planes in this war-racked area several weeks ago.

None of the speedy and powerfully-armed Mig-21s have yet been sighted over Communist-imperiled South Viet Nam or adjoining Laos.

As reported to Washington authorities by U. S. Air and Naval forces, the patroling Migs are based on Hainan Island, in the Gulf of Tonkin off the southern tip of Red China and opposite the center of North Viet Nam's long coastline.

Usual route of the Red Chinese patrols is as follows:

From airfields in southeastern Hainan, the Mig-21s fly west across Tonkin Gulf to Dong Hoi, on the southern coast of North Viet Nam and near the northern boundary to South Viet Nam. From there the patrols head north to Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam, where they refuel. Then heading south, they again traverse Tonkin Gulf to their home bases on Hainan.

From verifications by U. S. aerial reconnaissance, including pilotless planes, intelligence estimates that Red China now has between 70 and 100 Mig-21s in this region.

In addition to those operating

All Safe in Crash Landing

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—An airliner with 12 persons aboard made a safe belly landing in the rain Friday with a jammed landing gear.

A Central Airlines twin-engine Convair 240 en route from Amarillo, Tex., to Kansas City, Mo., had been scheduled to land at Topeka, Kan.

It made one pass over the Topeka Airport, headed toward Kansas City, then was diverted to the Tulsa Airport where it landed about (1:30 p.m. EST)

The plane had one landing gear up and one down when it passed over the Tulsa Airport, then landed with the wheels up. Its nine passengers and three crewmen alighted unharmed.

Bombing Results Not Known

SAIGON (UPI)—Vietnamese troops have turned a Communist attack into a bloody rout of the rebels near the former imperial capital of Hue, government military sources reported Friday.

The victory was reported as U. S. and Vietnamese planes continued to dump flaming napalm and bombs on the jungles of Phuoc Fuy Province seeking to destroy a regiment of some 2,000 Communist troops.

The Skyraider fighter - bombers have dumped three tons of napalm and 25,000 pounds of bombs in at least 16 strikes in the jungle area some 35 miles southeast of Saigon.

The planes also strafed the area with 20 m.m. cannon. But so far there has been no report on the success of the air operation against the rebels who appear to have melted into the jungles since their withdrawal from the Binh Gia battlefield last week.

Vietnamese sources said the rout of the Communists near Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, began Thursday when about 100 Viet Cong guerrillas attacked a platoon of government militiamen in daylight.

The 30-man platoon was camped near a major highway three miles south of Hue when the Communists struck.

Shanning Gets 3-Year Term

Richard A. Shanning was sentenced to three to five years in the State Penitentiary Friday by District Judge William M. Calvert. The defendant pleaded guilty Dec. 11 to simple robbery.

He was accused of stealing $125 from the Royal Liquor Store, 333 S. Tejon St. Nov. 5. In passing sentence the judge commented that as Shanning, 21, formerly of 115 Pawnee Ave. had received a dishonorable discharge from the army he was not eligible for probation.

Duane Earl Averill, 19, Alameda, Calif. was given an indefinite sentence in the State Reformatory for the burglary of the American Electric Co. Inc. 30 W. Costilla St., Nov. 30.

Averill was first charged with burglary and conspiracy but the second count was dismissed from Hainan Island, these latest-model Communist jet fighters have been sighted on airfields in four other locations — one in North Viet Nam, at Hanoi; the three others in China, at Nanning, Chinhai and Mengtzu, not far from North Viet Nam's border.

Largest number of these Migs, estimated aound 50, have been spotted on China's Hainan Island.

It also has been definitely established that these Migs are piloted by Red Chinese. This has been fully authenticated by recordings of messages and other conversations by the pilots.

FATEFUL UNCERTAINTY

But still very much in the dark is what happens next — particularly whether these new jet fighters portend Red China's direct intervention in the protracted South Viet Nam conflict.

Some intelligence authorities are strongly convinced of that. In support of this view, they cite the following:

Disposition of the Mig-21s and Red China's other air strength definitely indicates readiness to intervene. Regular North Viet Nam ground forces, up to regimental units, are positively known to be in South Viet Nam. In recent weeks, these North Viet Nam troops have been increasingly used in combat.

They carried the brunt of the fighting at Bingh Gia, where the South Vietnamese and U.S. advisers suffered their biggest losses to date.

In the opinion of these intelligence experts, the next likely move will be Peking's use of its jet fighters to provide the North Viet Nam regulars with air support — which the Communists have totally lacked in this struggle so far.

This dire development would immediately confront the U. S. with decisions of supremest import.

President Johnson would have to decide how far he is prepared to go to make good the ringing pronouncement in his State of the Union message Monday night of this week.

"Twice in one generation we have had to fight against aggression in the Far East. To ignore aggression would only increase the danger of a larger war. What is at stake (in South Viet Nam) is the cause of freedom. In that cause we shall never be found wanting."

WHERE'D THEY GET THEM

The jolting discovery that Red China has acquired Mig-21s has caused deep perturbation in State Department and Central Intelligence Agency quarters.

Both have policy papers asserting (1) Russia halted all military aid to Peking in 1961 when the long-smoldering ideological feud broke into the open; (2) no Mig-21s have ever been supplied the Chinese; (3) the latter's airforce has deteriorated in the last few years.

Since the appearance of Chinese-piloted Mig-21s in the inflamed Viet Nam area, debate has raged among administration policy-makers over their origin.

State Department and CIA officials are inclined to the view that these latest-model jet fighters are being produced in China. Military experts sharply question this theory. In refutation they cite the following two significant factors:

(1) There is no "firm" information or evidence that Red China has plants capable of manufacturing Mig - 21s. (2) Principal sources of the reports that these combat planes are being made in China are Hong Kong and New Delhi, where Communist agents are notoriously active.

The skeptical military officials also contend the reports of the Mig-21s' being produced in China were "leaked" by Communist sources, and so timed as to coincide with the appearance of these planes in the South Viet Nam region.

Prior to the sighting of the Mig-21s, the jet fighter strength of Red China was calculated by the CIA as between 1,750 and 2,000 planes, including approximately 100 Mig-19s. The others were Mig-17s and Mig-15s, now rated as obsolescent.

rado Springs Rookie School. They were supposed to start their training Jan. 4. They were discharged before they could begin. Second, the charge about one of my men working in his private business when he was supposed to be on duty is not true. And last, there is a liquor store next door to the cafe where we sometimes parked the police car. The man who runs that store hates to have any kind of state or town patrol car parked that close to his business. I imagine that's where they got that complaint.")

Failed to enforce the ordinances of the town, relating to dogs running loose, vehicles speeding, vehicles stopping at stop signs, vandalism and malicious mischief, disturbing the peace, curfews relating to minors and others. ("I've taken 65 dogs to the pound since June. We don't have many people running stop signs except around the railroad crossings. There they slow down but don't always come to a full stop. We try to watch for them. Also we got some complaints about cars not stopping for the school buses. The buses don't turn on their flashing red lights when they are loading on private property and cars going past don't stop. We've had some complaints and talked to the bus drivers about them but they still won't turn on their red lights.")

Failed to police, patrol and protect the park of the town from vandalism and malicious mischief, especially concerning the security of buildings. ("There are toilets in the park. We used to unlock them about 8 in the morning and lock them about 9 at night. But, somehow, a ring of keys got lost out of the patrol car. I asked the town coordinator for another key since we couldn't lock and unlock the toilet buildings without the key. He refused to have another one made. So we started leaving the toilets open. We had to. We didn't have a key to lock them up with.")

Failed to police and patrol the business district and schools of the town and, due to that failure, a recent burglary of the hardware store was not reported because, in the owner's opinion, it would have done no good ("We have gotten hit on two schools and we have been on the spot almost, that shows you that we have been patrolling the town. I had an idea who was responsible for the burglaries and I turned the information over to the new police chief. As for the hardware store, I found out that the fellow who did that had come in and paid for the guns that were taken and that the store owner did not report it because of that.")

Failed, except occasionally and for only a few minutes, to attend council meetings or render adequate reports as ordered and requested by the board. ("The board asked me to start attending meetings about the first of October. I was gone to a school one time but I have been at every single meeting since then. I stayed until they were through discussing police business, then I asked to be excused. Police Commissioner Dan Kelling always excused me when they didn't need me anymore. They asked me for a report on this school on burglary and safe cracking and I sent them a letter about i'. About the first of November I had a meeting with Police Commissioner Dan Kelling and he told me things were running smoothly. He said there wasn't any complaints that he knew anything about.")

Unlawfully and improperly permitted your deputy Billie Miller to use the police car for his own private use. ("Miller was taking the car when he went home for lunch. When I found out, I talked to him about it. Then I told Kelling and said I thought we ought to ask for Miller's resignation. He said not to and that he would talk to Miller about it. Miller hasn't taken the car home anymore since I talked to him.")

Allowed personal bills to become overdue and he and his wife issued checks on their bank account which were not paid because of insufficient funds which has reflected on the reputation of the town marshal of the town. ("My wife did get overdrawn at the bank and I guess I did too once, but I made them both good. I don't know hardly anyone that hasn't happened to sometime. I have no outstanding checks whatsoever now. I have not had over two or three checks returned since we have had that checking account.")

Failed to operate a competent and efficient police department and as a result lawlessness has increased in the town. ("The crime rate has not gone up anymore than usual during the past year or so. I don't know what else I can say about that one.")

Was never permanently hired as town marshal or police chief but was appointed for a six month probationary period and the board has the right to terminate his services in that capacity. ("I was never sworn in as chief of police. I was sworn in as a marshal seven year ago.")

Black Forest Picks New Fire Chief

William H. "Bill" Amos was elected fire chief Friday night by the Black Forest Volunteer Fire Department.

Amos, who lives at 26 Brentwood Dr., was active in the department. The former chief was Sam Smale.

Jack Stream was elected assistant chief.

These officers were elected by firemen following a public election for directors of the department.

Directors elected, with the following votes, were: Ken Kirchhofer, 95; Frank Tillman, 81; Al Pettigrew, 73; and Frank Tillman, 81. Others in the race were Cecil Callicutt, who received 61 votes, and Jack Grier, with 57 votes.

The four seats to be filled were all for three-year terms.

Present board members were: Dr. Robert Bauman, Elmer Rankin, Roy Wolfe and Darwin Wooley. One seat was vacant because of a resignation. The seats held by Wooley and Rankin were not up for election at this time.

Voting was from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the fire station. There was no residence requirement for voting.

alone will not solve the financial plight of our schools."

Speaker Allen Dines, D-Denver, said he was "impressed by the size of the tax increase."

"It seems to me that this is a clear an admission of error as has come to my attention if you compare it to the position of the same party two years ago when he (Love) was first elected," Dines said.

Two hours after the governor spoke the Democratic leadership opened a lengthy session in Dines' office and afterwards the speaker said they began a study of the state's spending needs and revenue picture.

Called into the session was Prof. Reuben Zubrow, University of Colorado expert who wrote the controversial income tax section of a 1959 tax study ordered by then-Gov. Steve McNichols.

Dines said Zubrow reviewed the study.

"We did not take a position for or against any particular thing at the moment," the speaker said.

He added another meeting will be held next Friday.

Participating in the session in addition to Dines and Knous were Sens. Roy Romer of Denver, Roland (Sonny) Mapelli of Denver, and George Brown of Denver, and Reps. Star Caywood of Walsenburg, J. D. MacFarlane of Pueblo, Charles Conklin of Delta, Burns and Hogan. Also sitting in was James Carrigan, a one-time state judicial administrator and Robert Maytag, state Democratic chairman.

The legislature met only briefly Friday before quitting for its first weekend recess of the year. The Senate passed a memorial honoring the late John W. Shawcroft of LaJara, its one-time Republican leader, who died recently. It also gave quick preliminary approval to a bill providing that Denver's Superior Court will retain jurisdiction of almost 700 cases which have been filed there when court duties change next Tuesday.

Catholic Says Church Opposes Birth Control

birth control was no concern of the government. While Catholics would encourage basic research into human reproduction, he said, they would oppose any government program involving "simply the development of better distribution methods for contraceptive devices and techniques."

Natural preventive measures, such as the rhythm method of periodic abstinence, have been sanctioned by the Catholic hierarchy as normally acceptable.

But, said Knott, "Despite popular opinion to the contrary, the attitude of the Catholic Church toward contraception is still one of condemnation as a serious moral evil."

Objects To Reference

He objected to Johnson's reference to an "explosion in world population," which he said was unscientific.

"The fact of the matter is that it is safe to predict population growth only for the next 10 years," he said. "Anything beyond that is pure speculation.

"Let all men work together now to improve the human dignity of those now living or about to live rather than run in fright from the bogey-man of the year 2000."

There is no evidence that contraceptive programs have any effect on population problems anyway, the monsignor said.

cause the oath she filed in Paris last October was incomplete.

She was said to have balked at a phrase in the oath stating that she "abjure all allegiance and fidelity to the United States of America." She had it deleted apparently feeling it might be interpreted as ingratitude toward the country where she made millions as a high-priced film star.

The American Embassy in Paris forwarded Miss Taylor's oath to Washington, where the State Department ruled it did not meet regulations.

Miss Taylor's spokesman, John Springer, said she wanted to have the same citizenship as her husband.

"As far as Miss Taylor is concerned, she is no longer an American citizen," he said. "Born in Britain, she has held both U.S. and British citizenships in recent years."

But the State Department said Miss Taylor technically is still an American despite her wishes.

Officials informed her last month that if she chose, she could expatriate herself by filing the full oath of renunciation — including the phrase she found objectionable — with the American Embassy in Paris.

State Department sources in New York said Miss Taylor would benefit financially by giving up her American citizenship.

As a foreigner not residing in the United States, they said, she would not be taxed in the United States on her "very considerable" film income outside the country.

Winter Turns Midwest Into Large Icebox

complished spectacular temperature drops on the prairie midlands where this week many new high January temperatures had been recorded.

The Rocky Mountains acted as a retaining wall on the west, but the cold bulged eastward into the Great Lakes, Mississippi and Ohio Valleys, setting off drizzle, showers and occasional thundershowers along its leading edge.

As temperatures fell precipitately—15 degrees in 15 minutes at Moline, Ill., 20 degrees in 30 minutes at Wichita, Kan. — freezing rain developed and, behind that, snow. The Weather Bureau said, however, that there was no present indication of any heavy snowfall.

The cold had solid backing in the far north. In Alaska's interior, Northway's overnight low was 60 below zero.

CU Would Get Largest Share Of School Money

Compact on Higher Education. For capital construction on the Boulder campus $1,035,000 and for the medical center $3,104,000 including $1,439,000 in federal funds.

Colorado State University Fort Collins—$16,945,073 for operations, including $10,025,267 from the general fund and $6,919,806 from cash funds. This compares with $14,189,683 for the current year, including $7,876,718 from the general fund and requests totaling $19,510,224.

Of the operating money, $11,628,488 would be used for instruction, including $7,371,494 in general fund money, while the experiment station program would get $2,658,434 and the extension service $2,658,151. For capital construction $3,024,000 including $619,000 federal funds.

Colorado State College, Greeley — $5,340,800, for operations, including $3,511,305 from the general fund and $1,829,495 from special funds. This compares with $4,495,743 for this year including $2,867,904 from the general fund and requests totaling $5,700,040. For capital construction, $852,000.

Southern Colorado State College, Pueblo—$2,532,505 for operation, including $1,691,577 from the general fund and $840,928 from special funds. This compares with $1,839,420 including $1,170,664 from the general fund for this year and requests of $2,814,658. For capital construction, $300,000.

Adams State College, Alamosa—$1,882,356 for operations including $1,383,406 from the general fund and $498,550 from special funds. This compares with $1,733,315 for this year including $1,287,533 from the general fund, and requests of $2,052,200. For capital construction, $110,000.

Fort Lewis College, Durango cluding $882,172 from the general fund and $357,748 from special funds. This compares with $1,081,645 for this year, including $759,884 from the general fund, and requests of $1,366,274. For capital construction, $145,000.

Western State College, Gunnison — $2,024,230 for operations including $1,469,268 from the general fund and $554,962 from special funds. This compares with $1,747,390 for this year including $1,252,878 from the general fund, and requests totaling $2,094,952. For capital construction $145,000.

Colorado School of Mines, Golden, including experiment station—For operations $2,841,109 including general fund money of $2,132,891 and special funds of $708,218. This compares with $2,724,369 for this year including $2,049,697 from the general fund and requests of $3,017,998. For capital construction $145,000.

Metropolitan State College in the Denver area—$1,133,430, the entire amount requested, including $859,721 from the general fund and $273,709 from special funds. The college, not yet in operation, received $63,830 for this year. For capital construction—no recommendation.

In addition the governor recommended appropriation of $594,000 to the College Coordinating Council, if it is authorized, to plan construction estimated to cost $18,301,060. The planning money would be allocated as follows: Adams State $24,000 for office classroom building; Colorado State University $125,000 for social science facility; Southern Colorado State College $36,000 for an applied science building and $54,000 for a physical education facility; University of Colorado $100,000 for a life science center and $90,000 for a school of business building; Western State College $40,000 for an arts building and $25,000 for master planning at the University of Colorado's Colorado Springs extension center.

If the coordinating council is not established, the governor wants the planning money allocated to the state controller's office.

Love also recommended $383,510 including $212,076 in federal funds, go to Trinidad Junior College for construction of a library-classroom building.

He recommended that $692,269 including $276,908 in federal funds be granted to Otero Junior College at La Junta for a vocational technical building.

Man Pleads Guilty To Lesser Offence

Vernon L. Reynolds was placed on probation in District Court Friday for petty larceny.

Reynolds, 24, Ft. Carson, was first charged with larceny from a motor vehicle and alleged to have stolen men's clothing worth $50 from a car belonging to James D. Baldwin, Sept. 26.

Love's recommendations included:

Colorado State Hospital, Pueblo—$16,755,212 for operations, including $125,000 from special funds with the rest from the general fund. This compares with $15,925,733 for the current year, including $125,000 from special funds, and requests of $17,527,500. No recommendation for capital construction.

Colorado State Penitentiary, Canon City—$4,151,305, all from the general fund, compared to $3,667,335 for this year and requests of $4,371,849. For capital construction $584,719 including $80,000 to complete the steam and water distributing system, $435,000 for partial cost of the women's correctional building; and $159,719 for the recreational building's first phase.

State Home and Training School, Grand Junction — $2,435,958 for operations, all but $115,664 from the general fund; compared with $2,277045 this year, of which all but $117,974 was from the general fund, and requests of $2,905,813. For capital construction $170,500 including $160,000 to replace the steam distribution system. The rest would be for installation of alternate electric power.

Home for the Aged, Trinidad —$112,458 from the general fund to go with $336,900 other funds to give the institution an operating budget of $449,358. The general fund appropriation compares with $111,718 for this year.

Golden Age Center, Monte Vista—$135,758 from the general fund, to go with $166,886 in other funds for a total operating budget of $302,644. The general fund appropriation this year is $134,485.

School for the Deaf and Blind, Colorado Springs — $827,963, all from the general fund, for operations. This compares with $806,596 this year and requests of $866,815.

State Fair, Pueblo — $345,186 for operations, including $143,934 from the general fund and $201,252 from special funds, for operation. This compares with $331,463, including general fund money of $98,700, this year and requests of $376,684.

Love's recommendation for other institutions included: Reformatory, Buena Vista, $1,649,815 for operations, all from the general fund, $153,800 for capital construction; Lookout Mountain School for Boys, Golden $1,089,086, all from the general fund, for operations; Mount View Girls School, Morrison $646,539, all from the general fund, for operations; and $37,700 for capital construction; Fort Logan Mental Health Center, Denver, $4,778,911 for operations all but $313,985 from the general fund, and $27,000 for construction; Home and Training School, Wheat Ridge, $3,522,957, all from the general fund, for operations and $1,104,900.

Love asked the legislature to appropriate $470,000 so the state can complete purchase of the United Presbyterian Church Building across from the capitol. It already holds an option on the church and an educational building which can be transformed into office space.

the Executive Session in the fall of 1964.

A. R. Pruit, M. D., is a graduate of Tulane University and Tulane's College of Medicine. He was a lieutenant commander in the navy during World War II. Dr. Pruit graduated from the Freedom School's Comprehensive Course in 1963 and the Executive Session in 1964. He is an accomplished writer and lecturer and was instrumental in influencing the Roswell hospital to refuse federal tax funds for its expansion. His wife, who also is a physician, and two of his four children also have attended courses at the Freedom School.

New trustees are appointed by the board. Other members are Robert W. Baird, Jr., Milwaukee, Wis.; William J. Colson, New Orleans, La.; Dr. James L. Doenges, Anderson, Ind.; William J. Grede, Milwaukee, Wis.; Harry H. Hoiles, Colorado Springs; Roland W. Homes, Seattle, Wash.; Ned W. kimball, Waterville, Wash.; Charles G. Koch, Wichita, Kas.; Robert D. Love, Wichita Kas., and Roger Milliken, Spartanburg, S. C.

The board of trustees was begun in 1959 and the original board of directors was started in 1956, the year the school was founded.

Red Chinese Flying Migs Over Viet Nam

from Hainan Island, these latest-model Communist jet fighters have been sighted on airfields in four other locations — one in North Viet Nam, at Hanoi; the three others in China, at Nanning, Chinhai and Mengtzu, not far from North Viet Nam's border.

Largest number of these Migs, estimated aound 50, have been spotted on China's Hainan Island.

It also has been definitely established that these Migs are piloted by Red Chinese. This has been fully authenticated by recordings of messages and other conversations by the pilots.

FATEFUL UNCERTAINTY

But still very much in the dark is what happens next — particularly whether these new jet fighters portend Red China's direct intervention in the protracted South Viet Nam conflict.

Some intelligence authorities are strongly convinced of that. In support of this view, they cite the following:

Disposition of the Mig-21s and Red China's other air strength definitely indicates readiness to intervene. Regular North Viet Nam ground forces, up to regimental units, are positively known to be in South Viet Nam. In recent weeks, these North Viet Nam troops have been increasingly used in combat.

They carried the brunt of the fighting at Bingh Gia, where the South Vietnamese and U.S. advisers suffered their biggest losses to date.

In the opinion of these intelligence experts, the next likely move will be Peking's use of its jet fighters to provide the North Viet Nam regulars with air support — which the Communists have totally lacked in this struggle so far.

This dire development would immediately confront the U. S. with decisions of supremest import.

President Johnson would have to decide how far he is prepared to go to make good the ringing pronouncement in his State of the Union message Monday night of this week.

"Twice in one generation we have had to fight against aggression in the Far East. To ignore aggression would only increase the danger of a larger war. What is at stake (in South Viet Nam) is the cause of freedom. In that cause we shall never be found wanting."

WHERE'D THEY GET THEM

The jolting discovery that Red China has acquired Mig-21s has caused deep perturbation in State Department and Central Intelligence Agency quarters.

Both have policy papers asserting (1) Russia halted all military aid to Peking in 1961 when the long-smoldering ideological feud broke into the open; (2) no Mig-21s have ever been supplied the Chinese; (3) the latter's airforce has deteriorated in the last few years.

Since the appearance of Chinese-piloted Mig-21s in the inflamed Viet Nam area, debate has raged among administration policy-makers over their origin.

State Department and CIA officials are inclined to the view that these latest-model jet fighters are being produced in China. Military experts sharply question this theory. In refutation they cite the following two significant factors:

(1) There is no "firm" information or evidence that Red China has plants capable of manufacturing Mig - 21s. (2) Principal sources of the reports that these combat planes are being made in China are Hong Kong and New Delhi, where Communist agents are notoriously active.

The skeptical military officials also contend the reports of the Mig-21s' being produced in China were "leaked" by Communist sources, and so timed as to coincide with the appearance of these planes in the South Viet Nam region.

Prior to the sighting of the Mig-21s, the jet fighter strength of Red China was calculated by the CIA as between 1,750 and 2,000 planes, including approximately 100 Mig-19s. The others were Mig-17s and Mig-15s, now rated as obsolescent.

Fountain Cop Denies Charges Made by Board

rado Springs Rookie School. They were supposed to start their training Jan. 4. They were discharged before they could begin. Second, the charge about one of my men working in his private business when he was supposed to be on duty is not true. And last, there is a liquor store next door to the cafe where we sometimes parked the police car. The man who runs that store hates to have any kind of state or town patrol car parked that close to his business. I imagine that's where they got that complaint.")

Failed to enforce the ordinances of the town, relating to dogs running loose, vehicles speeding, vehicles stopping at stop signs, vandalism and malicious mischief, disturbing the peace, curfews relating to minors and others. ("I've taken 65 dogs to the pound since June. We don't have many people running stop signs except around the railroad crossings. There they slow down but don't always come to a full stop. We try to watch for them. Also we got some complaints about cars not stopping for the school buses. The buses don't turn on their flashing red lights when they are loading on private property and cars going past don't stop. We've had some complaints and talked to the bus drivers about them but they still won't turn on their red lights.")

Failed to police, patrol and protect the park of the town from vandalism and malicious mischief, especially concerning the security of buildings. ("There are toilets in the park. We used to unlock them about 8 in the morning and lock them about 9 at night. But, somehow, a ring of keys got lost out of the patrol car. I asked the town coordinator for another key since we couldn't lock and unlock the toilet buildings without the key. He refused to have another one made. So we started leaving the toilets open. We had to. We didn't have a key to lock them up with.")

Failed to police and patrol the business district and schools of the town and, due to that failure, a recent burglary of the hardware store was not reported because, in the owner's opinion, it would have done no good ("We have gotten hit on two schools and we have been on the spot almost, that shows you that we have been patrolling the town. I had an idea who was responsible for the burglaries and I turned the information over to the new police chief. As for the hardware store, I found out that the fellow who did that had come in and paid for the guns that were taken and that the store owner did not report it because of that.")

Failed, except occasionally and for only a few minutes, to attend council meetings or render adequate reports as ordered and requested by the board. ("The board asked me to start attending meetings about the first of October. I was gone to a school one time but I have been at every single meeting since then. I stayed until they were through discussing police business, then I asked to be excused. Police Commissioner Dan Kelling always excused me when they didn't need me anymore. They asked me for a report on this school on burglary and safe cracking and I sent them a letter about it. About the first of November I had a meeting with Police Commissioner Dan Kelling and he told me things were running smoothly. He said there wasn't any complaints that he knew anything about.")

Unlawfully and improperly permitted your deputy Billie Miller to use the police car for his own private use. ("Miller was taking the car when he went home for lunch. When I found out, I talked to him about it. Then I told Kelling and said I thought we ought to ask for Miller's resignation. He said not to and that he would talk to Miller about it. Miller hasn't taken the car home anymore since I talked to him.")

Allowed personal bills to become overdue and he and his wife issued checks on their bank account which were not paid because of insufficient funds which has reflected on the reputation of the town marshal of the town. ("My wife did get overdrawn at the bank and I guess I did too once, but I made them both good. I don't know hardly anyone that hasn't happened to sometime. I have no outstanding checks whatsoever now. I have not had over two or three checks returned since we have had that checking account.")

Failed to operate a competent and efficient police department and as a result lawlessness has increased in the town. ("The crime rate has not gone up anymore than usual during the past year or so. I don't know what else I can say about that one.")

Was never permanently hired as town marshal or police chief but was appointed for a six month probationary period and the board has the right to terminate his services in that capacity. ("I was never sworn in as chief of police. I was sworn in as a marshal seven year ago.")

Black Forest Picks New Fire Chief

William H. "Bill" Amos was elected fire chief Friday night by the Black Forest Volunteer Fire Department.

Amos, who lives at 26 Brentwood Dr., was active in the department. The former chief was Sam Smale.

Jack Stream was elected assistant chief.

These officers were elected by firemen following a public election for directors of the department.

Directors elected, with the following votes, were: Ken Kirchhofer, 95; Frank Tillman, 81; Al Pettigrew, 73; and Frank Tillman, 81. Others in the race were Cecil Callicutt, who received 61 votes, and Jack Grier, with 57 votes.

The four seats to be filled were all for three-year terms.

Present board members were: Dr. Robert Bauman, Elmer Rankin, Roy Wolfe and Darwin Wooley. One seat was vacant because of a resignation. The seats held by Wooley and Rankin were not up for election at this time.

Voting was from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the fire station. There was no residence requirement for voting.

alone will not solve the financial plight of our schools."

Speaker Allen Dines, D-Denver, said he was "impressed by the size of the tax increase."

"It seems to me that this is a clear an admission of error as has come to my attention if you compare it to the position of the same party two years ago when he (Love) was first elected," Dines said.

Two hours after the governor spoke the Democratic leadership opened a lengthy session in Dines' office and afterwards the speaker said they began a study of the state's spending needs and revenue picture.

Called into the session was Prof. Reuben Zubrow, University of Colorado expert who wrote the controversial income tax section of a 1959 tax study ordered by then-Gov. Steve McNichols.

Dines said Zubrow reviewed the study.

"We did not take a position for or against any particular thing at the moment," the speak er said.

He added another meeting will be held next Friday.

Participating in the session in addition to Dines and Knous were Sens. Roy Romer of Denver, Roland (Sonny) Mapelli of Denver, and George Brown of Denver, and Reps. Star Caywood of Walsenburg, J. D. MacFarlane of Pueblo, Charles Conklin of Delta, Burns and Hogan. Also sitting in was James Carrigan, a one-time state judicial administrator and Robert Maytag, state Democratic chairman.

The legislature met only briefly Friday before quitting for its first weekend recess of the year. The Senate passed a memorial honoring the late John W. Shawcroft of LaJara, its one-time Republican leader, who died recently. It also gave quick pre liminary approval to a bill providing that Denver's Superior Court will retain jurisdiction of almost 700 cases which have been filed there when court duties change next Tuesday.

birth control was no concern of the government. While Catholics would encourage basic research into human reproduction, he said, they would oppose any government program involving "simply the development of better distribution methods for contraceptive devices and techniques."

Natural preventive measures, such as the rhythm method of periodic abstinence, have been sanctioned by the Catholic hierarchy as normally acceptable.

But, said Knott, "Despite popular opinion to the contrary, the attitude of the Catholic Church toward contraception is still one of condemnation as a serious moral evil."

Objects To Reference

He objected to Johnson's reference to an "explosion in world population," which he said was unscientific.

"The fact of the matter is that it is safe to predict population growth only for the next 10 years," he said. "Anything beyond that is pure speculation.

"Let all men work together now to improve the human dignity of those now living or about to live rather than run in fright from the bogey-man of the year 2000."

There is no evidence that contraceptive programs have any effect on population problems anyway, the monsignor said.

left hand and forearm.. He was treated in Memorial Hospital and released.

A passenger in the Smith vehicle, Katherine E. Smith, 73, of the same address, had a lacerated chin, multiple contusions and abrasions and the following possible injuries: fracture of the forth finger of the left hand, fracture of the right forearm and back injuries. She was taken to Memorial Hospital by E & E Ambulance.

Police reported that the Smith vehicle was northbound on Nevada when it collided with the right side of the Pollock car, which was westbound on Monument.

Smith said, according to police, that he did not see the car until the immediate time of impact.

Pollock told police he stopped for the stop sign at Monument and checked traffic to the south, then proceeded and checked southbound traffic from the north. Upon checking again he said he noticed the Smith vehicle and applied his brakes, but was struck immediately.

Change Foreseen In Gold Behind U.S. Dollars

is a relic of the days when a man could walk into a bank and get gold in exchange for his paper dollars. In 1933, the United States went off the "gold Standard," and domestic dollars no longer could be redeemed for gold.

So the government must be careful how it goes about revising the gold cover requirement so as not to panic people, officials said.

The gold cover needs revising because the $15.5 billion U.S. gold stock is getting stretched from both ends, domestic and foreign. As the economy grows at home, the federal reserve system adds to the money supply.

cause the oath she filed in Paris last October was incomplete.

She was said to have balked at a phrase in the oath stating that she "abjure all allegiance and fidelity to the United States of America." She had it deleted apparently feeling it might be interpreted as ingratitude toward the country where she made millions as a high-priced film star.

The American Embassy in Paris forwarded Miss Taylor's oath to Washington, where the State Department ruled it did not meet regulations.

Miss Taylor's spokesman, John Springer, said she wanted to have the same citizenship as her husband.

"As far as Miss Taylor is concerned, she is no longer an American citizen," he said. "Born in Britain, she has held both U.S. and British citizenships in recent years."

But the State Department said Miss Taylor technically is still an American despite her wishes.

Officials informed her last month that if she chose, she could expatriate herself by filing the full oath of renunciation — including the phrase she found objectionable — with the American Embassy in Paris.

State Department sources in New York said Miss Taylor would benefit financially by giving up her American citizenship.

As a foreigner not residing in the United States, they said, she would not be taxed in the United States on her "very considerable" film income outside the country.

complished spectacular temperature drops on the prairie midlands where this week many new high January temperatures had been recorded.

The Rocky Mountains acted as a retaining wall on the west, but the cold bulged eastward into the Great Lakes, Mississippi and Ohio Valleys, setting off drizzle, showers and occasional thundershowers along its leading edge.

As temperatures fell precipitately—15 degrees in 15 minutes at Moline, Ill., 20 degrees in 30 minutes at Wichita, Kan. — freezing rain developed and, behind that, snow. The Weather Bureau said, however, that there was no present indication of any heavy snowfall.

The cold had solid backing in the far north. In Alaska's interior, Northway's overnight low was 63 below zero.

Western State College, Gunnison — $2,024,230 for operations including $1,469,268 from the general fund and $554,962 from special funds. This compares with $1,747,390 for this year including $1,252,878 from the general fund, and requests totaling $2,094,952. For capital construction $145,000.

Colorado School of Mines, Golden, including experiment station—For operations $2,841,109 including general fund money of $2,132,891 and special funds of $708,218. This compares with $2,724,369 for this year including $2,049,697 from the general fund and requests of $3,017,998. For capital construction $145,000.

Metropolitan State College in the Denver area—$1,133,430, the entire amount requested, including $859,721 from the general fund and $273,709 from special funds. The college, not yet in operation, received $63,830 for this year. For capital construction—no recommendation.

In addition the governor recommended appropriation of $594,000 to the College Coordinating Council, if it is authorized, to plan construction estimated to cost $18,301,060. The planning money would be allocated as follows: Adams State $24,000 for office classroom building; Colorado State University $125,000 for social science facility; Southern Colorado State College $36,000 for an applied science building and $54,000 for a physical education facility; University of Colorado $100,000 for a life science center and $90,000 for a school of business building; Western State College $40,000 for an arts building and $25,000 for master planning at the University of Colorado's Colorado Springs extension center.

If the coordinating council is not established, the governor wants the planning money allocated to the state controller's office.

Love also recommended $883,510 including $212,076 in federal funds, go to Trinidad Junior College for construction of a library-classroom building.

He recommended that $692,269 including $276,908 in federal funds be granted to Otero Junior College at La Junta for a vocational technical building.

Love's recommendations included:

Colorado State Hospital, Pueblo—$16,755,212 for operations, including $125,000 from special funds with the rest from the general fund. This compares with $15,925,733 for the current year, including $125,000 from special funds, and requests of $17,527,500. No recommendation for capital construction.

Colorado State Penitentiary, Canon City—$4,151,305, all from the general fund, compared to $3,667,335 for this year and requests of $4,371,849. For capital construction $584,719 including $80,000 to complete the steam and water distributing system, $435,000 for partial cost of the women's correctional building; and $159,719 for the recreational building's first phase.

State Home and Training School, Grand Junction — $2,435,958 for operations, all but $115,664 from the general fund; compared with $2,277045 this year, of which all but $117,974 was from the general fund, and requests of $2,905,813. For capital construction $170,500 including $160,000 to replace the steam distribution system. The rest would be for installation of alternate electric power.

Home for the Aged, Trinidad —$112,458 from the general fund to go with $336,900 other funds to give the institution an operating budget of $449,358. The general fund appropriation compares with $111,718 for this year.

Golden Age Center, Monte Vista—$135,758 from the general fund, to go with $166,886 in other funds for a total operating budget of $302,644. The general fund appropriation this year is $134,485.

School for the Deaf and Blind, Colorado Springs — $827,963, all from the general fund, for operations. This compares with $806,596 this year and requests of $866,815.

State Fair, Pueblo — $345,186 for operations, including $143,934 from the general fund and $201,252 from special funds, for operation. This compares with $331,463, including general fund money of $98,700, this year and requests of $376,684.

Love's recommendation for other institutions included: Reformatory, Buena Vista, $1,649,815 for operations, all from the general fund, $153,800 for capital construction; Lookout Mountain School for Boys, Golden $1,089,086, all from the general fund, for operations; Mount View Girls School, Morrison $646,539, all from the general fund, for operations; and $37,700 for capital construction; Fort Logan Mental Health Center, Denver, $4,778,911 for operations all but $313,985 from the general fund, and $27,000 for construction; Home and Training School, Wheat Ridge, $3,522,957, all from the general fund, for operations and $1,104,900.

Love asked the legislature to appropriate $470,000 so the state can complete purchase of the United Presbyterian Church Building across from the capitol. It already holds an option on the church and an educational building which can be transformed into office space.

the Executive Session in the fall of 1964.

A. R. Pruit, M. D., is a graduate of Tulane University and Tulane's College of Medicine. He was a lieutenant commander in the navy during World War II. Dr. Pruit graduated from the Freedom School's Comprehensive Course in 1963 and the Executive Session in 1964. He is an accomplished writer and lecturer and was instrumental in influencing the Roswell hospital to refuse federal tax funds for its expansion. His wife, who also is a physician, and two of his four children also have attended courses at the Freedom School.

New trustees are appointed by the board. Other members are Robert W. Baird, Jr., Milwaukee, Wis.; William J. Colson, New Orleans, La.; Dr. James L. Doenges, Anderson, Ind.; William J. Grede, Milwaukee, Wis.; Harry H. Hoiles, Colorado Springs; Roland W. Homes, Seattle, Wash.; Ned W. kimball, Waterville, Wash.; Charles G. Koch, Wichita, Kas.; Robert D. Love, Wichita Kas., and Roger Milliken, Spartanburg, S. C.

The board of trustees was begun in 1959 and the original board of directors was started in 1956, the year the school was founded.

ARCHITECT'S SKETCHBOOK — PLANS AND IDEAS

Fire the Butler and Do It Yourself!

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

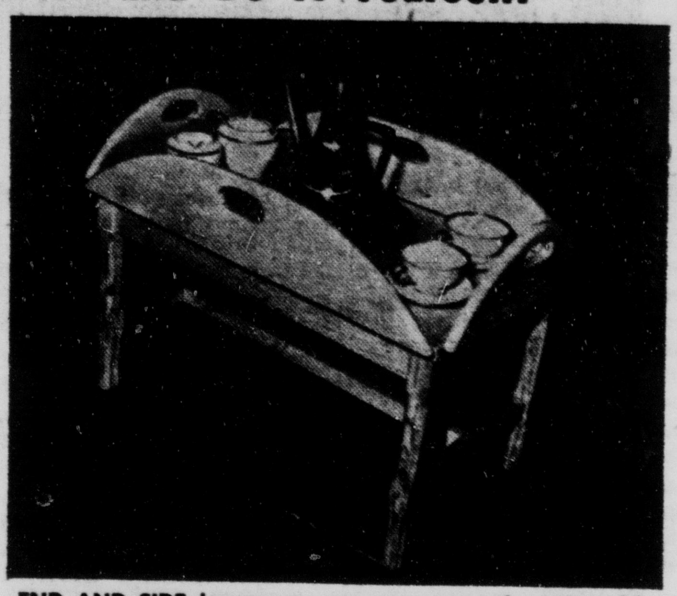
In the golden days when butlers were in the pantry, you would have paid scant notice to Sketchbook's offering this week. It would have been something functional placed in front of you for holding the dainty tea and biscuits. In this do-it-yourself era, you pay attention to clever innovations that serve well.

One that does is the Butler's Tray Table, design plan S-196. These days the smart homemaker finds it practical and handy to use for informal serving and as an endtable when not helping the hostess. Sketchbook's design is handsome, sturdy and easy for the average woodworking hobbyist to make right in his own shop with the minimum of fancy tools.

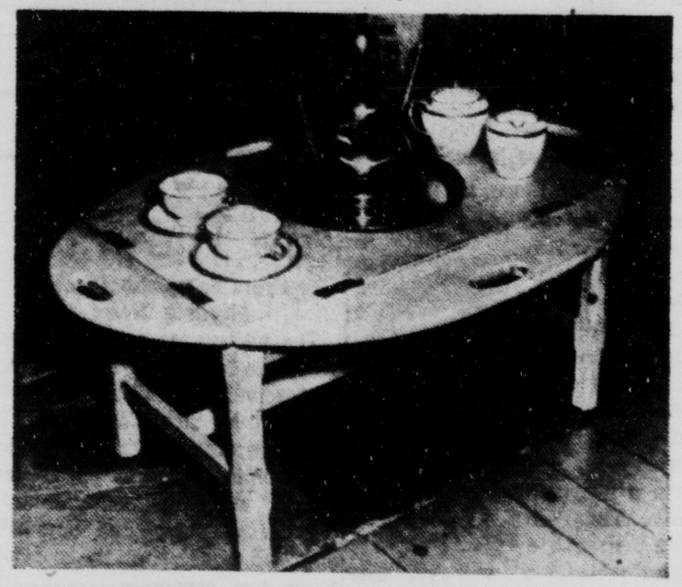
The way you go about having this smart looking table in your life is obtaining Sketchbook plan S-196, available through this newspaper for only 50 cents. The working drawings contain all particulars on the amount of wood necessary to build the table, sizes of all parts, full size patterns for the four leaves and legs as well as step-by-step assembling procedures. It is not a difficult project at all. Once you have determined what wood you prefer, (we recommend a hardwood plywood for the top and matching hardwood for the structure) the project comes together easily as long as you cut your parts carefully and accurately. Our full size patterns make the chores much easier all along.

The tray table is a fine looking piece of furniture as well as being such a useful one around the home. The graceful arcs of the four leaves that are hinged to the main top produce a nicely shaped oval when the leaves are flat. When up, the handholds in the leaves at both ends make it extremely convenient to pick up the table and move it where you wish. It is not at all heavy.

If you have a faithful family butler about the grounds, let him down easy. If you haven't, put theis Butler's tray table to work for you. For the relatively small amount of work in making it, it will serve excellently for a good many years.



END AND SIDE leaves up, you can carry the tray table, with the snack aboard, to where you wish.



LEAVES EXTENDED, they form a graceful oval for the top of the table. This is a project that the home woodworker will consider making twin tables—they are that practical and useful.

To obtain Sketchbook plan S-196, the Butler's Tray Table, fill out the coupon below and mail it with 50 cents to SKETCHBOOK in care of this newspaper.

Tile, Mirror Can Make Dramatic Foyer

There's nothing like a floor-to-ceiling mirror to enhance the appearance of a foyer or entranceway.

The mirror will make the entry look larger and more attractive, too.

Since the entry gets rougher wear than almost any other part of the house, materials that are both durable and attractive should be used. Quarry tile meets both these requirements, which is why it is so often found on foyer floors.

Ceramic tile is ideal for the walls of your entry, since it's now available in many decorator patterns and shapes, plus more than 250 colors and shades.

A quarry tile floor and wall of either glazed tile or mosaics can combine with a floor-to-ceiling mirror to transform a routine entranceway into a focal point of the home.

MONTEVIDEO — Uruguay plans an export promotion drive.

Houses, People Have Lot In Common

Houses and people have a lot in common.

For instance, ever chuckle when you see one of today's Hollywood stars on the late show in old - fashioned clothes? Well, don't laugh too long because some of the rooms in your house may have been designed at about the same time.

Take the bathroom. If you still have the same decorative treatment after 20 years or so, now is a good time to give the room a "new look." Today's attractive materials also are easier to keep clean. Also, you probably will want to include modern lighting and plumbing fixtures, as well as additional storage.

One of the most popular paneling products for bathrooms enables the homeowner to plan almost any type of decor. Plastic - finished Marlite paneling is available at local lumber dealers incontemporary colors, handsome woodgrains, and eye-catching patterns.

This durable paneling never needs painting; can be put up right over old walls. Washable Marlite can be used in the tub-shower area because it is resistant to heat, moisture and hard wear.

Plastic - finished hardboard also comes in easy-to-handle ceiling blocks. These can be chosen to match or contrast with the overall decor. With these improvements, your bathroom will be in step with the times.

Home Building To Continue At Same Level

Home building activity in 1965 should continue at approximately the same level as this year — at about 1,525,000 new starts.

The number of multifamily units probably will decline slightly from 1964's mark. Single family building starts, however, are expected to rise somewhat to something more than the 1 million level.

Land, labor, and development costs again are expected to be higher in the new year.

An anticipated proposal by President Johnnon to create a department of housing and community development will be one of the more significant developments in the housing industry in many years.

The NAHB supports creation of such a cabinet post provided that primary importance is placed on housing in such a dpartment and that the functions of FHA and the Federal National Mortgage Association are transferred intact to it.

In the coming year, we shall see more concerted efforts by NAHB and its almost 44,000 members to house the lower income families of the nation and to create a better environemnt in which to live.

We have already established communication with recognized experts — sociologists, architects, planners, psychiatrists, clergymen, philosophers — in every facet of community life with the view toward serving as a catalyst in developing programs to improve the quality of living.

This was done at the Interdisciplinary Conference on Environmental Design held in the National Housing Center, Washington, D. C., in November. Further meetings are planned to establish working programs.

Hydronic Heat Provides Top Home Warmth

When you come right down to it, what's a heating system for? Isn't it to make you warm and comfortable inside when it's cold and uncomfortable outside?

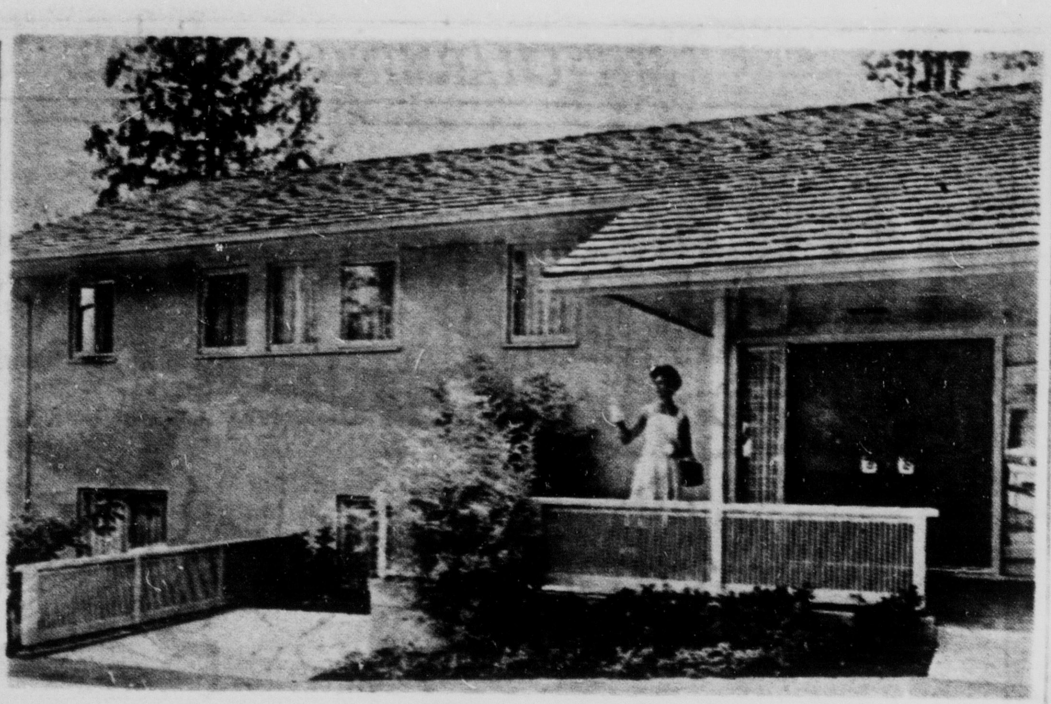
The principle sounds simple enough, but it takes more than the use of some heat to make it work. A combination of both convected and radiant warmth must be supplied to keep the body heat losses balanced, and that's the secret of the whole matter. The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau reports that hydronic heat delivers both kinds.

Hydronic (circulated hot water) heat fills the home with even, constant warmth, and offers maximum flexibility. A hydronic system can be directed where you want it, in any quantity needed, at just the right temperature to maintain comfort.

The entire room is comfortable living area, with barely a difference in temperature between floor and ceiling, outside and inside walls. It permits complete freedom of decorating and arrangement of furniture, with no "off limits" areas due to obtrusive heat distributors.

And the heat you get is clean and gentle — no dirt and dust comes through the system. Odors and gasses cannot be circulated. Low air velocities help keep drapes and walls clean.

Best of all, you get long range economy when you install hydronic heating. Cast iron boilers will outlast other heating plants up to two and one half times. Cast iron is highly resistant to rust and corrosion, and the heat absorbing surfaces of the boiler are water-backed so that neither flame nor hot gasses can distort or destroy the surfaces.



TALL HOUSE NEEDS HORIZONTALS — Sometimes a two-story or split-level house looks awkwardly tall, but often the problem can be solved with horizontal lines at the entrance area. Crisply styled screens outlining porch do the job here, are built with Douglas fir lumber and stained to match the home's tongue-and-groove siding.

A Tall House Is Aided by Horizontals

Does your house have the too-tall look? Does it stand up on the lot like the jolly green giant?

This effect can occur when a two-story house is built in an area mainly populated by ranch-style homes, or just when a big house is built to accommodate a big family. But there is a solution—the introduction of horizontal lines which can do much to cut the house down to eye-pleasing proportions.

The best place to look for potential horizontals is around the front door. Working here, you can not only accomplish your prime objective, but also create an exterior entrance area of importance.

Begin by laying out an area that would correspond to a large porch. It should run about half the front of the house and be slightly off-center. Outline, but don't enclose, this area with simply styled low screens and you'll have gotten the project well under way.

Only two screens are actually needed. One should lie parallel to the house walls at the front edge of the entrance area. The other can be at right angles and situated at the opposite end from the front door. It is not necessary to join them, and is usually more pleasing to the eye if there is space between, where the walk can come up, then turn over to the door.

The screens should be crisp but not ordinary. For one good pattern, begin with the standard framework of Douglas fir 4x4 posts and 2x4 stringers. Then set 1x4 inch fir boards narrow edge out between the stringers. They should be spaced evenly to correspond to the thickness of the exposed edge. An easy way to do it is to use even length pieces of 1x4 as spacer blocks top and bottom.

The pattern can be varied with handsome effect by using 1x2 inch boards narrow edge out They should be set between horizontal 1x2s with a 2x4 used as a finishing cap board and bottom rail.

If the house siding is stained a natural wood tone or one of the new and lovely bronzed greens, it's a good idea to paint the screens the same shade rather than to try to introduce an accent color. For a traditionally styled home, the screens can pick up the trim color successfully.

The project is completed with a front walk that circles up through the entrance area and with appropriate plantings.

TODAY'S HOME DIFFERENT

The average new home built today differs considerably from those built even a few years ago, Anaconda home specialists point out. Today's home, they report, has 20 per cent more floor area, 10 per cent more rooms, an additional bathroom, more insulation and is much more likely to contain all-copper plumbing, including water lines and drainage systems.

QUALITY CHECK

A quick check on the quality of building materials used in a home easily can be made on the inside. If bathrooms are surfaced with a durable, waterproof material such as ceramic tile it's a tip-off that the builder is quality conscious. The average bathroom should have at least 120 square feet of ceramic tile, as both a decorative and practical surfacing. Other quick check points include adequate automatic heating controls, insulation and roof leaks (which may be checked in the attic).

KITCHEN IMPROVEMENTS

The one room in most homes that's most likely in need of improvement is the kitchen, whether the need be for modern appliances or for additional countertop working space. You can gain color for the kitchen as well as trouble - free working space by surfacing the counters with ceramic tile. Real tile is both heatproof and scratchproof, and provides colorful, long - lasting surfaces that will enhance any home.

ARCHITECT'S SKETCHBOOK — PLANS AND IDEAS

Fire the Butler and Do It Yourself!

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

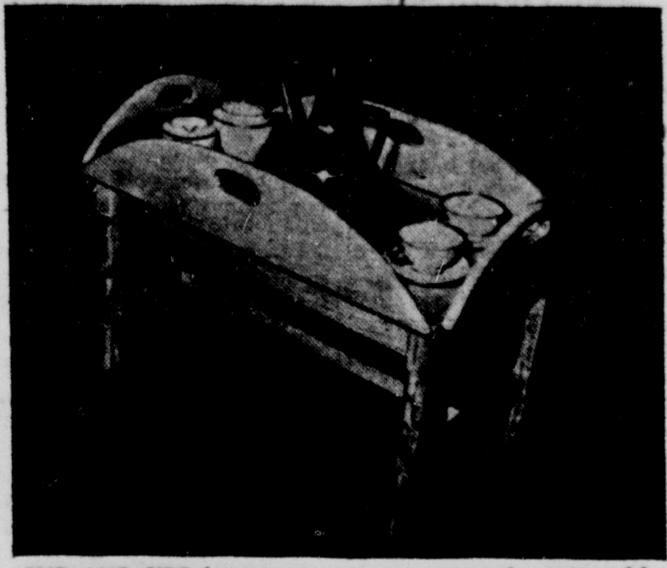
In the golden days when butlers were in the pantry, you would have paid scant notice to Sketchbook's offering this week. It would have been something functional placed in front of you for holding the dainty tea and biscuits. In this do-it-yourself era, you pay attention to clever innovations that serve well.

One that does is the Butler's Tray Table, design plan S-196. These days the smart homemaker finds it practical and handy to use for informal serving and as an endtable when not helping the hostess. Sketchbook's design is handsome, sturdy and easy for the average woodworking hobbyist to make right in his own shop with the minimum of fancy tools.

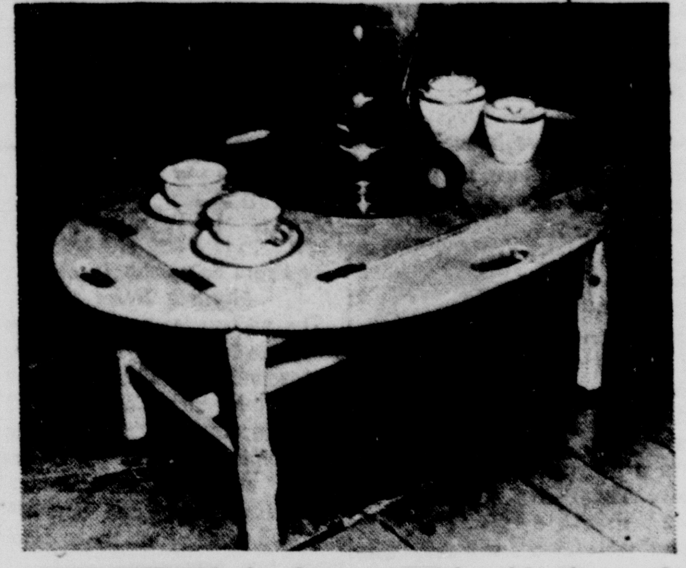
The way you go about having this smart looking table in your life is obtaining Sketchbook plan S-196, available through this newspaper for only 50 cents. The working drawings contain all particulars on the amount of wood necessary to build the table, sizes of all parts, full size patterns for the four leaves and legs as well as step-by-step assembling procedures. It is not a difficult project at all. Once you have determined what wood you prefer, (we recommend a hardwood plywood for the top and matching hardwood for the structure) the project comes together easily as long as you cut your parts carefully and accurately. Our full size patterns make the chores much easier all along.

The tray table is a fine looking piece of furniture as well as being such a useful one around the home. The graceful arcs of the four leaves that are hinged to the main top produce a nicely shaped oval when the leaves are flat. When up, the handholds in the leaves at both ends make it extremely convenient to pick up the table and move it where you wish. It is not at all heavy.

If you have a faithful family butler about the grounds, let him down easy. If you haven't, put theis Butler's tray table to work for you. For the relatively small amount of work in making it, it will serve excellently for a good many years.



END AND SIDE leaves up, you can carry the tray table, with the snack aboard, to where you wish.



LEAVES EXTENDED, they form a graceful oval for the top of the table. This is a project that the home woodworker will consider making twin tables—they are that practical and useful.

To obtain Sketchbook plan S-196, the Butler's Tray Table, fill out the coupon below and mail it with 50 cents to SKETCHBOOK in care of this newspaper.

Tile, Mirror Can Make Dramatic Foyer

There's nothing like a floor-to-ceiling mirror to enhance the appearance of a foyer or entranceway.

The mirror will make the entry look larger and more attractive, too.

Since the entry gets rougher wear than almost any other part of the house, materials that are both durable and attractive should be used. Quarry tile meets both these requirements, which is why it is so often found on foyer floors.

Ceramic tile is ideal for the walls of your entry, since it's now available in many decorator patterns and shapes, plus more than 250 colors and shades.

A quarry tile floor and wall of either glazed tile or mosaics can combine with a floor-to-ceiling mirror to transform a routine entranceway into a focal point of the home.

Houses, People Have Lot In Common

Houses and people have a lot in common.

For instance, ever chuckle when you see one of today's Hollywood stars on the late show in old-fashioned clothes? Well, don't laugh too long because some of the rooms in your house may have been designed at about the same time.

Take the bathroom. If you still have the same decorative treatment after 20 years or so, now is a good time to give the room a "new look." Today's attractive materials also are easier to keep clean. Also, you probably will want to include modern lighting and plumbing fixtures, as well as additional storage.

One of the most popular paneling products for bathrooms enables the homeowner to plan almost any type of decor. Plastic-finished Marlite paneling is available at local lumber dealers incontemporary colors, handsome woodgrains, and eye-catching patterns.

This durable paneling never needs painting; can be put up right over old walls. Washable Marlite can be used in the tub-shower area because it is resistant to heat, moisture and hard wear.

Plastic-finished hardboard also comes in easy-to-handle ceiling blocks. These can be chosen to match or contrast with the overall decor. With these improvements, your bathroom will be in step with the times.

For Wants Ads — Dial 632-4641.

Home Building To Continue At Same Level

Home building activity in 1965 should continue at approximately the same level as this year — at about 1,525,000 new starts.

The number of multifamily units probably will decline slightly from 1964's mark. Single family building starts, however, are expected to rise somewhat to something more than the 1 million level.

Land, labor, and development costs again are expected to be higher in the new year.

An anticipated proposal by President Johnnon to create a department of housing and community development will be one of the more significant developments in the housing industry in many years.

The NAHB supports creation of such a cabinet post provided that primary importance is placed on housing in such a dpartment and that the functions of FHA and the Federal National Mortgage Association are transferred intact to it.

In the coming year, we shall see more concerted efforts by NAHB and its almost 44,000 members to house the lower income families of the nation and to create a better environemnt in which to live.

We have already established communication with recognized experts — sociologists, architects, planners, psychiatrists, clergymen, philosophers — in every facet of community life with the view toward serving as a catalyst in developing programs to improve the quality of living.

This was done at the Interdisciplinary Conference on Environmental Design held in the National Housing Center, Washington, D. C., in November. Further meetings are planned to establish working programs.

Hydronic Heat Provides Top Home Warmth

When you come right down to it, what's a heating system for? Isn't it to make you warm and comfortable inside when it's cold and uncomfortable outside?

The principle sounds simple enough, but it takes more than the use of some heat to make it work. A combination of both convected and radiant warmth must be supplied to keep the body heat losses balanced, and that's the secret of the whole matter. The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau reports that hydronic heat delivers both kinds.

Hydronic (circulated hot water) heat fills the home with even, constant warmth, and offers maximum flexibility. A hydronic system can be directed where you want it, in any quantity needed, at just the right temperature to maintain comfort.

The entire room is comfortable living area, with barely a difference in temperature between floor and ceiling, outside and inside walls. It permits complete freedom of decorating and arrangement of furniture, with no "off limits" areas due to obtrusive heat distributors.

And the heat you get is clean and gentle — no dirt and dust comes through the system. Odors and gasses cannot be circulated. Low air velocities help keep drapes and walls clean.

Best of all, you get long range economy when you install hydronic heating. Cast iron boilers will outlast other heating plants up to two and one half times. Cast iron is highly resistant to rust and corrosion, and the heat absorbing surfaces of the boiler are water-backed so that neither flame nor hot gasses can distort or destroy the surfaces.

A Tall House Is Aided by Horizontals

Does your house have the too-tall look? Does it stand up on the lot like the jolly green giant?

This effect can occur when a two-story house is built in an area mainly populated by ranch-style homes, or just when a big house is built to accommodate a big family. But there is a solution—the introduction of horizontal lines which can do much to cut the house down to eye-pleasing proportions.

The best place to look for potential horizontals is around the front door. Working here, you can not only accomplish your prime objective, but also create an exterior entrance area of importance.

Begin by laying out an area that would correspond to a large porch. It should run about half the front of the house and be slightly off-center. Outline, but don't enclose, this area with simply styled low screens and you'll have gotten the project well under way.

Only two screens are actually needed. One should lie parallel to the house walls at the front edge of the entrance area. The other can be at right angles and situated at the opposite end from the front door. It is not necessary to join them, and is usually more pleasing to the eye if there is space between, where the walk can come up, then turn over to the door.

The screens should be crisp but not ordinary. For one good pattern, begin with the standard framework of Douglas fir 4x4 posts and 2x4 stringers. Then set 1x4 inch fir boards narrow edge out between the stringers. They should be spaced evenly to correspond to the thickness of the exposed edge. An easy way to do it is to use even length pieces of 1x4 as spacer blocks top and bottom.

The pattern can be varied with handsome effect by using 1x2 inch boards narrow edge out They should be set between horizontal 1x2s with a 2x4 used as a finishing cap board and bottom rail.

If the house siding is stained a natural wood tone or one of the new and lovely bronzed greens, it's a good idea to paint the screens the same shade rather than to try to introduce an accent color. For a traditionally styled home, the screens can pick up the trim color successfully.

The project is completed with a front walk that circles up through the entrance area and with appropriate plantings.

TODAY'S HOME DIFFERENT

The average new home built today differs considerably from those built even a few years ago, Anaconda home specialists point out. Today's home, they report, has 20 per cent more floor area, 10 per cent more rooms, an additional bathroom, more insulation and is much more likely to contain all-copper plumbing, including water lines and drainage systems.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Surface Evidence

All of us use our perceptive and conceptual facilities to evaluate. This is inevitable. We must and we do discriminate, which is to say that we constantly weigh the relative merits of various courses of action and the relative merits of persons we know.

But a persistent weakness, to which many of us succumb all unknowingly, is the tendency we have to weigh merit on the basis of surface evidence. Even the courts have found, through long experience, that circumstantial evidence is frequently a poor device by means of which to determine what has actually transpired.

We recall an instance which happened to ye editor personally.

It happens that we do a considerable amount of reading. Our custom is to have about three books going at a time. We have three places where we usually perform this exercise: we have a book we are reading at the office; another book we are reading, in our study; a third book, beside the bed. Often, these books are on different subjects and a shifting from one book to another as time and opportunity offer, keeps us interested and engrossed in all three.

With the passing of time, we tend to accumulate a stack of books, both read and unread. When the stack reaches top-heavy proportions we take the ones we have read back to their places on the shelves and redistribute the ones not read. Then we go at it again.

On one occasion, we had just made such an adjustment. Books we had read were returned. And it so happened that some of the books we had taken from their rightful places, we had decided not to read at all, so we returned them, too. The result was that our supply of reading matter, at that moment, was all safely tucked away and we were without a book in evidence. It was at this point that a friend, deeply interested in our reading habits, paid us a personal visit.

He took one look at the evidence (no books visible) and turned to us appalled. "I guess you really don't read very much, after all."

The matter was essentially unimportant and we shrugged it off. But ever since that moment, this friend has treated us with a kind of superiority.

Obviously, our reading habits were all a pretense. We never bothered to look at a book. Factually, we don't read as much as we would like to. But certainly the appearance at that moment did not reflect the reality.

Our friend, in this case, was guilty of making an evaluation on surface evidence. And knowing this, it would be easy to influence him by convincing him (on staged surface evidence) that we were a profound scholar. . .which we are not. All we would have to do, in the event of a new visit, would be to surround ourselves with learned tomes and the evidence would be overwhelmingly the other way.

This paltry illustration will serve as well as any other.

We know of an instance where a party who never touches liquor permitted a friend to store a number of bottles of wine in her refrigerator. Her mother, on a visit, opened the refrigerator and saw the wine. The lady has never been able to regain the respect of her maternal parent.

This is the kind of surface evaluation that goes on constantly and creates many unnecessary problems. People live their lives under various forms of pressure. Theirs is not a static condition in which they seek to create an impression one way or another. They simply perform in the way that seems feasible and realistic under the circumstances. Naturally, a man of integrity does not violate his principles. It would be a violation of principle were he to pose, to set himself up with a good stage setting and pretend to be something that he is not.

Obviously, a real friend sees beneath the surface exterior. He does not judge on the basis of surface evidence but sees beneath it to the real qualities of character, good or bad, that a person may have.

Also, it is true that a confidence man uses the surface method to create false impressions and to win support from those who are incapable or unwilling to look beneath the surface.

In this respect, government is perhaps the worst offender of the lot. For government specializes in creating the impression that it is operating for our best interests.

In point of fact, this is all a matter of building up false confidence. Government serves itself, but tries through its various agencies to convince us that it is really serving us. If we begin seeing through all this false show, we will have a distinct awakening to reality.

What You're Worth

An accurate view of your own worth is probably unattainable.

Facing Up to Automation

There has been a great deal said about automation. . . its promise and its threat. Labor unions and government officials, notably weak on economic understanding, view automation as partially desirable, provided it can be controlled and limited. Politicians are prone to view automation as having already eliminated so many jobs that government must embark on huge make-work programs. Labor bosses view automation as a justification for wage raises and fringe benefits.

But the men who know most about automation, the men of the management team, have been notably quiet in this area. Speaking out, now, is one of the foremost, president of Continental Can Company, Ellison L. Hazard. Mr. Hazard addressed the Executives Club of Chicago and extracts from this address were published in Management's Magazine called, "News Front." We quote from this latter source:

"The real danger in automation does not lie in reduced employment. No, the real danger, as I see it, is this: We are approaching the rich rewards of automation like Damocles approaching the banquet of Dionysius — with a two-edged sword hanging over us by a hair. The sword is the real danger in automation.

"One edge of the sword is the danger of automation controls, forced upon us by labor unions or government — controls which could be injurious to both employment and for economy generally. The other edge of the sword is the danger of inaction by business and management in meeting its full responsibility in the automation process.

"Let's look at the first sword edge — automation controls. This danger may be closer than we think! Under current legislation, a high level Federal Commission will soon start to study automation. . .(with the obvious view of regulating automated industry, and possibly regulating industries which consider moving into further automation).

"Now, what about the other edge of that sword of Damocles hanging over us? This edge, as I said, is the danger that private enterprise may not assume its full responsibility in the automation process.

"We in industry have been inarticulate. This must change! We have been our own worst enemies. Improving our technology and productive power, trying to keep our industries competitive with the rapidly automating industries of other nations is not enough. We have permitted the 'free riders' on private enterprise to sabotage our objectives with a flood of propaganda based on half-truths and worse."

Then Mr. Hazard goes on to list several of the myths concerning automation which myths have been largely accepted by a gullible public as being factual: the myth that automation has to be controlled; the myth that jobs have to be created; the myth that it is labor alone that increases productivity and is thus the only segment of the economy deserving a reward as a result of automation.

Striking at these myths in turn, Mr. Hazard shows that automation can be used as a major contributor to the economy only if its development is managed by those who understand it, the management team. That is to say, neither government nor labor unions understand automation; are not prepared to pay for it; and continually misinterpret its effects.

On the question of creating jobs, Mr. Hazard brings out the point very rarely made: that there are more jobs that need doing in this world than there are men capable of doing them. He says, succinctly: "We should not talk about the necessity of 'creating jobs' — we should talk about the necessity of having a free working economy so that jobs will continue to expand faster than the population."

Finally, on the question of labor's effort as the sole contributing factor to productivity, the president of Continental Can states flatly that 90 per cent of the gains in productivity in the past 50 years have come from improvements in technology and hardware. Workers are working fewer hours and exerting less energy and productivity improves because of improved tools, not because of improved output per man qua man.

"Since 1850," says Hazard, "the population of the U.S. has grown about 8 times, jobs have increased more than 8½ times and goods and services 75 times."

Our real improvement thus comes from improved tools including automation.

FIGHT TB

To the Editor:

Not very many parts of today's mathematical computer can be taken away without stopping the wonderful machine in its tracks.

The same is true with the organization which is fighting tuberculosis throughout the world, the U.S. and particularly in El Paso County.

The TB Association is probably best known for its work in testing to discover TB and other respiratory diseases; throughout its many years the accent has been on discovery of TB.

But there is a great deal more to the TB fight than tests, just as with the computer which must have all its parts to function effectively.

Such things as social status have been found to make a great difference on the prevalence of TB. "The Bulletin" of the National TB Association reports that "even though there is evidence that improved social and economic conditions are. . . important in reduction of TB, the fight against TB need not wait on the slow economic improvements over the nation." In other words, respiratory specialists believe that it can be licked in the same way that typhoid was beaten — stamp out the germ, but don't wait for other conditions to improve, because work, not hope alone, is what is needed.

Other TB challenges include treatment — trying to get every TB patient on proper drug treatment for two years. . .case finding, or discovery of those who have it but don't know it. . . health education. . .and research to determine causes of respiratory disease which can lead to cures.

The above helps to explain how Christmas Seal dollars are spent, and why more are so badly needed. Help should be sent to the TB Association.

BIG DADDY

To the Editor:

There is, in this United States of America, one person to whom no other title could most suitably apply. Big Daddy does not believe that all human success depends on the individual — he believes rather that all human success now depends on the politicians. Financially and economically, nobody is too big and nobody too small, nobody too free and nobody too subject to slavery not to need his help. He will be all things to all men; but particularly, he, with his politician friends, will be the force which saves us all. With every second word, he speaks of freedom; with every paternalistic act, the chains of tyranny are forged more closely. He asks, "What freedom is being lost?" The answer lies in all the learnings of history, from all the previous tyrannical societies of the world.

Big Daddy says he and his politician friends are going to make us more free; but when his system is more fully applied, finally no person will be able to do anything of importance without his advice and consent. And this consent will not be given on an equal basis, as with their present manipulations, some will be much more favored than others. Of course we will agree that his intent mostly is good — that in reality he does mostly believe the philosophy which he follows; we must just disagree with his lack of comprehension as to what freedom is all about. He proposes to reduce taxation and to spend on more arbitrary programs; he proposes vastly to enlarge the scope of government action and yet to balance the budget; he proposes to make the individual free while at the same time subjecting him as a victim to the goon police of extra-legal organizations; he proposes to institute economic justice in this nation, while at the same time to prevent, or at least ignore, the political-economic manipulations, and resort to taking the Fifth Amendment, by his proteges and followers to cover their own shady deals. All of these things simply cannot be done. He wants to save us all; but I fear that he does not understand what salvation exactly is made of.

Salvation consists of the free man, free from the dictation by others as to what he shall or shall not do, subject to an impartial enforcement from some effective source to maintain the free condition.

And the prosperity, the economic salvation, which Big Daddy wants to obtain, will not come from arbitrary dealings and manipulations — it will come from the individual, free to engage in the economic activity of his choice on an equal basis, and motivated by his own most desirable capacity. The Russians finally are beginning to learn this; and it begins to appear that Big Daddy and his politician friends may have to go the circuit and then learn from them.

GREATNESS

To the Editor:

Most of us, especially in recent years, have grown to maturity thinking that we need hundreds of dollars per month income before we or our families have the necessary means for living a normal life. Of course, in our present industrialized civilization, in which superficial wants are often considered to be more important than essential needs, there is seemingly a necessity for more and more money, even to the extent of contracting debts for what is desired while lacking in what is needed for a healthful and sustaining life.

What is meant by a great society as mentioned by the President in his state of the nation message last night is not entirely clear. Great societies have existed since the world began — at least they considered themselves to be great. It happens that greatness has no application to society as such, for the sum total of human effort is like a concrete foundation with pockets of wood shavings, ready to topple its superstructure the greater it becomes as mankind calls greatness.

Certainly, we Americans have the intelligence to know that the adjective great is to be used in relation to definite personalities. When the child prays, "God is great, God is good, let us thank Him for our food," it has a real meaning; for God is a personal being. When the Lord told a woman who persisted in a request from Him, "Great is thy faith —that was real greatness.

It is to be questioned whether personal, social or national greatness is dependent upon multiplying public educational institutions, or extensive human inventiveness, or rocking peacefully in a crater on the moon, or to exceed former records of speed, or to build higher towers into the heavens. Often, greatness is no more than an extended chest with weak knees.

Greatness is a part of every society insofar as the individual person receives inspiration to have a vision greater than his own human limitations. The ability to recognize and to interpret whatever is necessary for physical growth and spiritual strength is living in the way of greatness. Applying this ability is the sum total of all greatness.

We human beings are individual personalities with definite needs — a house in which to live, a food garden to nourish our bodies, a revelation from God for communion with our Creator, an adequate education to be able to adjust ourselves to our associations and to our natural environment. To have what our President calls a great society, it is to be found inherent in the individual citizen to the extent each is willing to supply his own essential needs without indebtedness as guided by the laws and promises of our Lord. When each citizen possesses a good measure of bodily health, working to supply nourishment needed to maintain a strong body, a sound mind and a noble spirit, each will be contributing to personal greatness which will penetrate into every avenue of our nation and of the world.

The Poor Pound Sterling

By RUSSELL KIRK

All signs suggest that the Labor government will be forced to devaluate the British pound. In Zurich, the hardheaded Swiss bankers who helped to save the pound's value on November 25, see the writing on the wall.

Though nowadays the British press calls these bankers "the faceless men of Zurich," in fact these gentlemen are easy to know and talk with. I have spent time with some of them in the old guildhalls along the river in Zurich buildings that nowadays are good, expensive restaurants. They are goodnatured realists who expect that Socialist policies will make British prices higher and British money less reliable — and therefore will lead to devaluation of the pound.

According to the December economic notes of the Union Bank of Switzerland, investors and bankers do not rely upon the pound, for two principal reasons: first, the Wilson government's 15-per-cent surcharge upon imports, which only delays devaluation at the expense of international agreements; second, the grand designs of the Labor party, including nationalization. Confidence cannot be reestablished, the Union Bank analysts say, by "a program which foresees wage increases, a 4-per-cent growth rate, a vast state plan of housing construction, and the use of several thousands of millions in nationalizing the steel industry — at the same time as monetary stabilization."

Although British productivity has not increased since Mr. Harold Wilson became prime minister, wages are increasing startlingly. Last month, the British railway unions won wage raises ranging from 9 to 4-per-cent — 9-per-cent for most categories. Yet the nationalized British Railways is a decaying industry, operating at a loss and curtailing services. The result of this wage-bill must be a marked increase in costs of transportation — which will be reflected in higher prices of British goods, and therefore will make British competition in world markets still more difficult.

Devaluation of sterling would make British goods cheaper in foreign markets, and so, initially, would stimulate the export trade by which Britian subsists. But also devaluation would mean that British manufacturers and merchants — and wage-earners — would be paid less per unit exported. Britain thus could continue her present scale of domestic expenditure, public and private, only by working harder.

And, now accustomed to the benefits of a welfare state, most British people are disposed toward working less, not more. A post office employee informed me that during the Christmas rush, in many British towns, the bulk of the day's work could have been finished by noon. Instead, it was spun out until 8:30 most evenings, through the procrastination of postal clerks and sorters who wanted to earn a 50 per cent bonus for overtime. This is one small example of the public smugness that brings devaluation of the pound nearer and nearer.

The Hard Rock Poet

Rhyme - and Reason

By RUFUS L. PORTER

The whims of fate so often
are perverse;
The winds of chance are seldom
ever kind;
The element of luck is even worse,
And playing hunches seldom
pays, I find.
A rabbit's foot has never brought me luck,
Nor has a horse-shoe hanging
overhead.
And wishing never has won
me a buck,
I've always had to earn my daily bread.
The whims of fate I early
learned to scorn;
Upon the winds of chance I
don't rely.
And "lucky omens" are the purest corn
That men have ever hoped to profit by.
Hard work and know-how were,
as I recall,
The only things that brought
me luck at all.

Sure, I believe in luck. But I believe it is more apt to find one who is avidly seeking it than one who merely waits for it to search him out. And the way to seek it is to work at the top of your ability at whatever job you happen to have. Then, if you make good, your friends will say, "The lucky so-and-so," proudly. And your enemies will say, "What did he ever do to deserve it?"

Luck consists of being "at the right place at the right time." And the lightning isn't so apt to strike you if you crawl under the bed every time you hear thunder.

The present deteriorating condition of the world's finances furnishes ample proof of the folly of permitting governments to control the monies of the various nations. Money belongs in the free market along with all other commodities.

If governments were not allowed to monopolize, manipulate, control, juggle and devalue currency, the world would have little trouble in maintaining a sound financial foundation to support its commercial enterprises. The prices of gold and silver, the bases of all monetary programs, would fluctuate in the market place as do the prices of other commodities. And at the present time, if released from controls, the trend would be sharply upward, so that more of these metals would be mined to meet the rising demands.

Whenever a government has a monopoly on the money supply, it sooner or later gets into difficulties from which it can only extricate itself by wrecking the economy of the nation via the fiat money route. By the inflation route a government can "save" itself by ruining all its citizens. This has happened time after time in history. It is happening today in England and a dozen other "free" nations, including our own beloved U.S.A.

And the solution offered to solve the complicated money problem is the same old one of devaluation of currency, either openly as happened in England during the first labor government and is about to happen again under the present one, or surreptitiously, as our own government is doing, by printing more and more unredeemable paper money.

Silver and gold, what are they? Merely metals that have an intrinsic value of their own which makes them acceptable to everybody everywhere in exchange for goods and services. What man is fool enough to trade a carload of wheat or potatoes for a pocketful of paper that is worth less per pound than the commodity offered? If we go off gold and silver completely, as our "leaders" are planning, it won't be too long before we will need a carload of paper money to trade for a carload of potatoes. Or maybe even more, because the price of other commodities will keep rising as more worthless paper money floods the market.

Maybe we "never had it so good," but we never had it so bad as we're going to have it if we don't get back to sound money shortly.

Adam Lyre says: Only the intelligent appreciate intelligence. And, by the same token, only the ignorant appreciate ignorance. That is why there is more appreciation of ignorance in the world than there is of intelligence.

Nation's Press

They Sound Nice, But Are They?

From Savannah (Ga.)
Morning News

The visionaries are talking up a couple of ideas these days that sound nice, but are they? One is the concept of a "right" to an income and the other is a guaranteed lifetime job security. If we know some of the demagogues, you can be sure you will hear a lot more of these two proposals.

The "right" to an income presumes that "society," or rather the hard-working members of it, owes everybody a minimum living, whether he works or not. This is outside of the question of physical ability or impairment. The trouble with this line of thinking is that any guaranteed income must be made up from parts of other men's earned incomes.

One politician puts it this way. "The people of Appalachia have as much right to prosperity as those in Westchester County," a well-heeled suburb of New York. That sounds nice, but it happens that most of those who live in Westchester County worked hard, earned money and then moved into a pleasant neighborhood to raise their families. We will be in sorry shape if we ever disconnect effort and reward. A guaranteed income would do just that.

Jobs guaranteed for life is another fine-sounding brainstorm until it is realized that a company cannot even guarantee its own continuance. Some firms which employed thousands a few years ago are no longer with us today. Companies which ranked in the hundred largest in the nation a working-lifetime ago are now insignificant.

Any company which cannot reduce its payroll in time of distress risks every job to every worker it hires. A company which could hire only for a lifetime would hire as few as possible. All of this is outside the scope of competition. When the time comes that a company cannot secure the talents of a better man or rid itself of a worker who might purposely slacken his output knowing his job is still secure, we can expect to see a decrease in quality of produce and reduction in advancement.

Both plans, and similar ones, are advanced in the name of security but there is no security in them. Security is diminished when work and ability is not the standard for pay and when flexibility to meet developments is denied to those who must meet them.

The American Way

Production - Not Politics

By HARRY BROWNE

Here it is — 1965. And now we've heard all the predictions of what the new year will bring. "Such and such" a bill will be passed by Congress — the President will probably do "thus and so."

Why must the future be analyzed in terms of what politicians will do? Is this where our prosperity lies? Let's analyze it:

Some people are hoping the "Medicare" bill will be passed by Congress. Why? Because they're hoping to get medical insurance at a lower cost than their circumstances warrant. If this weren't the case, they'd buy the insurance they want from private companies.

But how can they get a lower rate through the "Medicare" bill? The answer, of course, is that other people will pay to make up the difference. So this prosperity will be achieved at another person's expense.

Others are hoping the "War on Poverty" bill or the Area Redevelopment Act will bring them subsidies or low-cost loans. How will they get them? Of course, someone else will pay for them.

GRAB BAG

So, through politics, we have a giant free-for-all as everyone tries to get "their share" of the plunder. But all it amounts to is a redistribution of the present property.

Now let's look at it from another angle. Suppose, during 1965, the Allen-Bradley Co. develops a new labor-saving machine tool. And suppose this tool makes it possible for a working man to produce 20 per cent more products in the same amount of time. This will make it possible to increase the total amount of property.

Or suppose General Motors innovates a newer, less expensive way to produce automobiles. This will make it possible for more people to own cars and increase the wealth of society.

PROSPERITY

General Electric, Westinghouse, American T & T (and the millions of companies like them) produce prosperity. It is the creative talent and labor of every working man in society that produces wealth. Through this avenue, the total property in existence continues to increase.

But politics is simply a game of "take what you can from someone else." Property is never increased by political action — it is only redistributed.

If you want more for yourself, look to production as the key. Produce more in your own job — and help to set a societal climate in which others can produce more (this helps you). Through free enterprise production, you'll have more medical care, more labor-saving devices, more luxuries, better food — more of everything.

When the politician no longer controls our economic lives, we will all be free to produce more — and have more!

QUICK QUIZ

Q.—What is the dragon tree?

A—An ancient tree, native to the Canary Islands, with dark red resin called dragon's blood. It resembles a mushroom in shape.

Q—On what kind of trees does mistletoe grow?

A—It prefers members of the pine family, but occasionally grows on oak, sycamore and mesquite.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Surface Evidence

All of us use our perceptive and conceptual facilities to evaluate. This is inevitable. We must and we do discriminate, which is to say that we constantly weigh the relative merits of various courses of action and the relative merits of persons we know.

But a persistent weakness, to which many of us succumb all unknowingly, is the tendency we have to weigh merit on the basis of surface evidence. Even the courts have found, through long experience, that circumstantial evidence is frequently a poor device by means of which to determine what has actually transpired.

We recall an instance which happened to ye editor personally.

It happens that we do a considerable amount of reading. Our custom is to have about three books going at a time. We have three places where we usually perform this exercise: we have a book we are reading at the office; another book we are reading, in our study; a third book, beside the bed. Often, these books are on different subjects and a shifting from one book to another as time and opportunity offer, keeps us interested and engrossed in all three.

With the passing of time, we tend to accumulate a stack of books, both read and unread. When the stack reaches top-heavy proportions we take the ones we have read back to their places on the shelves and redistribute the ones not read. Then we go at it again.

On one occasion, we had just made such an adjustment. Books we had read were returned. And it so happened that some of the books we had taken from their rightful places, we had decided not to read at all, so we returned them, too. The result was that our supply of reading matter, at that moment, was all safely tucked away and we were without a book in evidence. It was at this point that a friend, deeply interested in our reading habits, paid us a personal visit.

He took one look at the evidence (no books visible) and turned to us appalled. "I guess you really don't read very much, after all."

The matter was essentially unimportant and we shrugged it off. But ever since that moment, this friend has treated us with a kind of superiority.

Obviously, our reading habits were all a pretense. We never bothered to look at a book. Factually, we don't read as much as we would like to. But certainly the appearance at that moment did not reflect the reality.

Our friend, in this case, was guilty of making an evaluation on surface evidence. And knowing this, it would be easy to influence him by convincing him (on staged surface evidence) that we were a profound scholar. . .which we are not. All we would have to do, in the event of a new visit, would be to surround ourselves with learned tomes and the evidence would be overwhelmingly the other way.

This paltry illustration will serve as well as any other.

We know of an instance where a party who never touches liquor permitted a friend to store a number of bottles of wine in her refrigerator. Her mother, on a visit, opened the refrigerator and saw the wine. The lady has never been able to regain the respect of her maternal parent.

This is the kind of surface evaluation that goes on constantly and creates many unnecessary problems. People live their lives under various forms of pressure. Theirs is not a static condition in which they seek to create an impression one way or another. They simply perform in the way that seems feasible and realistic under the circumstances. Naturally, a man of integrity does not violate his principles. It would be a violation of principle were he to pose, to set himself up with a good stage setting and pretend to be something that he is not.

Obviously, a real friend sees beneath the surface exterior. He does not judge on the basis of surface evidence but sees beneath it to the real qualities of character, good or bad, that a person may have.

Also, it is true that a confidence man uses the surface method to create false impressions and to win support from those who are incapable or unwilling to look beneath the surface.

In this respect, government is perhaps the worst offender of the lot. For government specializes in creating the impression that it is operating for our best interests.

In point of fact, this is all a matter of building up false confidence. Government serves itself, but tries through its various agencies to convince us that it is really serving us. If we begin seeing through all this false show, we will have a distinct awakening to reality.

"The real danger in automation does not lie in reduced employment. No, the real danger, as I see it, is this: We are approaching the rich rewards of automation like Damocles approaching the banquet of Dionysius — with a two-edged sword hanging over us by a hair. The sword is the real danger in automation.

"One edge of the sword is the danger of automation controls, forced upon us by labor unions or government — controls which could be injurious to both employment and for economy generally. We have permitted the 'free riders' on private enterprise to sabotage our objectives with a flood of propaganda based on half-truths and worse."

Then Mr. Hazard goes on to list several of the myths concerning automation which myths have been largely accepted by a gullible public as being factual: the myth that automation has to be controlled; the myth that jobs have to be created; the myth that it is labor alone that increases productivity and is thus the only segment of the economy deserving a reward as a result of automation.

Striking at these myths in turn, Mr. Hazard shows that automation can be used as a major contributor to the economy only if its development is managed by those who understand it, the management team. That is to say, neither government nor labor unions understand automation; are not prepared to pay for it; and continually misinterpret its effects.

On the question of creating jobs, Mr. Hazard brings out the point very rarely made: that there are more jobs that need doing in this world than there are men capable of doing them. He says, succinctly: "We should not talk about the necessity of 'creating jobs' — we should talk about the necessity of having a free working economy so that jobs will continue to expand faster than the population."

Finally, on the question of labor's effort as the sole contributing factor to productivity, the president of Continental Can states flatly that 90 per cent of the gains in productivity in the past 50 years have come from improvements in technology and hardware. Workers are working fewer hours and exerting less energy and productivity improves because of improved tools, not because of improved output per man qua man.

"Since 1850," says Hazard, "the population of the U.S. has grown about 8 times, jobs have increased more than 8½ times and goods and services 75 times."

Our real improvement thus comes from improved tools including automation.

The TB Association is probably best known for its work in testing to discover TB and other respiratory diseases; throughout its many years the accent has been on discovery of TB.

But there is a great deal more to the TB fight than tests, just as with the computer which must have all its parts to function effectively.

Such things as social status have been found to make a great difference on the prevalence of TB. "The Bulletin" of the National TB Association reports that "even though there is evidence that improved social and economic conditions are . . important in reduction of TB, the fight against TB need not wait on the slow economic improvements over the nation." In other words, respiratory specialists believe that it can be licked in the same way that typhoid was beaten — stamp out the germ, but don't wait for other conditions to improve, because work, not hope alone, is what is needed.

Other TB challenges include treatment — trying to get every TB patient on proper drug treatment for two years. . .case finding, or discovery of those who have it but don't know it. . . health education. . .and research to determine causes of respiratory disease which can lead to cures.

The above helps to explain how Christmas Seal dollars are spent, and why more are so badly needed. Help should be sent to the TB Association.

BIG DADDY

To the Editor:

There is, in this United States of America, one person to whom no other title could most suitably apply. Big Daddy does not believe that all human success depends on the individual — he believes rather that all human success now depends on the politicians. Financially and economically, nobody is too big and nobody too small, nobody too free and nobody too subject to slavery not to need his help. He will be all things to all men; but particularly, he, with his politician friends, will be the force which saves us all. With every second word, he speaks of freedom; with every paternalistic act, the chains of tyranny are forged more closely. He asks, "What freedom is being lost?" The answer lies in all the learnings of history, from all the previous tyrannical societies of the world.

Big Daddy says he and his politician friends are going to make us more free; but when his system is more fully applied, finally no person will be able to do anything of importance without his advice and consent. And this consent will not be given on an equal basis, as with their present manipulations, some will be much more favored than others. Of course we will agree that his intent mostly is good — that in reality he does mostly believe the philosophy which he follows; we must just disagree with his lack of comprehension as to what freedom is all about. He proposes to reduce taxation and to spend on more arbitrary programs; he proposes vastly to enlarge the scope of government action and yet to balance the budget; he proposes to make the individual free while at the same time subjecting him as a victim to the goon police of extra-legal organizations; he proposes to institute economic justice in this nation, while at the same time to prevent, or at least ignore, the political-economic manipulations, and resort to taking the Fifth Amendment, by his proteges and followers to cover their own shady deals. All of these things simply cannot be done. He wants to save us all; but I fear that he does not understand what salvation exactly is made of.

Salvation consists of the free man, free from the dictation by others as to what he shall or shall not do, subject to an impartial enforcement from some effective source to maintain the free condition.

And the prosperity, the economic salvation, which Big Daddy wants to obtain, will not come from arbitrary dealings and manipulations — it will come from the individual, free to engage in the economic activity of his choice on an equal basis, and motivated by his own most desirable capacity. The Russians finally are beginning to learn this; and it begins to appear that Big Daddy and his politician friends may have to go the circuit and then learn from them.

To the Editor:

Most of us, especially in recent years, have grown to maturity thinking that we need hundreds of dollars per month income before we or our families have the necessary means for living a normal life. Of course, in our present industrialized civilization, in which superficial wants are often considered to be more important than essential needs, there is seemingly a necessity for more and more money, even to the extent of contracting debts for what is desired while lacking in what is needed for a healthful and sustaining life.

What is meant by a great society as mentioned by the President in his state of the nation message last night is not entirely clear. Great societies have existed since the world began — at least they considered themselves to be great. It happens that greatness has no application to society as such, for the sum total of human effort is like a concrete foundation with pockets of wood shavings, ready to topple its superstructure the greater it becomes as mankind calls greatness.

Certainly, we Americans have the intelligence to know that the adjective great is to be used in relation to definite personalities. When the child prays, "God is great, God is good, let us thank Him for our food," it has a real meaning; for God is a personal being. When the Lord told a woman who persisted in a request from Him, "Great is thy faith —that was real greatness.

It is to be questioned whether personal, social or national greatness is dependent upon multiplying public educational institutions, or extensive human inventiveness, or rocking peacefully in a crater on the moon, or to exceed former records of speed, or to build higher towers into the heavens. Often, greatness is no more than an extended chest with weak knees.

Greatness is a part of every society insofar as the individual person receives inspiration to have a vision greater than his own human limitations. The ability to recognize and to interpret whatever is necessary for physical growth and spiritual strength is living in the way of greatness. Applying this ability is the sum total of all greatness.

We human beings are individual personalities with definite needs — a house in which to live, a food garden to nourish our bodies, a revelation from God for communion with our Creator, an adequate education to be able to adjust ourselves to our associations and to our natural environment. To have what our President calls a great society, it is to be found inherent in the individual citizen to the extent each is willing to supply his own essential needs without indebtedness as guided by the laws and promises of our Lord. When each citizen possesses a good measure of bodily health, working to supply nourishment needed to maintain a strong body, a sound mind and a noble spirit, each will be contributing to personal greatness which will penetrate into every avenue of our nation and of the world.

The Poor Pound Sterling

By RUSSELL KIRK

All signs suggest that the Labor government will be forced to devaluate the British pound. In Zurich, the hardheaded Swiss bankers who helped to save the pound's value on November 25, see the writing on the wall.

Though nowadays the British press calls these bankers "the faceless men of Zurich," in fact these gentlemen are easy to know and talk with. I have spent time with some of them in the old guildhalls along the river in Zurich buildings that nowadays are good, expensive restaurants. They are goodnatured realists who expect that Socialist policies will make British prices higher and British money less reliable — and therefore will lead to devaluation of the pound.

According to the December economic notes of the Union Bank of Switzerland, investors and bankers do not rely upon the pound, for two principal reasons: first, the Wilson government's 15-per-cent surcharge upon imports, which only delays devaluation at the expense of international agreements; second, the grand designs of the Labor party, including nationalization. Confidence cannot be re-established, the Union Bank analysts say, by "a program which foresees wage increases, a 4-per-cent growth rate, a vast state plan of housing construction, and the use of several thousands of millions in nationalizing the steel industry — at the same time as monetary stabilization."

Although British productivity has not increased since Mr. Harold Wilson became prime minister, wages are increasing startlingly. Last month, the British railway unions won wage raises ranging from 9 to 4-per-cent — 9-per-cent for most categories. Yet the nationalized British Railways is a decaying industry, operating at a loss and curtailing services. The result of this wage-bill must be a marked increase in costs of transportation — which will be reflected in higher prices of British goods, and therefore will make British competition in world markets still more difficult.

Devaluation of sterling would make British goods cheaper in foreign markets, and so, initially, would stimulate the export trade by which Britian subsists. But also devaluation would mean that British manufacturers and merchants — and wage-earners — would be paid less per unit exported. Britain thus could continue her present scale of domestic expenditure, public and private, only by working harder.

And, now accustomed to the benefits of a welfare state, most British people are disposed toward working less, not more. A post office employee informed me that during the Christmas rush, in many British towns, the bulk of the day's work could have been finished by noon. Instead, it was spun out until 8:30 most evenings, through the procrastination of postal clerks and sorters who wanted to earn a 50 per cent bonus for overtime. This is one small example of the public smugness that brings devaluation of the pound nearer and nearer.

The Hard Rock Poet

Rhyme - and Reason

By RUFUS L. PORTER

The whims of fate so often
are perverse;
The winds of chance are seldom
ever kind;
The element of luck is even worse,
And playing hunches seldom
pays, I find.
A rabbit's foot has never brought me luck,
Nor has a horse-shoe hanging
overhead.
And wishing never has won
me a buck,
I've always had to earn my
daily bread.
The whims of fate I early
learned to scorn;
Upon the winds of chance I
don't rely.
And "lucky omens" are the purest corn
That men have ever hoped to profit by.
Hard work and know-how were,
as I recall,
The only things that brought
me luck at all.

Sure, I believe in luck. But I believe it is more apt to find one who is avidly seeking it than one who merely waits for it to search him out. And the way to seek it is to work at the top of your ability at whatever job you happen to have. Then, if you make good, your friends will say, "The lucky so-and-so," proudly. And your enemies will say, "What did he ever do to deserve it?"

Luck consists of being "at the right place at the right time." And the lightning isn't so apt to strike you if you crawl under the bed every time you hear thunder.

The present deteriorating condition of the world's finances furnishes ample proof of the folly of permitting governments to control the monies of the various nations. Money belongs in the free market along with all other commodities.

If governments were not allowed to monopolize, manipulate, control, juggle and devalue currency, the world would have little trouble in maintaining a sound financial foundation to support its commercial enterprises. The prices of gold and silver, the bases of all monetary programs, would fluctuate in the market place as do the prices of other commodities. And at the present time, if released from controls, the trend would be sharply upward, so that more of these metals would be mined to meet the rising demands.

Whenever a government has a monopoly on the money supply, it sooner or later gets into difficulties from which it can only extricate itself by wrecking the economy of the nation via the fiat money route. By the inflation route a government can "save" itself by ruining all its citizens. This has happened time after time in history. It is happening today in England and a dozen other "free" nations, including our own beloved U.S.A.

And the solution offered to solve the complicated money problem is the same old one of devaluation of currency, either openly as happened in England during the first labor government and is about to happen again under the present one, or surreptitiously, as our own government is doing, by printing more and more unredeemable paper money.

Silver and gold, what are they? Merely metals that have an intrinsic value of their own which makes them acceptable to everybody everywhere in exchange for goods and services. What man is fool enough to trade a carload of wheat or potatoes for a pocketful of paper that is worth less per pound than the commodity offered? If we go off gold and silver completely, as our "leaders" are planning, it won't be too long before we will need a carload of paper money to trade for a carload of potatoes. Or maybe even more, because the price of other commodities will keep rising as more worthless paper money floods the market.

Maybe we "never had it so good," but we never had it so bad as we're going to have it if we don't get back to sound money shortly.

Adam Lyre says: Only the intelligent appreciate intelligence. And, by the same token, only the ignorant appreciate ignorance. That is why there is more appreciation of ignorance in the world than there is of intelligence.

Nation's Press

They Sound Nice, But Are They?

From Savannah (Ga.) Morning News

The visionaries are talking up a couple of ideas these days that sound nice, but are they? One is the concept of a "right" to an income and the other is a guaranteed lifetime job security. If we know some of the demagogues, you can be sure you will hear a lot more of these two proposals.

The "right" to an income presumes that "society," or rather the hard-working members of it, owes everybody a minimum living, whether he works or not. This is outside of the question of physical ability or impairment. The trouble with this line of thinking is that any guaranteed income must be made up from parts of other men's earned incomes.

One politician puts it this way. "The people of Appalachia have as much right to prosperity as those in Westchester County," a well-heeled suburb of New York. That sounds nice, but it happens that most of those who live in Westchester County worked hard, earned money and then moved into a pleasant neighborhood to raise their families. We will be in sorry shape if we ever disconnect effort and reward. A guaranteed income would do just that.

Jobs guaranteed for life is another fine-sounding brainstorm until it is realized that a company cannot even guarantee its own continuance. Some firms which employed thousands a few years ago are no longer with us today. Companies which ranked in the hundred largest in the nation a working-lifetime ago are now insignificant.

Any company which cannot reduce its payroll in time of distress risks every job to every worker it hires. A company which could hire only for a lifetime would hire as few as possible. All of this is outside the scope of competition. When the time comes that a company cannot secure the talents of a better man or rid itself of a worker who might purposely slacken his output knowing his job is still secure, we can expect to see a decrease in quality of produce and reduction in advancement.

Both plans, and similar ones, are advanced in the name of security but there is no security in them. Security is diminished when work and ability is not the standard for pay and when flexibility to meet developments is denied to those who must meet them.

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE

Here it is — 1965. And now we've heard all the predictions of what the new year will bring. "Such and such" a bill will be passed by Congress — the President will probably do "thus and so."

Why must the future be analyzed in terms of what politicians will do? Is this where our prosperity lies? Let's analyze it:

Some people are hoping the "Medicare" bill will be passed by Congress. Why? Because they're hoping to get medical insurance at a lower cost than their circumstances warrant. If this weren't the case, they'd buy the insurance they want from private companies.

But how can they get a lower rate through the "Medicare" bill? The answer, of course, is that other people will pay to make up the difference. So this prosperity will be achieved at another person's expense.

Others are hoping the "War on Poverty" bill or the Area Redevelopment Act will bring them subsidies or low-cost loans. How will they get them? Of course, someone else will pay for them.

GRAB BAG

So, through politics, we have a giant free-for-all as everyone tries to get "their share" of the plunder. But all it amounts to is a redistribution of the present property.

Now let's look at it from another angle. Suppose, during 1965, the Allen-Bradley Co. develops a new labor-saving machine tool. And suppose this tool makes it possible for a working man to produce 20 per cent more products in the same amount of time. This will make it possible to increase the total amount of property.

Or suppose General Motors innovates a newer, less expensive way to produce automobiles. This will make it possible for more people to own cars and increase the wealth of society.

PROSPERITY

General Electric, Westinghouse, American T & T (and the millions of companies like them) produce prosperity. It is the creative talent and labor of every working man in society that produces wealth. Through this avenue, the total property in existence continues to increase.

But politics is simply a game of "take what you can from someone else." Property is never increased by political action — it is only redistributed.

If you want more for yourself, look to production as the key. Produce more in your own job — and help to set a societal climate in which others can produce more (this helps you). Through free enterprise production, you'll have more medical care, more labor-saving devices, more luxuries, better food — more of everything.

When the politician no longer controls our economic lives, we will all be free to produce more — and have more!

MY ANSWER

QUESTION: I hear you taking cracks at such pictures as "Tom Jones". Aren't such pictures true portrayals of life? Isn't such a story realistic? The Legion of Decency gave the go sign to the picture. I don't see why you make such a fuss about it. — I. F.

ANSWER: I'll grant you that the story of "Tom Jones" is a portrayal of sex and depravity. But is that any reason why it should be put on public display? Have we no shame about our immorality? Must we wash our dirty linen before the eyes of the world?

Speaking of realism, is there no other realism we could portray than the realism of the obscene? What about realism of the noble rather than the ignoble; the decent rather than the indecent; the beautiful rather than the ugly; the constructive rather than the destructive. I, and a lot of other Americans, are getting tired of certain people giving the impression to the world and through our films and our literature that we are a nation of degenerates. Granted, we are bad enough. But there is still an honor, beauty and decency among us that could make excellent story material. I know that the tastes of the world has been developed along lines of violence, sex and glamorization of vice. But I think that it is time that we changed all this. Does this answer your question?

QUESTION: What is predestination? Some say a person is predestined to heaven or hell at birth. I know that Jesus Christ is my Savior. In your opinion was I predestined to accept Christ as my Savior? —W. P.

ANSWER: The Bible says; "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness, but is longsuffering toward us, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." —(II Peter 3:8)

Unfortunately God has no power over the will of man. That is to say: he cannot save a person against his will, but at the same time, HE IS NOT WILLING THAT ANY SHOULD PERISH. He has made it possible for all men to be saved. But the Bible indicates that salvation depends upon man's willingness to be saved. It would be a kind of tyranny if God saved people against their will.

But his heart embraces all men, and in the word "whosoever will may come", is the universal invitation, with no one excluded. Were you predestined to be saved? Since, it is His will and desire that everyone be saved—in that sense you were of the elect. But this does not imply that if a person is lost, that God ordained it so. It is because that person was not willing to place himself within the scope of God's redemption, by yielding His will. The Bible indicates that God will do everything short of coercion to redeem people. But even He can't save them against their will.

Silver Cup Given To State Sen. Cheever

DENVER (AP) — A silver cup was presented today to Sen. Vernon A. Cheever of Colorado Springs, honoring him for his long service in the Colorado General Assembly.

Cheever, a Republican, was defeated for reelection last November but will serve as sergeant-at-arms for the Senate during the 45th General Assembly.

The silver cup bears the legend "Senator Cleever 1938-1964."

The presentation was made by Sen. Frank L. Gill, R-Hillrose.

Dates on the cup are the years of Cheever's legislative service, first in the House and then in the Senate.

PLANT DAMAGED

DENVER (UPI)—Fire did an estimated $50,000 damage Wednesday to a Denver plant which manufactures concrete additives. Officials of Protex Industries said the blaze apparently was started in the basement by an electric motor which shot out sparks. The fire quickly spread to upper floors of the brick, 3-story building before firemen were called to extinguish the blaze. It was the second major fire in Denver in a 36-hour period.

SOURCE of VALUES

We can get them from The Old Book—values a-plenty to make the New Year really new. Of course the months, the weeks, the hours are much like the old ones. We should carry all the good things of yesteryears over into the New Year, and then add more.

Just how will your New Year be New?

We and others, like ourselves, will make the difference. Be more kind and patient in the home circle—then it will be a new house this year. Exhibit a better spirit as you do the old task—and the office, or shop, or kitchen will be a new place for the New Year. Worship God more sincerely and work more in His program of service—then you will have a new church for the New Year. Only a new Person will make it a New Year.

SOURCE of VALUES

We can get them from The Old Book— values a-plenty to make the New Year really new. Of course the months, the weeks, the hours are much like the old ones. We should carry all the good things of yesteryears over into the New Year, and then add more.

Just how will your New Year be New?

We and others, like ourselves, will make the difference. Be more kind and patient in the home circle — then it will be a new house this year. Exhibit a better spirit as you do the old task — and the office, or shop, or kitchen will be a new place for the New Year. Worship God more sincerely and work more in His program of service — then you will have a new church for the New Year. Only a new Person will make it a New Year.

First Lutheran Slates New Plans

Plans for 1965, including the dedication of the new sanctuary now under construction, will be made during the annual congregational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at First Lutheran Church.

The quarter-million dollar church is being constructed at the southern end of the church property and is expected to be completed by early summer.

The annual meeting will elect three members to vacancies on the church council, including that of Dr. Robert E. Ehlert, vice chairman, who has completed two three-year terms and is ineligible for re-election.

Nominated by the church council are Edward D. Curry Jr., Chester Girard, Major Howard Maki, Howard Dutzi, William Andersen and Ralph Sokol. Other nominations may be made from the floor.

The congregation will also review activities of the past year and make plans for the new year.

Sex, Love and Life is the title of a new series of programs to be presented by the pastors through the youth group steering committee to be inaugurated next Sunday. The Rev. Christian J. Thearle, pastor, and Intern Theodore A. Stoneberg will direct the program for the Senior Luther Leaguers at 4 p.m. for the series of from 10 to 12 sessions.

Pastor Thearle will preach on "The Magic of Going to Church" at 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services Sunday.

STILL WANTS TO LEARN

CANTON, OHIO (AP) — Rt. Rev. Msgr. Vladimir Pelich, pastor of the Ukranian Catholic Church here, at the age of 78 commutes to classes at Akron's Evening College.

Although holder of a doctor's degree in Slavic languages from the University of Vienna and a Ukranian himself, he is taking a course in the History of Ukranian Civilization. "I want to learn more from an authority," he explains.

CHURCHES OF THE PIKES PEAK REGION

First Lutheran Slates New Plans

Plans for 1965, including the dedication of the new sanctuary now under construction, will be made during the annual congregational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at First Lutheran Church.

The quarter-million dollar church is being constructed at the southern end of the church property and is expected to be completed by early summer.

The annual meeting will elect three members to vacancies on the church council, including that of Dr. Robert E. Ehlert, vice chairman, who has completed two three-year terms and is ineligible for re-election.

Nominated by the church council are Edward D. Curry Jr., Chester Girard, Major Howard Maki, Howard Dutzi, William Andersen and Ralph Sokol. Other nominations may be made from the floor.

The congregation will also review activities of the past year and make plans for the new year.

Sex, Love and Life is the title of a new series of programs to be presented by the pastors through the youth group steering committee to be inaugurated next Sunday. The Rev. Christian J. Thearle, pastor, and Intern Theodore A. Stoneberg will direct the program for the Senior Luther Leaguers at 4 p.m. for the series of from 10 to 12 sessions.

Pastor Thearle will preach on "The Magic of Going to Church" at 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services Sunday.

STILL WANTS TO LEARN

CANTON, OHIO (AP) — Rt. Rev. Msgr. Vladimir Pelich, pastor of the Ukranian Catholic Church here, at the age of 78 commutes to classes at Akron's Evening College.

Although holder of a doctor's degree in Slavic languages from the University of Vienna and a Ukranian himself, he is taking a course in the History of Ukranian Civilization. "I want to learn more from an authority," he explains.

James Reaves to Speak at AFA

Captain James Reaves U.S. Naval Academy will preach at the Air Force Academy Protestant Cadet Services Sunday, Jan. 31.

The services at 7:45 and 9 a.m., are open to the public.

Chaplain Reaves' appearance is part of an exchange program initiated between the Air Force and Naval Academies.

First Methodist Observes Ninth Anniversary

On Sunday at all of the services First Methodist Church will be observing the 9th anniversary in the present sanctuary. It was on January 8, 1956 that the congregation of First Methodist Church first worshipped in the present sanctuary. Dr. Lehmberg has chosen on this anniversary Sunday to speak on the subject "We Remember." He will do that at both the 8:25 and 10:55 services. The offertory soloist for both of these services will Mrs. Mary Kime, wife of the minister of Christ Methodist Church in Denver. Mrs. Kime is a soloist of note and is also a part time instructor at the Lamont School of Music of Denver Universtiy. She appears in many operas and concerts in Denver.

The new Minister of Pastoral Care, the Rev. Richard Long, will be preaching at the "Come As You Are" service at 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Special music will be by Halene Phelps at the organ. She will play "Serenade" by Sheppard.

Following the construction of the sanctuary, the present educational building and chapel were erected. These were opened for activities in May, 1957. Recently at a congregational meeting, the congregation of First Methodist Church voted to build additional facilities, additional Church School rooms, an assembly room and offices. These will be constructed north of the present sanctuary. This section will then match the educational building south of the sanctuary. Bunts and Kelsey are architects for the new construction as they were for the present buildings.

At the services, 8:25 and 10:55, Dr. Lehmberg hopes to present some of those who united with the church on that first Sunday in the new sanctuary. He also hopes to introduce children who were baptized that Sunday. There will be several other additional features in connection with the services.

On Sunday night at the 7 o'clock service, Dr. Lehmberg will bring the second message in the series "Beginnings of the Biblical Drama" — studies in the book of Genesis. This message is entitled, "How Man Got Into Trouble." It is also designated as Youth Night and the Chapel Choir, under the direction of John Shumaker, will be singing, "Like As A Hart" by Healey Willan and "Jesus, Name of Wondrous Love" by Titcomb.

At the 8:25 service the Glee Club, under the direction of Fritz Funk will sing. Their numbers will include: "Faith Triumphant" by Foster and "Bless This House" by Brahe.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of John Shumaker at the 10:55 service will be singing "The Old Hundredth Psalm Tune" by Williams.

New Minister Talks To Unitarians

Rev. Robert M. Bowman, who was welcomed January 3 as the new minister to the All Souls Unitarian Church will discuss this Sunday "The deep concern of those who feel helpless before the grief of someone close to them." Bowman's talk is entitled: "Can You Help A Troubled Friend?"

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m.

Father Jepson Directs Retreat At Benet Hill

Rev. John Jepson, an experienced retreat master, will direct the three day retreat, Jan. 11, 12 and 13 for the students of Benet Hill Academy, Colorado Springs.

Father Jepson presently serving as assistant pastor at St. Mary's Church, is lecturer of philosophy at Colorado College and teacher of religion at St. Mary's High School.

Father Jepson's interest in high school students and his understanding and appreciation of their problems and their potential account for his success and demand in this special work.

The daily schedule will consist of Holy Mass, conferences, reading, meditation and a special retreat Bible Vigil concluding the exercises of each day.

Church to Study Spanish-Americans

The Stratmoor Hills Methodist Church, during its annual mission study, will study the problem of Spanish - American people in the United States and in the Colorado Springs area.

The study will begin Sunday evening at 5:30 p.m. with a light supper of sandwiches.

The program will begin at 6:30 with a worship service by the Junior High Youth group, a skit portraying the stereotypes in which we place Spanish - Americans, and a movie about the Spanish - American problem in America.

During the following three Sundays the study will include speakers who deal with Spanish American people, and a field trip to the Chadbourn Spanish Gospel Mission here in Colorado Springs.

The public is invited to this study.

Wider Medical Work Sought In Health Bill

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson's call for a broad health program is in part a tribute to the past triumphs and sparkling new skills of modern medicine.

He proposes bold steps to solve 1965 problems of health and medical care.

But those problems exist, or are more urgent, partly because of rapid advances in medical science, especially since 1945. The President is saying, in effect, that our economic-medical-social machinery is out of date in adjusting to the new potentials for everyone's health. There are some basic reasons.

Infectious diseases once were our prime killer. But no longer, thanks to antibiotics and other drugs that save children and adults.

More Americans are living into middle age and beyond, thereby inviting newer enemies. Now the main killers — taking seven out of 10 American lives — are heart disease, strokes and cancer. Chronic and costly diseases are far more common.

Medical and clinical research is reacting vigorously against these threats.

At its best, American medicine is the best in the world. Surgery, radiation and rehabilitation techniques are performing seeming miracles.

But the distribution of this best and newest knowledge is becoming an ever more serious matter. How can it be made available so most people can benefit? The knowledge is coming mainly from laboratories, from medical schools, hospitals and clinics. Part of it derives from the fact that specialists — in medical, mental or dental disease — can determine from many patients what are the best methods of diagnosis, treatment or cure, with the least hazard. But there is a time-lag before promising techniques are adopted by doctors elsewhere.

Along with everything else, costs of hospitalization are rising. Nurses, hospital personnel and doctors want to share in advancing income scales.

Older people, on reduced income or on pensions, fall victim to chronic or lingering illness. So do some young husbands, wives and children. But who budgets money for the day of sickness or accident? The main reliance is placed on some kind of insurance.

A growing population requires more doctors, and more medical schools. Education in a medical school, or in any college, costs more now. Alumni give money to try to take up the slack between costs and fees paid by medical students.

President Johnson's message outlines some steps toward solving such problems.

These include hospitalization payments for people 65 and over from Social Security or federal funds; establishment of 32 regional centers, with skilled staff, to attack heart disease, cancer, strokes, and other major diseases; federal support of medical and dental schools; provisions for medical care of children whose parents cannot pay, and other measures.

Johnson's specific proposals may be adopted, rejected, or amended by Congress.

The certainty is that the modern problems, born of medical advances and human wants, are here, and must be resolved in some manner.

CUBAN CHURCHES

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)— A Baptist minister from Cuba, the Rev. Uxmal Livio Diaz, says the departure of United States missionaries from his homeland amid political tensions has stirred a Christian resurgence.

Contributions, membership and lay activity in the churches have increased to new levels of responsibility, he said, adding: "We live in a socialistic state with an atheistic outlook, but we have experienced that God is not absent from our country and his Lordship is not limited by time or place."

There are an estimated 10 million families in the nation with incomes of less than $60 a week, Sargent Shriver, special assistant to the President, told a Congressional committee studying the anti-poverty bill.

SOON TO TRANSFER—Major and Mrs. Charles W. Griffin, Managers of the Southern Colorado Salvation Army Men's Social Service Center located in Colorado Springs, shown here in the Center's chapel, will soon leave to take over new responsibilities at the Salvation Army Center in Seattle, Washington.

Griffins Assume New Salvation Army Assignment

Notification of the new assignment for the Griffins was sent by Lt. Col. Peter J. Hofman, Men's Social Service Secretary, at the San Francisco Salvation Army Headquarters.

Major and Mrs. Griffin, who have been managers of the Southern Colorado Center in Colorado Springs for nearly four years, will leave January 25 to assume their new duties. They will first fly to San Francisco for a three day conference, they proceed to Seattle, to be in their new appointment by February 1.

The Seattle Center is the third largest in the Western United States, admitting 666 men during 1964, and employing 124 people. The Griffins will be in charge of the complete rehabilitation program for beneficiaries of the Center, which number about 132 men. They will also direct the pickup and repair of usable articles contributed to the program, as well as their sale in Thrift Stores. The Seattle organization operates 25 trucks, and has 13 Thrift Stores in various sections of the area.

In Colorado Springs, the Griffins were responsible for the Southern Colorado Center, which can handle 42 men in its care and rehabilitation program. There are 22 employees, including instructors, supervisors, clerks in the four Thrift Stores located in Pueblo, La Junta, Canon City and Colorado Springs; and drivers of the four trucks.

Major and Mrs. Griffin, during their four year command of the Colorado Springs Center have received several commendations for their work. They received the highest efficiency rating in the Western Area for operation of the truck fleet and were commended by Salvation Army Headquarters on the excellent condition of the Center.

Taking over the Center in Colorado Springs will be Brigadier Carl Andreasen, an officer in the Salvation Army for 30 years. He has been training in the Men's Social Service work at the Center in Long Beach, California, and expects to arrive in Colorado Springs February 1 to assume managership of the Center.

Rev. Moser to Speak On 'Victory Is Ours'

Rev. C. L. Moser will be speaking on the subject "Victory is Ours," and the Chancel Choir will sing an anthem for the Sunday morning service at Bethany Baptist Church.

Interest in all departments of the church has increased with the election of new officers and the beginning of a New Year.

Evening Fellowship is led by Jerry Eisentrout. The evening topic will be "The Church Lifted Up." This is a timely subject for the beginning of a new year.

WORKING AFTER A HEART ATTACK

Fear causes much disability in persons with heart diseases, particularly those who have recovered from an attack of coronary thrombosis. World War II taught us that heart patients are reemployable and could do a day's work without harm to themselves or their fellow employes. This has been substantiated many times since then and most physicians agree the outlook is better in those who remain active.

But not every one who had coronary thrombosis is capable of working. We refer to the few who are troubled with residual pain, rapid heart beat, or shortness of breath. No one should work if the job aggravates the cardiac condition or endangers life.

The coronary victim should follow certain precautions after recovery. Take it easy. Mild activity does no harm but don't run to catch the bus, hurry upstairs, or shovel snow. Relax after a meal because eating makes the heart work harder to supply the stomach and intestines with blood for digestion.

Decrease stress and strain. This may require changes in responsibility at the office but it is surprising how easier tasks become when the mind is fresh. This is accomplished by getting more sleep and cutting down on evening social activities. Be cheerful and learn to curb adverse emotional reactions, such as outbursts of anger which are so harmful to the heart.

All of this is avoided by not giving a hoot about the tawdry aspects of life. There is no better excuse to say "no" to anything you dislike than "I've had a coronary."

Maintain a normal weight and shun gluttonous eating. Alcohol is not a heart medicine, despite reports to the contrary. It can make life more enjoyable, provided the individual knows how to drink and remain sober. Smoking is taboo unless the emotional effects of withdrawal are worse on the heart than the solace obtained from the moderate use of tobacco.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies requiest.

CYSTITIS AND ALCOHOL

B. B. writes: Why is it necessary for a person under treatment for a bladder infection to omit alcoholic beverages

REPLY

Because alcohol tends to cause congestion of many internal organs, including the bladder. This is a factor when the urinary tract is inflamed, because it aggravates irritation.

OILS AND CHOLESTEROL

Mrs. G. H. writes: Are olive oil and cod liver oil good for people with a high cholesterol

REPLY

No. Olive oil is neutral, and, although cod liver oil may help, it is too expensive and might create nausea if consumed in large amounts. Corn and safflower oils are more effective and less expensive.

Today's Health Hint — Exercise decreases the waistline.

Church Council Activities

Trinity Methodist Church, the Rev. Sigurd E. Burch, Jr., pastor will be in charge of the 3 p.m. Sunday service.

PIKES PEAK COUNCIL ANNUAL MEETING

January 19 has been set as the date for the annual meeting of the Pikes Peak Council of Churches; to be held at First Methodist Church beginning with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Dr. William Byrd, pastor of First Methodist Church, Boulder, will be the speaker. Tickets for the dinner may be purchased in the office of member churches and reservations must be in by January 15.

Joint Meeting To Be Held Monday

A joint meeting of the "Social Action" committees of the churches of the Pikes Peak Region will be held at 7:45 Monday in the education building of the First Congregational Church. Members of any church authorized committee which is responsible for study or for action in matters of Christian social concern are invited to attend this meeting, which authorized at a similar meeting held on October 12.

Those who attend are requested to mention some definite problem with which church people should be sincerely and immediately concerned, together with a tentative plan for effective study or action.

No formal organization is contemplated at this time, but interchange of views and exploration of possibilities of cooperative effort might be helpful.

Normal Schedule Rescues at AFA

Prigmore Named Church Extension Board Chairman

Richard D. Prigmore, former Colorado Springs builder and developer, was named chairman of the Board of Church Extension of Disciples of Christ, at the Board's quarterly meeting in Indianapolis.

Prigmore, a resident of Colorado Springs, Colorado, for the past 13 years, has been active in the two million member denomination at local, state and national levels. For five years he has served as a Director on the Board of Church Extension, a capital financing agency of the Christian Churches and church buildings.

Church Extension accepts savings deposits from churches and individuals, paying them interest on their deposits semi-annually. In turn the money is loaned to Christian Churches and related bodies throughout the United States and several foreign countries. Church Extension has paid interest regularly during the 81-year history of the organization.

Prigmore, a builder and real estate developer graduated from Wichita University in 1949 and from the University of Utah in 1950 with a Master's Degree. During the 1950's and early 1960's he built over 500 homes in metropolitan Colorado Springs, winning many National awards for design and construction.

As a member of the Colorado Springs Planning Commission, Prigmore participated in planduring its period of greatest growth. The population doubled between 1950 and 1960 and continues to grow at a fast pace. He also served as President of the Metropolitan Association of Home Builders of Colorado Springs in 1957 and as National Director to the National Association of Home Builders for several years.

In his new capacity, he heads an eighteen - man board composed of ministers and laymen who come from all sections of the country. The Board meets in Indianapolis quarterly to consider loan applications and policy matters. Forty to fifty new loans are promised each quarter totaling one to two million dollars.

The Prigmores have been active in the affairs of both Village Christian Church and First Christian Church. Mrs. Prigmore is president of the Colorado Christian Women's Fellowship and treasurer of the Pikes reside at 1945 Carlton Avenue, with their two sons, Gary 17 and is President of the Colorado Christian Women's Fellowship and Treasurer of the Pikes Peak Council of churches. They Daryl 15, students at Wasson High.

Campaign Starts Sunday at Southern Baptist

The First Southern Baptist Church will begin its annual stewardship campaign next Sunday. The four week campaign is designed to educate the members of the church concerning their stewardship responsibilities.

The church will vote on its proposed budget of $111,000.00 next Sunday morning. Louis Wier, Budget Planning Chairman, will present the budget to the church. The budget was discussed by a panel of members at the church last Wednesday night.

The general chairman for the campaign is Carl Davis. The features of the campaign include stewardship testimonies at each of the regular services of the church, Demonstration Day on January 24, Dedication Day on January 31, and Victory Day on February 7.

First Methodist Observes Ninth Anniversary

On Sunday at all of the services First Methodist Church will be observing the 9th anniversary in the present sanctuary. It was on January 8, 1956 that the congregation of First Methodist Church first worshipped in the present sanctuary. Dr. Lehmberg has chosen on this anniversary Sunday to speak on the subject "We Remember." He will do that at both the 8:25 and 10:55 services. The offertory soloist for both of these services will Mrs. Mary Kime, wife of the minister of Christ Methodist Church in Denver. Mrs. Kime is a soloist of note and is also a part time instructor at the Lamont School of Music of Denver Universtiy. She appears in many operas and concerts in Denver.

The new Minister of Pastoral Care, the Rev. Richard Long, will be preaching at the "Come As You Are" service at 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Special music will be by Halene Phelps at the organ. She will play "Serenade" by Sheppard.

Following the construction of the sanctuary, the present educational building and chapel were erected. These were opened for activities in May, 1957. Recently at a congregational meeting, the congregation of First Methodist Church voted to build additional facilities, additional Church School rooms, an assembly room and offices. These will be constructed north of the present sanctuary. This section will then match the educational building south of the sanctuary. Bunts and Kelsey are architects for the new construction as they were for the present buildings.

At the services, 8:25 and 10:55, Dr. Lehmberg hopes to present some of those who united with the church on that first Sunday in the new sanctuary. He also hopes to introduce children who were baptized that Sunday. There will be several other additional features in connection with the services.

On Sunday night at the 7 o'clock service, Dr. Lehmberg will bring the second message in the series "Beginnings of the Biblical Drama" — studies in the book of Genesis. This message is entitled, "How Man Got Into Trouble." It is also designated as Youth Night and the Chapel Choir, under the direction of John Shumaker, will be singing, "Like As A Hart" by Healey Willan and "Jesus, Name of Wondrous Love" by Titcomb.

At the 8:25 service the Glee Club, under the direction of Fritz Funk will sing. Their numbers will include: "Faith Triumphant" by Foster and "Bless This House" by Brahe.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of John Shumaker at the 10:55 service will be singing "The Old Hundredth Psalm Tune" by Williams.

New Minister Talks To Unitarians

Rev. Robert M. Bowman, who was welcomed January 3 as the new minister to the All Souls Unitarian Church will discuss this Sunday "The deep concern of those who feel helpless before the grief of someone close to them." Bowman's talk is entitled: "Can You Help A Troubled Friend?"

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m.

Father Jepson Directs Retreat At Benet Hill

Rev. John Jepson, an experienced retreat master, will direct the three day retreat, Jan. 11, 12 and 13 for the students of Benet Hill Academy, Colorado Springs.

Father Jepson presently serving as assistant pastor at St. Mary's Church, is lecturer of philosophy at Colorado College and teacher of religion at St. Mary's High School.

Father Jepson's interest in high school students and his understanding and appreciation of their problems and their potential account for his success and demand in this special work.

The daily schedule will consist of Holy Mass, conferences, reading, meditation and a special retreat Bible Vigil concluding the exercises of each day.

Church to Study Spanish-Americans

The Stratmoor Hills Methodist Church, during its annual mission study, will study the problem of Spanish - American people in the United States and in the Colorado Springs area.

The study will begin Sunday evening at 5:30 p.m. with a light supper of sandwiches.

The program will begin at 6:30 with a worship service by the Junior High Youth group, a skit portraying the stereotypes in which we place Spanish - Americans, and a movie about the Spanish - American problem in America.

During the following three Sundays the study will include speakers who deal with Spanish American people, and a field trip to the Chadbourn Spanish Gospel Mission here in Colorado Springs.

The public is invited to this study.

Wider Medical Work Sought In Health Bill

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson's call for a broad health program is in part a tribute to the past triumphs and sparkling new skills of modern medicine.

He proposes bold steps to solve 1965 problems of health and medical care.

But those problems exist, or are more urgent, partly because of rapid advances in medical science, especially since 1945. The President is saying, in effect, that our economic-medical-social machinery is out of date in adjusting to the new potentials for everyone's health. There are some basic reasons.

Infectious diseases once were our prime killer. But no longer, thanks to antibiotics and other drugs that save children and adults.

More Americans are living into middle age and beyond, thereby inviting newer enemies. Now the main killers — taking seven out of 10 American lives — are heart disease, strokes and cancer. Chronic and costly diseases are far more common.

Medical and clinical research is reacting vigorously against these threats.

At its best, American medicine is the best in the world. Surgery, radiation and rehabilitation techniques are performing seeming miracles.

But the distribution of this best and newest knowledge is becoming an ever more serious matter. How can it be made available so most people can benefit? The knowledge is coming mainly from laboratories, from medical schools, hospitals and clinics. Part of it derives from the fact that specialists — in medical, mental or dental disease — can determine from many patients what are the best methods of diagnosis, treatment or cure, with the least hazard. But there is a time-lag before promising techniques are adopted by doctors elsewhere.

Along with everything else, costs of hospitalization are rising. Nurses, hospital personnel and doctors want to share in advancing income scales.

Older people, on reduced income or on pensions, fall victim to chronic or lingering illness. So do some young husbands, wives and children. But who budgets money for the day of sickness or accident? The main reliance is placed on some kind of insurance.

A growing population requires more doctors, and more medical schools. Education in a medical school, or in any college, costs more now. Alumni give money to try to take up the slack between costs and fees paid by medical students.

President Johnson's message outlines some steps toward solving such problems.

These include hospitalization payments for people 65 and over from Social Security or federal funds; establishment of 32 regional centers, with skilled staff, to attack heart disease, cancer, strokes, and other major diseases; federal support of medical and dental schools; provisions for medical care of children whose parents cannot pay, and other measures.

Johnson's specific proposals may be adopted, rejected, or amended by Congress.

The certainty is that the modern problems, born of medical advances and human wants, are here, and must be resolved in some manner.

CUBAN CHURCHES

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—A Baptist minister from Cuba, the Rev. Uxmal Livio Diaz, says the departure of United States missionaries from his homeland amid political tensions has stirred a Christian resurgence.

Contributions, membership and lay activity in the churches have increased to new levels of responsibility, he said, adding: "We live in a socialistic state with an atheistic outlook, but we have experienced that God is not absent from our country and his Lordship is not limited by time or place."

There are an estimated 10 million families in the nation with incomes of less than $60 a week, Sargent Shriver, special assistant to the President, told a Congressional committee studying the anti-poverty bill.

SOON TO TRANSFER—Major and Mrs. Charles W. Griffin, Managers of the Southern Colorado Salvation Army Men's Social Service Center located in Colorado Springs, shown here in the Center's chapel, will soon leave to take over new responsibilities at the Salvation Army Center in Seattle, Washington.

Griffins Assume New Salvation Army Assignment

Notification of the new assignment for the Griffins was sent by Lt. Col. Peter J. Hofman, Men's Social Service Secretary, at the San Francisco Salvation Army Headquarters.

Major and Mrs. Griffin, who have been managers of the Southern Colorado Center in Colorado Springs for nearly four years, will leave January 25 to assume their new duties. They will first fly to San Francisco for a three day conference, they proceed to Seattle, to be in their new appointment by February 1.

The Seattle Center is the third largest in the Western United States, admitting 666 men during 1964, and employing 124 people. The Griffins will be in charge of the complete rehabilitation program for beneficiaries of the Center, which number about 132 men. They will also direct the pickup and repair of usable articles contributed to the program, as well as their sale in Thrift Stores. The Seattle organization operates 25 trucks, and has 13 Thrift Stores in various sections of the area.

In Colorado Springs, the Griffins were responsible for the Southern Colorado Center, which can handle 42 men in its care and rehabilitation program. There are 22 employees, including instructors, supervisors, clerks in the four Thrift Stores located in Pueblo, La Junta, Canon City and Colorado Springs; and drivers of the four trucks.

Major and Mrs. Griffin, during their four year command of the Colorado Springs Center have received several commendations for their work. They received the highest efficiency rating in the Western Area for operation of the truck fleet and were commended by Salvation Army Headquarters on the excellent condition of the Center.

Taking over the Center in Colorado Springs will be Brigadier Carl Andreasen, an officer in the Salvation Army for 30 years. He has been training in the Men's Social Service work at the Center in Long Beach, California, and expects to arrive in Colorado Springs February 1 to assume managership of the Center.

Rev. Moser to Speak On 'Victory Is Ours'

Rev. C. L. Moser will be speaking on the subject "Victory is Ours," and the Chancel Choir will sing an anthem for the Sunday morning service at Bethany Baptist Church.

Interest in all departments of the church has increased with the election of new officers and the beginning of a New Year.

Evening Fellowship is led by Jerry Eisentrout. The evening topic will be "The Church Lifted Up." This is a timely subject for the beginning of a new year.

WORKING AFTER A HEART ATTACK

Fear causes much disability in persons with heart diseases, particularly those who have recovered from an attack of coronary thrombosis. World War II taught us that heart patients are reemployable and could do a day's work without harm to themselves or their fellow employes. This has been substantiated many times since then and most physicians agree the outlook is better in those who remain active.

But not every one who had coronary thrombosis is capable of working. We refer to the few who are troubled with residual pain, rapid heart beat, or shortness of breath. No one should work if the job aggravates the cardiac condition or endangers life.

The coronary victim should follow certain precautions after recovery. Take it easy. Mild activity does no harm but don't run to catch the bus, hurry upstairs, or shovel snow. Relax after a meal because eating makes the heart work harder to supply the stomach and intestines with blood for digestion.

Decrease stress and strain. This may require changes in responsibility at the office but it is surprising how easier tasks become when the mind is fresh. This is accomplished by getting more sleep and cutting down on evening social activities. Be cheerful and learn to curb adverse emotional reactions, such as outbursts of anger which are so harmful to the heart.

All of this is avoided by not giving a hoot about the tawdry aspects of life. There is no better excuse to say "no" to anything you dislike than "I've had a coronary."

Maintain a normal weight and shun gluttonous eating. Alcohol is not a heart medicine, despite reports to the contrary. It can make life more enjoyable, provided the individual knows how to drink and remain sober. Smoking is taboo unless the emotional effects of withdrawal are worse on the heart than the solace obtained from the moderate use of tobacco.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies requiest.

CYSTITIS AND ALCOHOL

B. B. writes: Why is it necessary for a person under treatment for a bladder infection to omit alcoholic beverages

REPLY

Because alcohol tends to cause congestion of many internal organs, including the bladder. This is a factor when the urinary tract is inflamed, because it aggravates irritation.

OILS AND CHOLESTEROL

Mrs. G. H. writes: Are olive oil and cod liver oil good for people with a high cholesterol

REPLY

No. Olive oil is neutral, and, although cod liver oil may help, it is too expensive and might create nausea if consumed in large amounts. Corn and safflower oils are more effective and less expensive.

Church Council Activities

Trinity Methodist Church, the Rev. Sigurd E. Burch, Jr., pastor will be in charge of the 3 p.m. Sunday service.

PIKES PEAK COUNCIL ANNUAL MEETING

January 19 has been set as the date for the annual meeting of the Pikes Peak Council of Churches; to be held at First Methodist Church beginning with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Dr. William Byrd, pastor of First Methodist Church, Boulder, will be the speaker. Tickets for the dinner may be purchased in the office of member churches and reservations must be in by January 15.

Joint Meeting To Be Held Monday

A joint meeting of the "Social Action" committees of the churches of the Pikes Peak Region will be held at 7:45 Monday in the education building of the First Congregational Church. Members of any church authorized committee which is responsible for study or for action in matters of Christian social concern are invited to attend this meeting, which authorized at a similar meeting held on October 12.

Those who attend are requested to mention some definite problem with which church people should be sincerely and immediately concerned, together with a tentative plan for effective study or action.

No formal organization is contemplated at this time, but interchange of views and exploration of possibilities of cooperative effort might be helpful.

Normal Schedule Rescues at AFA

Prigmore Named Church Extension Board Chairman

Richard D. Prigmore, former Colorado Springs builder and developer, was named chairman of the Board of Church Extension of Disciples of Christ, at the Board's quarterly meeting in Indianapolis.

Prigmore, a resident of Colorado Springs, Colorado, for the past 13 years, has been active in the two million member denomination at local, state and national levels. For five years he has served as a Director on the Board of Church Extension, a capital financing agency of the Christian Churches and church buildings.

Church Extension accepts savings deposits from churches and individuals, paying them interest on their deposits semi-annually. In turn the money is loaned to Christian Churches and related bodies throughout the United States and several foreign countries. Church Extension has paid interest regularly during the 81-year history of the organization.

Prigmore, a builder and real estate developer graduated from Wichita University in 1949 and from the University of Utah in 1950 with a Master's Degree. During the 1950's and early 1960's he built over 500 homes in metropolitan Colorado Springs, winning many National awards for design and construction.

As a member of the Colorado Springs Planning Commission, Prigmore participated in planduring its period of greatest growth. The population doubled between 1950 and 1960 and continues to grow at a fast pace. He also served as President of the Metropolitan Association of Home Builders of Colorado Springs in 1957 and as National Director to the National Association of Home Builders for several years.

In his new capacity, he heads an eighteen - man board composed of ministers and laymen who come from all sections of the country. The Board meets in Indianapolis quarterly to consider loan applications and policy matters. Forty to fifty new loans are promised each quarter totaling one to two million dollars.

The Prigmores have been active in the affairs of both Village Christian Church and First Christian Church. Mrs. Prigmore is president of the Colorado Christian Women's Fellowship and treasurer of the Pikes reside at 1945 Carlton Avenue, with their two sons, Gary 17 and is President of the Colorado Christian Women's Fellowship and Treasurer of the Pikes Peak Council of churches. They Daryl 15, students at Wasson High.

Campaign Starts Sunday at Southern Baptist

The First Southern Baptist Church will begin its annual stewardship campaign next Sunday. The four week campaign is designed to educate the members of the church concerning their stewardship responsibilities.

The church will vote on its proposed budget of $111,000.00 next Sunday morning. Louis Wier, Budget Planning Chairman, will present the budget to the church. The budget was discussed by a panel of members at the church last Wednesday night.

The general chairman for the campaign is Carl Davis. The features of the campaign include stewardship testimonies at each of the regular services of the church, Demonstration Day on January 24, Dedication Day on January 31, and Victory Day on February 7.

Perhaps the outstanding event of the program will be the Budget Fair. The fair will present the budget in the atmosphere of a country fair. Hot dogs, pop corn, and pop will be served to all of those attending the fair. Following the fair, an inspirational program will be held in the church auditorium. Keith Harris is in charge of arrangements for the fair.

Rev. Richard D. Yancey, pastor of the church, will preach at both services next Sunday. Sunday morning his sermon topic will be "The Sin of Greed." Sunday night his message will be "To Be Served or To Serve."

Barent Given Suspended Sentence Here

Robert Pearsall Barent was given a suspended sentence in District Court Friday and placed on probation for conspiracy.

Barent, 22, W. Hartford, Conn., was accused of conspiring with Charles Raymond Slinger, 22, Richard Shanning, 21, and John Wallace, 23, when $502 were stolen from the Texaco station at Monument, Oct. 23.

According to testimony given by Deputy Sheriff Woodrow Littrell, two cars were used in the robbery and Barent was the driver of one. Littrell said the defendant remained at the wheel while the other three men entered the gas station.

Slinger is now serving three to five years for simple robbery, Shanning was sentenced to three to five years Friday for simple robbery, and according to a sheriff's report Wallace is being held in Florida for investigation of bank robbery.

Judge David W. Enoch was on the bench.

Man Pleads Guilty To Burglary

G. Gerald Henry Lounsbury, pleaded guilty in District Court Friday to burglary, and two further charges of larceny and conspiracy were then dismissed at the request of Deputy District Attorney Herman Ratner.

Lounsbury, 19, 3600 N. Cascade Ave. was accused of the Dec. 17 break-in at Bob's Liquors, 3519 N. El Paso St. when a quantity of liquor and cigarettes worth a total of $176.48 were stolen. In the original charge he was also alleged to have committed larceny and conspired with Ernest Guy Blakely, 23, 3600 N. Cascade Ave.

Lounsbury will be sentenced Jan. 22.

His co-defendant Blakely received probation Aug. 17 for another offense, but immediately he was arrested on the present charge, probation was revoked and he was placed in County Jail. He is scheduled to be arraigned on the burglary, larceny and conspiracy charges sometime in the near future.

Douglas Ray Moulton pleaded guilty to malicious mischief after the district attorney's office amended the charge from burglary.

Moulton, 26, 617 Manitou Ave. was first alleged to have broken into J. S. Case and Co., 620 N. Tejon St. June 5.

Judge William M. Calvert set Jan. 22 for sentencing.

Burglary Attempt Fails at Station

Burglars attempted to enter a local service station between 10 p.m. Thursday and 5:45 a.m. Friday by breaking out the glass in an overhead door, police reported.

William R. Bramlett, owner of Bramlett's Gulf Station, 2303 S. Union Blvd., told police that when he opened his station Friday morning he discovered the door glass broken out on the overhead doors on the east side of the building.

Bramlett said the glass was still partially in the door when he discovered it, and added that when he checked the contents of the building he could find no evidence of theft.

Curb Parking To Be Banned On Jackson

City Traffic Engineer Don L. Smith reports that starting about Jan. 18 curb parking will be prohibited on the south side of Jackson Street between Cascade Avenue and Weber Street.

"No parking anytime" signs will be installed to effect this regulation. The street is only 30 feet wide from curb to curb.

Smith said an off-set center line would be painted to provide two 12-foot lanes for moving traffic, and there will be an eight-foot lane provided for parking on the north side.

The traffic engineer said that each of the 10 houses on the south side of the street have off-street parking, and three have curb parking on adjacent streets.

Smith said numerous requests have been made in the past two to three years to remove parking from at least one side of the narrow street, but studies made indicated no action was needed. More recent studies, however, indicated that removal of parking from one side of the street was needed.

A recent traffic count shows that 2,877 vehicles used the one-block stretch during a 24-hour period, with a majority of that total using the street between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Smith said there were 11 accidents on the street last year, with curb parking being a factor in 45 per cent of the cases.

With parking permitted on both sides of the street, he said, "It is extremely difficult and frequently impossible to maintain safe two-way traffic."

The parking ban on the south side was selected because there are fewer residences on that side and thus fewer people would be inconvenienced.

Child Playing In Street Hit by Car

A three-year-old boy playing in the street Thursday in front of his house was injured Thursday when he was struck by a passing car, police reported.

John David Mach, 3, 1020 Logan Place, sustained several bruises and lacerations about the head and a large contusion of the skull. He was taken to Memorial Hospital, where x-rays were taken.

The accident occurred at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the 1000 block of Logan Place when Mrs. Roberta Dee Lear, 32, 1309 E. Bijou St., was driving south. Mrs. Lear said she had just come up to the crest of a hill when suddenly an object was at the right front fender of her car. She said she heard a thud, stopped the car and jumped out, and found the Mach boy at the rear of her vehicle.

Mrs. Mildred Mach, mother of the injured boy, told police that her five-year-old son Robert, who had also been in the front yard, said that John had been pushing a toy truck into the street with his hands when he was hit. Robert said John was bent over when Mrs. Lear drove by.

Scott Probation Revoked Friday

Semmy Scott, 22, 619 N. Spruce St. had his probation revoked Friday by District Court Judge G. Russel Miller and his original sentence of three to five years in the State Penitentiary was imposed.

Scott received probation Jan. 31, 1964 for entering a motor vehicle with intent to commit larceny.

The reason for revocation was explained to the court by Marion Shipley of the probation department who said the defendant had stolen a quantity of meat from a King Soopers' store Dec. 30 and after striking one of the employees, drove off in his car.

Scott asked Judge Miller that if his probation should be revoked he would prefer to go to the State Reformatory. He went to the penitentiary.

Leader-less Falcons Attempt to Snap Losing Streak

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Without their top scorer for the season — and a victory in the last three games — the Falcons of the Air Force Academy will try to regroup forces tonight in a return to their friendly floor at the AFA Cadet Gymnasium.

It will be the year's first meeting against the Universtiy of Denver, although the teams participated in the season-opening Mile High Classic in Denver early in December, and they are slated for a re-match in the state's capital. The varsity tipoff is scheduled for 8 p.m., with a prelim contest between freshman squads from both schools at 6 p.m.

Stock in the Air Force took a nose dive on Friday when it was announced that Jerry Yankee, the Falcons' leading point producer, will be out for this weekend and possibly the remainder of the season. Yankee, a junior guard from San Antonio. Tex., and owner of a 13.4 average on the scoreboard, was stricken with mononucleosis during the AFA's recent road trip.

During that journey, the Cadets found some rough going besides the loss of the slender backcourt ace. They lost three straight to Arkansas State, Creighton and North Dakota University to run their season's record to 3-5 .All three of the victories so far have come at home — and vice-versa for the losses.

Coach Bob Spear plans to enter sophomore Pete Hugdahl into the starting lineup in place of Yankee tonight. Hugdahl has shown vast improvement and owns one of the best shooting percentages on the squad, hitting on over half his attempts from the field. Another soph who probably will see extended duty tonight is guard Pat Dowling, a sparkplug in the three wins at home before the road trip over the holidays.

Denver started a rugged weekend with a trip to Ft. Collins on Friday and a contest with the Rams of Colorado State University, and then will bus down to the Academy today. Into this weekend the Pioneers had a 3-6 mark on the season after losing four straight on the road.

In DU's last start at New Mexico University, in which they dropped a 69-45 decision, the Pioneers reportedly played excellent ball up until the final minutes. Trailing by only six with 12 minutes left, Denver's ace forward Frank Mixon injured his neck and was forced to the bench.

Mixon, however, should be ready for full speed again tonight and he will be the main problem for the Air Force defense. In the nine games played, Mixon has paced the Pioneers with a 20-point average and is virtually tied for the team leadership in rebounds. The other top boardman for Coach Troy Bledsoe's troops is 6-5 center Jack England, a grad from South Pueblo's state runnerup in 1961.

Other top scorers besides the 6-4 Mixon are forward Jerry Causey and sophomore guard Gerry Grover, both averaging in double figures. The Air Force, though shows even more balance with five (counting Yankee) averaging 10 or more. The sixth, Hugdahl, has a 4.2 mean.

The Air Force record to date has been somewhat puzzling although this might have been expected since Spear is admittedly in the "building year" with only one non-starting senior on the squad.

After opening with an easy win over Carroll College on the AFA floor, the Falcons came within a whisker of upsetting Colorado State U. in the opening round of the Mile High Classic in an overtime verdict, and then followed up with a loss to Colorado U. in the second night of the same tourney.

Coming home, the Cadets found the range in their own cozy gym and raised at least a few eyebrows with consecutive wins over Big Eight Conference opponents, Missouri and Iowa State. Then it was back on the road over the holiday span and they fell victim three straight times to Arkansas State, Creighton and North Dakota.

So now the question will be whether the familiar surroundings of the Academy gym and the friendly crowd will pull the Fliers out of the current tailspin or not. Anyway, the Falcons won't have long to test the theory as after tonight it's back on the road for games at Texas Western in El Paso and New Mexico State next weekend.

That will mark the mid-point of the season for the Air Force, and the last lap includes a string of five straight home games which could go a long way towards making them well again. That home stint, however, has several national powers coming to the Academy in Oklahoma City, Brigham Young, Wyoming and Marquette.

Other than Hugdahl or Dowling replacing Yankee, the AFA starting lineup probably will have Scott Etnyre at the other guard, sophomore Fred Budinger and Sam Peshut at forwards, and Ed Sullivan on the post. Denver will have Mixon and Causey at forwards, England at center, with Grover and Dennis English at guards.

ALL-AMERICA CANDIDATE — Denver University's leading scorer and all-around team leader, Frank Mixon, will be in action tonight when the Falcons of the Air Force Academy host the Pioneers at the Cadet Gym. Game time is 8 p.m. Mixon, a 6-4 forward from Vallejo, Calif., has been averaging just under 20 point per game and had a season's high of 30 points recently against Louisiana State University.

Tigers Trip Wisconsin; Magie, Genz Score Two

MADISON,, Wisc.—Paced by the twin-goal scoring of Bob Magie and John Genz, Colorado College's hockey team raced to an 8-4 victory over the University of Wisconsin in the first meeting between the two schools here Friday night.

The teams are to meet again tonight in another non-league contest. The victory brought CC's record to 4-6 for the season, and Wisconsin now has a 6-5 record with all the defeats coming against Western Collegiate Hockey Association teams.

The Tigers from Colorado Springs exploded for four goals in the span of five minutes midway through the second period to all but clinch the triumph. Genz started the fireworks at the 13:20 mark of the middle chapter, and then Warren Fordyce, Magie and Steve Ebert followed up with tallies with Ebert's coming at the 18:17 point on the clock.

A crowd of 1,971 watched a rough and tumble battle in this second period with no less than eight penalties called against both teams.

CC finished off its scoring in the third period with Dave Peterson punching in the seventh goal with 7:34 gone, and then Genz got his second of the night less than three minutes later. Wisconsin's Ray Clegg also got a pair of goals, one in the second period and the other in the third.

Coach Bob Johnson said after the game that overall he was pleased with his Tigers' performance and that he thought goalie Bill Howard played well considering this was his first appearance with the CC varsity. Howard, a transfer from North Dakota who just became eligible on Friday, made 26 saves but allowed the four goals.

Johnson also said he felt that with CC winning four of its last five games that "they've finally found themselves. I really believe that this team could be unbeaten except for a few breaks that went the other way."

The Tigers will change goalies again for tonight's return game with the Badgers, with little Mike Carter scheduled to take the nets. Carter had a shutout in his last effort, a 2-0 win over Boston University, and it was the first whitewash for a CC goalie in 208 games over eight seasons.

McCalvy Rips Cords For 35-Point Night

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO—Bucking alleged personal fouls more than South's Colts, Palmer's Terrors danced off with a 70-49 South Central League victory Friday night in the District 60 Gymnasium.

Forward Bill McCalvy jammed the nets with 35 points the best yet for the 5-11 senior. Bob Pearson scored 12 before fouling out in the final period.

The officious officials tootled 22 personals on the visiting Terrors, a factor which kept the Colts as close as they were. South hit 21 of 35 free shots, a resepctable 60 per cent, but 60 shots.

managed only 14 field goals in

One zealous guardian of hardcourt jurisprudence charged Palmer coach with a technical foul near the end of the first half for standing up and giving directions to his team. A consulation of basketball's Blackstone revealed the official's crime and he pleaded guilty to making a false accusation.

Fortunately, the Terrors could have been assessed several more fouls and it probably would not have hurt them much. They broke away to a 20-13 first quarter lead on five of eight from the field and a pair of beautiful arching corner shots by guard Tom Espinoza.

It was more of the same in the second period, with McCalvy finishing the half with 20 points.

Palmer put on its stall offense in the second half and held down the scoring. But McCalvy still pulled out seven more points. South could not get a point until Dick Smith hit a free throw at 3:45 and didn't get a field goal until Smith hit at 1:27. The Colts got only four shots at the bucket the third period.

A foul-filled fourth quarter just ran out the clock as Palmer ran past South's full-court press almost at will. The Terrors showed a stronger offense and its zone defense muddled South's heralded fast break tactics. The Colts went to a more conservative type game but couldn't break on the boards against Parson and Ed Fitzgerald.

Palmer hit 29 of 52 shots from the field for a superb 55.8 average. The Terrors had one of their better nights at the free throw line with 12 of 19.

Palmer gets the supreme chance to find out if its warming offense can do the job against highly - rated teams next week as the Terrors host Pueblo Centennial Friday and Pueblo Central's defending SCL champs Saturday.

Kadets Dump Canon City

CANON CITY — John Delventhal's run-gun Kadets of Academy High picked up their second victory of the season here Friday night against Canon City's Tigers in the opening game of the Will Rogers League.

This was the second time the Big Blue dumped the Tigers, and was the second win for the Academy High roundballers in eight games.

Roger Karolick dumped in 13 points to spearhead the Kadets' victory as the top scorer in the WRL, Bert spear, was held to a mere seven points as the Tigers' Mickey Gann contained the Kadet flash.

Dee Betts poured in 20 points for the Tigers in a losing cause.

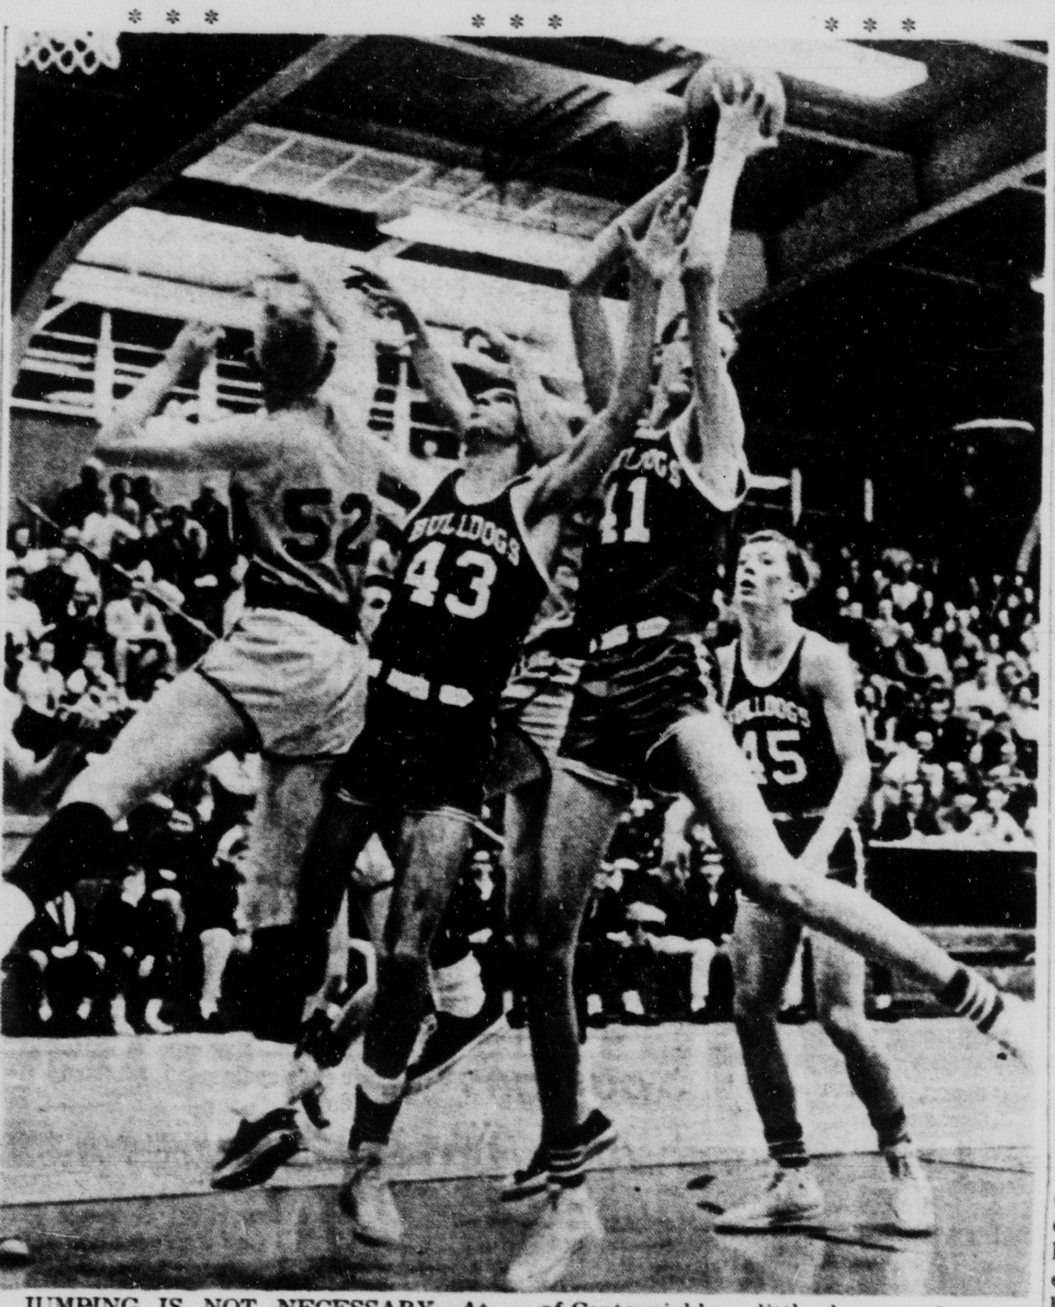
Rodriguez Captures Dorado Beach Title

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez of San Juan won the pro part of the Dorado Beach pro-amateur golf tournament Friday with a 54-hole total of 210. First prize was worth $500.



JUMPING IS NOT NECESSARY—At least it's not for Ron Smith (41), Centennial's seven foot sophomore who is shown here easily picking off a rebound while Wasson's Charlie Steel (52) and Bud Temple (43) and Scott Eslinger (45) of Centennial have little chance to do anything about it. The towering Smith was a key figure as the Bulldogs opened their South Central League campaign with a 58-47 victory over Wasson at the Palmer Gymnasium. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Panthers Race Past Tribe In WRL Opener Tilt, 74-57

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Norman Sullivan's tall and talented Panthers showed their stuff Friday night as the Harrison roundballers lived up to their pre-season rating as the prime candidates for the newly formed Will Rogers League pennant.

The over-capacity crowd saw black Friday night at the Cheyenne Gymnasium as the Panthers took complete charge of the scoring in addition to safeguarding the defensive backboards.

Coupled with alert defensive ballhawking with 6-4 John Dalton blocking numerous Cheyenne field goal attempts and his outstanding job of rebounding and the smooth operation of the Panthers' offensive attack, the Harrison aggregation raced to an overwhelming 74-57 triumph to kick-off their WRL campaign on a happy note.

This was sweet revenge for the Panthers after an earlier season loss to Don O'Hare's Indians in non-league competition. The Panthers lost that outing in the WRL Pre-Season Tournament by a single point, 65-64.

But Friday night the Harrison basketballers could not be denied their rightful place as the top challenger to the WRL championship.

Even though the Tribe managed to stay within striking distance of the Panthers in the first half, the Harrison crew took complete charge of the game in the third period as they jumped to a 19-point lead. The Panthers scored 38 points in the second half while they limited the Indians to 25 points, which resulted in a decisive decision for the Harrison team.

Ron Graham was high point man for both teams as the 6-2 senior managed to outduel his taller opponent, Dalton, under the basket with effective moves. Graham collected 25 points and picked up a dozen rebounds to pace the Cheyenne team.

Dalton also displayed agility for a lanky cager as he worked poured in 16 points followed by Larry Gagnon with 15 points, Mike Obert with 11 points and Eddie Hook with 11 and Dick Rauschkolb provided the spark in the second half as the transfer student scored 13 points.

The Tribe managed to tie up the score on two different occasions in the second period as Graham scored five quick points to deadlock the contest, 28-28. But Hook tied put the Panthers ahead, 32-30, after Graham tied up the score.

Two non-league games are on tap tonight. Cheyenne travels north to battle Mapleton and Widefield seeks to beef up its 1-5 won-loss record when they tangle with Brighton as the latter team's home court. Both games are set for 8 p.m.

Bulldog Giant Tough At Thunderbirds Bow

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Pueblo Centennial unveiled seven-foot Ron Smith for Colorado Springs fans Friday night and the giant sophomore was the difference as the Bulldogs launched their drive for the South Central League title with a 58-47 triumph over Wasson in a ragged conference opener at the Palmer Gymnasium.

Smith, who relaxed on the bench for the majority of the first quarter and saw only partial action in the final three periods, was still the key figure as the favored Pueblo club fought off several late flurries by the scrapping Thunderbirds to win going away.

The towering Centennial soph, who appears to be taller from the waist down than some of the Wasson guards, picked off 16 rebounds, scored 12 points, and intimidated the Thunderbird shooters in the area around the goal during his abbreviated performance. That, plus slick work by veteran guard Jerry Guttierez and an almost flawless performance at the free throw line by Scott Eslinger was enough to break down a spotty effort by the Colorado Springs team.

Actually, the majority of the contest was more an exchange of mistakes than polished basketball. The Thunderbirds' bothersome press gave the Bulldogs brief periods of trouble, especially in the first half, but when Wasson was desperately attempting to close the gap in the final few minutes Guttierez consistently slipped through the tight pressure and on several occasions set up easy goals for the bigger men breaking underneath.

It was another night of shooting miseries for the T-Birds, who finished with 20 of 61 field goal attempts for 32.8 per cent. However, Wasson was finding the net with some regularity until Smith came wading onto the floor in the second period to block three straight shots.

From that point the Birds had a bad case of nerves any time the Centennial "big man" was in the vicinity and the field goal percentage began to tail off rapidly. During the first seven minutes of the second period Wasson could manage just two points and it was then that the Bulldogs made the move that was to eventually spell the difference.

Junior Randy Stanley, the Thunderbirds' leading scorer, again took point honors with 12.

He was closely followed by Mike Martin who dumped in 11 and was the only member of the losers to hit with any consistency from out court. Veterans Jim Smith and Charlie Steel, the two returning starters, managed only eight and five points.

Guttierez topped Centennial's balanced attack with 16 points but three others broke double figures. Eslinger hit 13, including nine of 11 at the free throw line, Smith had 12, and Bud Temple 10.

The Bulldogs took the lead in the opening minute of play on a drive by Temple but Wasson pulled into ties at 2-2 and 6-6 before Stanley shot them ahead at 8-6 with a short jumper from the side with 4:38 left in the first period. The lead then see-sawed until the Thunderbirds surrendered it for good on a pair of Eslinger free throws which moved Centennial out front at 13-12 with 1:06 left. The Bulldogs had 15-13 advantage at the quarter.

On came Smith at the start of the second period to score two straight goals at the same time Wasson shooters were being gripped in a deep freeze. A goal by Jim Krug, a junior varsity player until this week, was the only Thunderbird score until Krug again hit with 0:30 left in the half. During the interval Centennial had stretched its margin to 10 points and despite a brief T-Bird rally still led 25-20 at halftime.

The Bulldogs ran into shooting problems early in the third quarter and Wasson gradually closed until a Martin field goal deadlocked the score at 31-13 with 2:40 to go. Smith then dumped in a field goal and added a free toss a minute later as Centennial began to wedge out a lead again and the Dogs were still on top at 39-35 heading into the final period.

Wasson hung within five points until midway in the last quarter but then gave up rapidfire baskets to Eslinger and Guttierez and faded to 50-41, an advantage it was evident they were not to overcome. They were back with seven until a pair of goals in the final 14 seconds spread the margin to the final 58-47.

In the other Friday action Palmer bombed South in Pueblo, 70-49, and East swamped Trinidad 85-47 on the Miners' home court. Tonight's activity is concentrated in Pueblo where South and Trinidad lead off a doubleheader and are followed by Centennial and Central in a key early battle.

Academy High Swimmers Beaten, 51-44

The Air Academy High swimming team lost its fourth dual meet in six outings Friday with Ranum of suburban Denver taking a 51-44 decision over the Kadets at the Community Center pool at the Air Force Academy.

Top point producer of the meet, however, was Academy High's Dick Gibson who won both the 200 and 400-yard freestyle events. He won the shorter distance in a time of 2:18.7 and then came back later to set a new pool record of 4:56.5, breaking a mark of 4:57.7 set by himself in December.

Other events won by the Kadets were the 100 yard backstroke by Randy Ritter in 1:11.3, the 100 yard freestyle by Rudy Hallenback in 059.1, and Rudy Hallenback in 0:59.1, and the 200 yard freestyle relay.

Widefield Icers Beaten in Denver

The Widefield High School ice hockey team was shutout in Denver Friday afternoon as the Denver Junior Pioneers took an 8-0 decision in the first meeting between the two teams. Widefield goalie Steve King held the Pioneers scoreless until the last four minutes of the second period, but then the roof fell in with the winners scoring twice before the period ended and six more in the third stanza.

Pirates Rip Regis, Lead Loop Standings

BY DICK FOSTER

The St. Mary's Pirates ran right over one of the biggest bumps in the Denver Parochial League campaign Friday night, downing perennial power, Regis in a noisy 50-40 contest at St. Mary's.

Record-wise, the Pirates moved into first place with Mullen, with both showing 3-0 league records. That won't last for long, however, as the two squads face off Sunday at 2:30 at St. Mary's. It could be an early determining point in the DPL race, with Regis down one game already.

Dan Wright, who has built a successful pressing squad out of his short band of St. Mary's Pirates, seems to have taught the Bucs how to get around the press defense with an offense too. Regis' Raiders tried feeding the Pirates some press defense after the Denver mn battled from a 14 point deficit to one of two poins in the second quarter. It didn't work. St. Mary's seemed to move right around the Raiders' efforts, and Regis stayed rattled amid the heated "Wright press". didn't do much to help either. Guy Gibb's crew hit only 12 out of 52 shots, which isn't enough to achieve a lead of any sort.

To add to the Raider troubles, St. Mary's blistered the nets with a 76 per cent of connected shots from the field. Twenty out of 30 went in.

In the rebounding department, there was an even standoff with 30 apiece. Tom Socha reaped the praises for top rebounder with 13 over two taller Regis men. Each of those two, Rich had eight rebounds.

The Bucs clamped their now common press defense on the Red Raiders, and that, with the aid of terrific shooting pulled the Bucs far ahead early. It was an interesting first quarter of basketball for everyone but Regis fans. The Raiders scored three points in the first quarter. Ray Floyd saw extended action for the first time this season, and was a big instrument in the Bucs 17-3 score at the end of the frame. Although Floyd was replaced for good after the first quarter, he sank six points.

Regis may have been a little frightened by the full court press that Wright's men have learned to use effectively, but another factor could have been the noisy band of Buccaneer rooters who are always at their best when the Raiders come to town. Whatever, the cause, Guy Gibbs Denver cagers left it behind when the second frame began, and St. Mary's had their turn at being humiliated.

Within two minutes of second period action, Regis put the diet. The score was trimmed from 17-3 at the quarter's beginning, to 17-15 with 4:40 remaining, mostly on free throws —nine of them. At 2:30 in the same quarter Regis got as close as St. Mary's would allow. It stood at 18-17 when the Bucs again pulled away, and kept their distance for the rest of the contest. A late second quarter surge gave St. Mary's a 26-20 halftime lead.

There wasn't much of anything for anybody in the third quarter. Regis did pick up another point on the Bucs in that frame however, outscoring St. Mary's 9-8 in the quarter.

Leader-less Falcons Attempt to Snap Losing Streak

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Without their top scorer for the season — and a victory in the last three games — the Falcons of the Air Force Academy will try to regroup forces tonight in a return to their friendly floor at the AFA Cadet Gymnasium.

It will be the year's first meeting against the Universtiy of Denver, although the teams participated in the season-opening Mile High Classic in Denver early in December, and they are slated for a re-match in the state's capital. The varsity tipoff is scheduled for 8 p.m., with a prelim contest between freshman squads from both schools at 6 p.m.

Stock in the Air Force took a nose dive on Friday when it was announced that Jerry Yankee, the Falcons' leading point producer, will be out for this weekend and possibly the remainder of the season. Yankee, a junior guard from San Antonio. Tex., and owner of a 13.4 average on the scoreboard, was stricken with mononucleosis during the AFA's recent road trip.

During that journey, the Cadets found some rough going besides the loss of the slender backcourt ace. They lost three straight to Arkansas State, Creighton and North Dakota University to run their season's record to 3-5 .All three of the victories so far have come at home — and vice-versa for the losses.

Coach Bob Spear plans to enter sophomore Pete Hugdahl into the starting lineup in place of Yankee tonight. Hugdahl has shown vast improvement and owns one of the best shooting percentages on the squad, hitting on over half his attempts from the field. Another soph who probably will see extended duty tonight is guard Pat Dowling, a sparkplug in the three wins at home before the road trip over the holidays.

Denver started a rugged weekend with a trip to Ft. Collins on Friday and a contest with the Rams of Colorado State University, and then will bus down to the Academy today. Into this weekend the Pioneers had a 3-6 mark on the season after losing four straight on the road.

In DU's last start at New Mexico University, in which they dropped a 69-45 decision, the Pioneers reportedly played excellent ball up until the final minutes. Trailing by only six with 12 minutes left, Denver's ace forward Frank Mixon injured his neck and was forced to the bench.

Mixon, however, should be ready for full speed again tonight and he will be the main problem for the Air Force defense. In the nine games played, Mixon has paced the Pioneers with a 20-point average and is virtually tied for the team leadership in rebounds. The other top boardman for Coach Troy Bledsoe's troops is 6-5 center Jack England, a grad from South Pueblo's state runnerup in 1961.

Other top scorers besides the 6-4 Mixon are forward Jerry Causey and sophomore guard Gerry Grover, both averaging in double figures. The Air Force, though shows even more balance with five (counting Yankee) averaging 10 or more. The sixth, Hugdahl, has a 4.2 mean.

The Air Force record to date has been somewhat puzzling although this might have been expected since Spear is admittedly in the "building year" with only one non-starting senior on the squad.

After opening with an easy win over Carroll College on the AFA floor, the Falcons came within a whisker of upsetting Colorado State U. in the opening round of the Mile High Classic in an overtime verdict, and then followed up with a loss to Colorado U. in the second night of the same tourney.

Coming home, the Cadets found the range in their own cozy gym and raised at least a few eyebrows with consecutive wins over Big Eight Conference opponents, Missouri and Iowa State. Then it was back on the road over the holiday span and they fell victim three straight times to Arkansas State, Creighton and North Dakota.

So now the question will be whether the familiar surroundings of the Academy gym and the friendly crowd will pull the Fliers out of the current tailspin or not. Anyway, the Falcons won't have long to test the theory as after tonight it's back on the road for games at Texas Western in El Paso and New Mexico State next weekend.

That will mark the mid-point of the season for the Air Force, and the last lap includes a string of five straight home games which could go a long way towards making them well again. That home stint, however, has several national powers coming to the Academy in Oklahoma City, Brigham Young, Wyoming and Marquette.

Other than Hugdahl or Dowling replacing Yankee, the AFA starting lineup probably will have Scott Etnyre at the other guard, sophomore Fred Budinger and Sam Peshut at forwards, and Ed Sullivan on the post. Denver will have Mixon and Causey at forwards, England at center, with Grover and Dennis English at guards.

ALL-AMERICA CANDIDATE — Denver University's leading scorer and all-around team leader, Frank Mixon, will be in action tonight when the Falcons of the Air Force Academy host the Pioneers at the Cadet Gym. Game time is 8 p.m. Mixon, a 6-4 forward from Vallejo, Calif., has been averaging just under 20 point per game and had a season's high of 30 points recently against Louisiana State University.

Tigers Trip Wisconsin; Magie, Genz Score Two

MADISON,, Wisc.—Paced by the twin-goal scoring of Bob Magie and John Genz, Colorado College's hockey team raced to an 8-4 victory over the University of Wisconsin in the first meeting between the two schools here Friday night.

The teams are to meet again tonight in another non-league contest. The victory brought CC's record to 4-6 for the season, and Wisconsin now has a 6-5 record with all the defeats coming against Western Collegiate Hockey Association teams.

The Tigers from Colorado Springs exploded for four goals in the span of five minutes midway through the second period to all but clinch the triumph. Genz started the fireworks at the 13:20 mark of the middle chapter, and then Warren Fordyce, Magie and Steve Ebert followed up with tallies with Ebert's coming at the 18:17 point on the clock.

A crowd of 1,971 watched a rough and tumble battle in this second period with no less than eight penalties called against both teams.

CC finished off its scoring in the third period with Dave Peterson punching in the seventh goal with 7:34 gone, and then Genz got his second of the night less than three minutes later. Wisconsin's Ray Clegg also got a pair of goals, one in the second period and the other in the third.

Coach Bob Johnson said after the game that overall he was pleased with his Tigers' performance and that he thought goalie Bill Howard played well considering this was his first appearance with the CC varsity. Howard, a transfer from North Dakota who just became eligible on Friday, made 26 saves but allowed the four goals.

Johnson also said he felt that with CC winning four of its last five games that "they've finally found themselves. I really believe that this team could be unbeaten except for a few breaks that went the other way."

The Tigers will change goalies again for tonight's return game with the Badgers, with little Mike Carter scheduled to take the nets. Carter had a shutout in his last effort, a 2-0 win over Boston University, and it was the first whitewash for a CC goalie in 208 games over eight seasons.

McCalvy Rips Cords For 35-Point Night

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO—Bucking alleged personal fouls more than South's Colts, Palmer's Terrors danced off with a 70-49 South Central League victory Friday night in the District 60 Gymnasium.

Forward Bill McCalvy jammed the nets with 35 points the best yet for the 5-11 senior. Bob Pearson scored 12 before fouling out in the final period.

The officious officials tootled 22 personals on the visiting Terrors, a factor which kept the Colts as close as they were. South hit 21 of 35 free shots, a resepctable 60 per cent, but 60 shots.

managed only 14 field goals in

One zealous guardian of hardcourt jurisprudence charged Palmer coach with a technical foul near the end of the first half for standing up and giving directions to his team. A consulation of basketball's Blackstone revealed the official's crime and he pleaded guilty to making a false accusation.

Fortunately, the Terrors could have been assessed several more fouls and it probably would not have hurt them much. They broke away to a 20-13 first quarter lead on five of eight from the field and a pair of beautiful arching corner shots by guard Tom Espinoza.

It was more of the same in the second period, with McCalvy finishing the half with 20 points.

Palmer put on its stall offense in the second half and held down the scoring. But McCalvy still pulled out seven more points. South could not get a point until Dick Smith hit a free throw at 3:45 and didn't get a field goal until Smith hit at 1:27. The Colts got only four shots at the bucket the third period.

A foul-filled fourth quarter just ran out the clock as Palmer ran past South's full-court press almost at will. The Terrors showed a stronger offense and its zone defense muddled South's heralded fast break tactics. The Colts went to a more conservative type game but couldn't break on the boards against Parson and Ed Fitzgerald.

Palmer hit 29 of 52 shots from the field for a superb 55.8 average. The Terrors had one of their better nights at the free throw line with 12 of 19.

Palmer gets the supreme chance to find out if its warming offense can do the job against highly - rated teams next week as the Terrors host Pueblo Centennial Friday and Pueblo Central's defending SCL champs Saturday.

Kadets Dump Canon City

CANON CITY — John Delventhal's run-gun Kadets of Academy High picked up their second victory of the season here Friday night against Canon City's Tigers in the opening game of the Will Rogers League.

This was the second time the Big Blue dumped the Tigers, and was the second win for the Academy High roundballers in eight games.

Roger Karolick dumped in 13 points to spearhead the Kadets' victory as the top scorer in the WRL, Bert spear, was held to a mere seven points as the Tigers' Mickey Gann contained the Kadet flash.

Dee Betts poured in 20 points for the Tigers in a losing cause.

Panthers Race Past Tribe In WRL Opener Tilt, 74-57

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Norman Sullivan's tall and talented Panthers showed their stuff Friday night as the Harrison roundballers lived up to their pre-season rating as the prime candidates for the newly formed Will Rogers League pennant.

The over-capacity crowd saw black Friday night at the Cheyenne Gymnasium as the Panthers took complete charge of the scoring in addition to safeguarding the defensive backboards.

Coupled with alert defensive ballhawking with 6-4 John Dalton blocking numerous Cheyenne field goal attempts and his outstanding job of rebounding and the smooth operation of the Panthers' offensive attack, the Harrison aggregation raced to an overwhelming 74-57 triumph to kick-off their WRL campaign on a happy note.

This was sweet revenge for the Panthers after an earlier season loss to Don O'Hare's Indians in non-league competition. The Panthers lost that outing in the WRL Pre-Season Tournament by a single point, 65-64.

But Friday night the Harrison basketballers could not be denied their rightful place as the top challenger to the WRL championship.

Even though the Tribe managed to stay within striking distance of the Panthers in the first half, the Harrison crew took complete charge of the game in the third period as they jumped to a 19-point lead. The Panthers scored 38 points in the second half while they limited the Indians to 25 points, which resulted in a decisive decision for the Harrison team.

Ron Graham was high point man for both teams as the 6-2 senior managed to outduel his taller opponent, Dalton, under the basket with effective moves. Graham collected 25 points and picked up a dozen rebounds to pace the Cheyenne team.

Dalton also displayed agility for a lanky cager as he worked poured in 16 points followed by Larry Gagnon with 15 points, Mike Obert with 11 points and Eddie Hook with 11 and Dick Rauschkolb provided the spark in the second half as the transfer student scored 13 points.

The Tribe managed to tie up the score on two different occasions in the second period as Graham scored five quick points to deadlock the contest, 28-28. But Hook tied put the Panthers ahead, 32-30, after Graham tied up the score.

Two non-league games are on tap tonight. Cheyenne travels north to battle Mapleton and Widefield seeks to beef up its 1-5 won-loss record when they tangle with Brighton as the latter team's home court. Both games are set for 8 p.m.

Bulldog Giant Tough At Thunderbirds Bow

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Pueblo Centennial unveiled seven-foot Ron Smith for Colorado Springs fans Friday night and the giant sophomore was the difference as the Bulldogs launched their drive for the South Central League title with a 58-47 triumph over Wasson in a ragged conference opener at the Palmer Gymnasium.

Smith, who relaxed on the bench for the majority of the first quarter and saw only partial action in the final three periods, was still the key figure as the favored Pueblo club fought off several late flurries by the scrapping Thunderbirds to win going away.

The towering Centennial soph, who appears to be taller from the waist down than some of the Wasson guards, picked off 16 rebounds, scored 12 points, and intimidated the Thunderbird shooters in the area around the goal during his abbreviated performance. That, plus slick work by veteran guard Jerry Guttierez and an almost flawless performance at the free throw line by Scott Eslinger was enough to break down a spotty effort by the Colorado Springs team.

Actually, the majority of the contest was more an exchange of mistakes than polished basketball. The Thunderbirds' bothersome press gave the Bulldogs brief periods of trouble, especially in the first half, but when Wasson was desperately attempting to close the gap in the final few minutes Guttierez consistently slipped through the tight pressure and on several occasions set up easy goals for the bigger men breaking underneath.

It was another night of shooting miseries for the T-Birds, who finished with 20 of 61 field goal attempts for 32.8 per cent. However, Wasson was finding the net with some regularity until Smith came wading onto the floor in the second period to block three straight shots.

From that point the Birds had a bad case of nerves any time the Centennial "big man" was in the vicinity and the field goal percentage began to tail off rapidly. During the first seven minutes of the second period Wasson could manage just two points and it was then that the Bulldogs made the move that was to eventually spell the difference.

Junior Randy Stanley, the Thunderbirds' leading scorer, again took point honors with 12.

He was closely followed by Mike Martin who dumped in 11 and was the only member of the losers to hit with any consistency from out court. Veterans Jim Smith and Charlie Steel, the two returning starters, managed only eight and five points.

Guttierez topped Centennial's balanced attack with 16 points but three others broke double figures. Eslinger hit 13, including nine of 11 at the free throw line, Smith had 12, and Bud Temple 10.

The Bulldogs took the lead in the opening minute of play on a drive by Temple but Wasson pulled into ties at 2-2 and 6-6 before Stanley shot them ahead at 8-6 with a short jumper from the side with 4:38 left in the first period. The lead then see-sawed until the Thunderbirds surrendered it for good on a pair of Eslinger free throws which moved Centennial out front at 13-12 with 1:06 left. The Bulldogs had 15-13 advantage at the quarter.

On came Smith at the start of the second period to score two straight goals at the same time Wasson shooters were being gripped in a deep freeze. A goal by Jim Krug, a junior varsity player until this week, was the only Thunderbird score until Krug again hit with 0:20 left in the half. During the interval Centennial had stretched its margin to 10 points and despite a brief T-Bird rally still led 25-20 at halftime.

The Bulldogs ran into shooting problems early in the third quarter and Wasson gradually closed until a Martin field goal deadlocked the score at 31-13 with 2:40 to go. Smith then dumped in a field goal and added a free toss a minute later as Centennial began to wedge out a lead again and the Dogs were still on top at 39-35 heading into the final period.

Wasson hung within five points until midway in the last quarter but then gave up rapid-fire baskets to Eslinger and Guttierez and faded to 50-41, an advantage it was evident they were not to overcome. They were back with seven until a pair of goals in the final 14 seconds spread the margin to the final 58-47.

In the other Friday action Palmer bombed South in Pueblo, 70-49, and East swamped Trinidad 85-47 on the Miners' home court. Tonight's activity is concentrated in Pueblo where South and Trinidad lead off a doubleheader and are followed by Centennial and Central in a key early battle.

Academy High Swimmers Beaten, 51-44

The Air Academy High swimming team lost its fourth dual meet in six outings Friday with Ranum of suburban Denver taking a 51-44 decision over the Kadets at the Community Center pool at the Air Force Academy.

Top point producer of the meet, however, was Academy High's Dick Gibson who won both the 200 and 400-yard freestyle events. He won the shorter distance in a time of 2:18.7 and then came back later to set a new pool record of 4:56.5, breaking a mark of 4:57.7 set by himself in December.

Other events won by the Kadets were the 100 yard backstroke by Randy Ritter in 1:11.3, the 100 yard freestyle by Rudy Hallenback in 050.1, and Rudy Hallenback in 0:59.1, and the 200 yard freestyle relay.

Widefield Icers Beaten in Denver

The Widefield High School ice hockey team was shutout in Denver Friday afternoon as the Denver Junior Pioneers took an 8-0 decision in the first meeting between the two teams. Widefield goalie Steve King held the Pioneers scoreless until the last four minutes of the second period, but then the roof fell in with the winners scoring twice before the period ended and six more in the third stanza.

Pirates Rip Regis, Lead Loop Standings

BY DICK FOSTER

The St. Mary's Pirates ran right over one of the biggest bumps in the Denver Parochial League campaign Friday night, downing perennial power, Regis in a noisy 50-40 contest at St. Mary's.

Record-wise, the Pirates moved into first place with Mullen, with both showing 3-0 league records. That won't last for long, however, as the two squads face off Sunday at 2:30 at St. Mary's. It could be an early determining point in the DPL race, with Regis down one game already.

Dan Wright, who has built a successful pressing squad out of his short band of St. Mary's Pirates, seems to have taught the Bucs how to get around the press defense with an offense too. Regis' Raiders tried feeding the Pirates some press defense after the Denver men battled from a 14 point deficit to one of two poins in the second quarter. It didn't work. St. Mary's seemed to move right around the Raiders' efforts, and Regis stayed rattled amid the heated "Wright press". didn't do much to help either. Guy Gibb's crew hit only 12 out of 52 shots, which isn't enough to achieve a lead of any sort.

To add to the Raider troubles, St. Mary's blistered the nets with a 76 per cent of connected shots from the field. Twenty out of 30 went in.

In the rebounding department, there was an even standoff with 30 apiece. Tom Socha reaped the praises for top rebounder with 13 over two taller Regis men. Each of those two, Rich had eight rebounds.

The Bucs clamped their now common press defense on the Red Raiders, and that, with the aid of terrific shooting pulled the Bucs far ahead early. It was an interesting first quarter of basketball for everyone but Regis fans. The Raiders scored three points in the first quarter. Ray Floyd saw extended action for the first time this season, and was a big instrument in the Bucs 17-3 score at the end of the frame. Although Floyd was replaced for good after the first quarter, he sank six points.

Regis may have been a little frightened by the full court press that Wright's men have learned to use effectively, but another factor could have been the noisy band of Buccaneer rooters who are always at their best when the Raiders come to town. Whatever, the cause, Guy Gibbs Denver cagers left it behind when the second frame began, and St. Mary's had their turn at being humiliated.

Within two minutes of second period action, Regis put the diet. The score was trimmed from 17-3 at the quarter's beginning, to 17-15 with 4:40 remaining, mostly on free throws —nine of them. At 2:50 in the same quarter Regis got as close as St. Mary's would allow. It stood at 18-17 when the Bucs again pulled away, and kept their distance for the rest of the contest. A late second quarter surge gave St. Mary's a 26-20 halftime lead.

There wasn't much of anything for anybody in the third quarter. Regis did pick up another point on the Bucs in that frame however, outscoring St. Mary's 9-8 in the quarter.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Palookas Pursued

Why look a gift-horse in the mouth?

This seems to sum up Ralph Archer's attitude in regards to the National Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) Bowling Tournament moving to Classic Bowl in Colorado Springs.

Popular Pro Kegler

Slated for Feb. 23-27 at Classic Bowl, the PBA tournament which has been labelled the Pikes Peak Open is one of 13 such tourneys scheduled for airing over national television via ABC-TV was to be held at Celebrity Sports Center in Denver. However, for sundry reasons Archer, the tourney's promoter for the Pikes Peak Open, elected or was forced to move the tournament site south of the upstate Mile High City.

And Colorado Springs was chosen the site for the 1965 tournament.

Regardless of the reasons, there are conflicting versions of why the PBA got booted out of Denver, which boasts nearly 50 bowling establishments in that city's metropolitan area. Two Denver bowling scribes give various reasons for the PBA tourney drummed out of the northern city, but both writers agree that it was a blow to Denver's bowling prestige.

Without question the PBA tourney is the biggest single event in the history of Colorado Springs bowling annals!

Local bowlers will have the opportunity to see the nation's top professional keglers in action during the five-day affair at Classic Bowl. According to Archer who heads the Ralph Archer Promotions Inc., some 96 touring pros are expected to compete in the Pikes Peak Open, and the big gunners will be shooting for a chunk of the $25,000 prize money.

Among the top ranked pros will be Don Carter, known in bowling circles as Mr. Bowling, and Bill Lillard, who is the only triple-crown winner in ABC tournament history; the 1963 National PBA touring champion Billy Hardwick; Bob Strampe, Billy Allen, Dick Weber, Ray Bluth, Harry Smith and Andy Marzich.

In addition to the 96 pros, 10 state bowlers will qualify to make for an estimated field of 106 keglers entered in the Pikes Peak Open. The open day of the tourney here will be for the 250 state bowlers competing in the Pro-Am Tourney.

The touring pros are scheduled to compete in the Thunderbird Open, which has its finals set for Feb. 20, at Wichita before they roll into Colorado Springs for the Pikes Peak Open.

Many of the local bowlers will remember Bill Lillard who made several exhibition bowling appearances in Colorad Springs. Lillard appeared at Ute Lanes and for the grand opening of Circle Lanes. During his two visits here, the Texan proved popular with Colorado Springs bowlers.

Lillard's history-making feats in the ABC Tournament came in 1956 when he shared the team title with the Chicago Falstaffs, added the doubles co-championship with Stan Gifford and claimed the individual all-events crown. That same year, he swept to victory in the BPAA-Star Tournament and was named the nation's Bowler of the Year.

Colorado Springs' member of the elite "300" perfect game club members and who two years ago was voted the Bowler of the Year, Harry (Ike) Eichelberger, defeated Lillard in a three-game series rolloff, 574-548, during an exhibition match at Circle Lanes' grand opening.

Archer, who resides in Wheat state-wide "300" Challenge Ridge, said that the money from the ticket sales of the Pikes Peak Open will go to the March of Dimes. The local chapter of the March of Dimes will handle the tickets and Archer felt they could realize $4,000 from the tournament if the Pikes Peak Open proves popular with the local bowlers.

Archer is also promoting the which boosts a $5,000 jackpot prize for a 300 two-game score while bowling in the finals on television.

"We're looking for the 'palookas' in bowling," Archer said in summing up the "300" Challenge program. Archer related that the state-wide program, which kicks off the first TV show on Jan. 23 in Denver was set up to appeal to the below-average bowlers.

Two partners with a team average of less than 300, put up a buck and qualify at a house level. From there they compete in the semi-finals and the top scores there advance into the championship bracket.

Archer is expectant that the "300" Challenge will prove popular in Colorado Springs and spread throughout the state. However, at present there are only two bowling establishments in this area "buying" the program but Archer reports that there are more than 30 Denver houses participating in the program.

Fountain Opens League By Defeating Manitou

After dividing two close decisions in non-league early play, Fountain High pulled out a convincing 62-41 victory over Manitou Springs Friday night in the opener of Pikes Peak League action for both squads.

Twice before they had met and the PPL opener was rated a tossup, but balanced scoring from Bill Carne, Terry Kent and Neil Fleischauer gave the Trojans their triumph on the Fountain court. Carne paced the winners with 18, followed by 14 from Kent and a dozen by Fleischauer.

Busting loose from a deadlock at 25-25 at halftime, Fountain went ahead by four at the end of the third period and then turned on the gas in the final quarter with 25 points of Manitou's eight.

Top scorers for Manitou were Bruce Heidenreich with 17 and John (The Jet) Moore with 11.

The victory, of course, gave Fountain a 1-0 record in Pikes Peak League standings, and dropped Manitou to a 0-1 Mark. All previous games were non-league contests.

Newberrys Win Skate Crowns

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — A pair of Colorado Springs, Colo. sisters scored easy victories Friday at the annual Midwestern Sectional Figure Skating championships.

Gail Newberry, 14, last year's U.S. novice ladies titleholder, received the first votes of all five judges for a perfect score of five points in senior ladies' singles. Her sister, Carol, 12, received four firsts and a tie in novice ladies' singles with 5½ points.

In other Friday afternoon events, Doug Brendt of Denver upset two-time Midwestern champion Perry Hutchings of Skokie, Ill., in junior men's singles and Allen Weingarden of Minneapolis won the novice men's singles.

Competition in the 22-state state qualifying area continues through Saturday night when the three top skaters in senior and junior singles, senior pairs and silver dance, will win berths in the U.S. championships at Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10-13.

Results:

Spartans Run Past Buena 85-53

SALIDA —The Spartans of Salida opened their Pikes Peak League campaign with an 85-53 victory over Buena Vista here Friday night, for their second victory in seven games over the entire season. This was the first game in league action for both, however.

Paced by John Lantz' 28 points, the Spartans took a nine point lead in the opening period and stretched that to an 11-point margin by halftime. The winners coasted home in the second half, riding the crest of a 26 point outburst in the third period.

Beside Lantz' big night, others in double figures for the winners were Harley Hagan with 11 and Keith Baker's 10. Buena Vista was led by Mel Machtrieb's 13 points and a dozen from John Foreman.

Florence Five Slips Past Crowley County

FLORENCE — Behind the shooting of David Zamarripa, who hit the nets for 27 points, the Florence basketball team swept to a 64-63 Pikes Peak League here Friday night over Crowley County.

Despite the fact the Crowley County cagers collected 23 of 40 charity tosses, the Florence team rallied in the third period via a 22-point scoring spree to clinch the victory.

Terry Burmood hit for 22 points for the losers.

Michigan State Nips Gophers In Hockey 4-3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)— Michigan goalie Jerry Fisher's brilliant game in the nets sparked the Spartans to a 4-3 victory over Minnesota in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association opener for the visitors Friday night.

Fisher had 30 saves for the night and was under tremendous pressure near the end when MSU had a man short and the Gophers pulled their goalie for a final shot at a tie. Fisher staved it off, however. Gopher goalie John Lothrop had 18 stops.

Minnesota had a 2-1 lead in the second period on goals by Doug Woog and Larry Stordahl. Doug Roberts got the Spartans' first goal.

Namath Key to Senior Bowl

By KELSO STURGEON

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The North is pinning its hopes for upsetting the South and Joe Namath in Saturday's Senior Bowl football game on a blitzing line rush and the ability of its defensive secondary to cover receiver Bob Hayes.

George Wilson, who is coaching the Yankees, said Friday, "we've got to rush hard and fast and, in some way also try to cover Hayes if we're to make a game of it.

"We know Namath and Steve Tensi are outstanding passers, but Hayes worries us most of all," Wilson said. "Hayes has so much speed that he can wreck you in a split second," he pointed out.

Hayes won the Olympic 100-meter dash at Tokyo in October.

The South remained a touchdown favorite to beat the Yanks on the eve of the 16th annual contest, which marks the official pro debut of the players of both teams.

A sellout crowd of 40,605 and a nationally televised audience (NBC) will witness the contest. Kickoff is scheduled for 2 p.m. (EST).

The weather forecast calls for temperatures in the mid-70s and for occasional showers, ending before game time.

This year's classic is the first time that the game has been integrated.

Officials of the Senior bowl invited Hayes and halfback Bob Felts, both of Florida A&M, to represent the South, and Michigan State's Dick Gordon and Jerry Rush, to play for the North.

They will be the first Negroes to compete in the game and they have been accepted without notice.

Wilson was quick to point out that the passing of Namath, the Alabama quarterback who signed a pro contract for $400,000 last week, and Tensi, the Florida State star, has drawn all the publicity but that he, too, has a man who can throw the ball.

He was talking about Tom Myers of Northwestern, who gained a solid reputation as a passer the past three years in the Big Ten.

"We know the South is going to have a wide-open attack. Myers will give us the same kind of an operation " he said.

Besides Hayes, Namath and Tensi will be throwing to such standout receivers as All-America end Allen Brown of Mississippi and flankerback Bob Schweickert of Virginia Tech.

Expected to do the bulk of the receiving for the North are Jim Whalen of Boston College, Len Frketich of Oregon State and Jerry Smith of Arizona State.

The rules will be a combination of those from the professional and college codes. The only major change will allow the team trailing by nine points or more to always receive the following kickoff, regardless of which squad scores.

NCAA Tackles Signings During Annual Convention

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association may lean more towards friendly persuasion than retaliation in tackling the problem of premature pro football signings, its top spokesman indicated Friday.

The 59th NCAA convention opened Friday with scattered preliminary meetings. The more than 3,000 delegates get down to official business when the conclave opens formally Monday.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said three "meaningful matters" were on the convention program which hits a climax with next Wednesday's voting session.

How to handle the freshly-aggravated problem of sneak pro signings of collegiate football seniors is one.

The other two top agenda items, Byers said, concern the NCAA policy "on cooperative sanctioning of outside competition" — a tame description of the raging feud between the NCAA and the AAU — and a minimum academic standard for NCAA-sponsored competitions.

Although some collegiate leaders are coming here with sparks aflying over premature pro signing of collegians, Byers displayed a conciliatory attitude.

"Personally, I'm not convinced that retaliation is the course to take, said Byers. "The course may be, the first step — let's try to get the pros together for a reasonable solution.

"The obvious solution is getting the pros to refrain from drafting a boy until his eligibility is ended. My first choice would be a June drafting deadline, which obviously would not be practical for the pros. But it certainly should be after the first of the year to avoid the bowl mess we have just seen."

The 1964 draft was held by both the National and American Football Leagues on Nov. 28. The situation became an issue when it was disclosed four Oklahoma players signed pro contracts before the Sooner-Florida State Gator Bowl game.

The college realm also was irked when it was revealed tackle Jim Wilson of Georgia Tech played his senior season while under contract to the Boston Patriots of the AFL.

Athletic Director Jim Corbett of Louisiana State, chairman of the NCAA committee on college-professional relations, Friday promised "a remedy to this situation" when his group meets Sunday.

"We can put a stop to this practice and we're going to," said Corbett.

Also rolling up his sleeves on the subject is Len Casanova, Oregon's head coach, who quit Thursday as co-coach of the North team in the Hula bowl game as a protest against premature signings.

Casanova, as president of the American Football Coaches Association, will represent the group's 1,700 members in Sunday's meeting of Corbett's committee.

The battle with the AAU brings a dissident Eastern College Athletic Conference delegation of 144 members. The ECAC will propose a coalition between the AAU and the NCAA-backed U.S. Track and Field Federation, with the AAU still retaining international sanctioning control.

But Byers contends the NCAA proposal to ban collegians from AAU sponsored meets has "wide support" among 587 voting delegates. He indicated the ECAC proposal is doomed because "it has to be agreed upon by both parties — the AAU and the Federation."

Sudden Death Scheduled In Case of Pro Bowl Tie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sudden death will be in order if the National Football League's Pro Bowl winds up in a tie Sunday.

This is the 15th annual NFL all-star game, and there's never been a tie. But there have been some close ones.

In the first game, in 1951, the East beat the West in the final moments, 28-27. In 1956 it was the East over the West, again by one point 31-30.

It was the same 31-30 in 1962 for the West over the East.

The NFL director of public relations, Jim Kensil, made the announcement here of the sudden death prospect Friday. The rule is not used in regular season games.

Meanwhile, the rival squads were about ready to conclude active training. But according to the coaches, Cleveland's Blanton Collier for the East and Baltimore's Don Shula for the West, there's still a lot of book and blackboard slated for the final day.

Each coach has a nucleus of talent from his own team. Collier has his quarterback star, Frank Ryan; fullback Jim Brown, and end Paul Warfield. Backing up Ryan is Sonny Jurgensen of the Washington Redskins.

Shula has such baltimore stars as quarterback Johnny Unitas, halfback Lenny Moore and end Ray Berry on his offensive team. He also has Jim Brown's opposite number, hard-hitting fullback Jimmy Taylor of the Green Bay Packers.

Offense is usually the theme of any all-star game since the coaches don't have time to install too many defensive game plans. But the defensive talent is here.

Lane Wins Settlement In Court

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's much-traveled Frank Lane won a $113,000 settlement Friday in federal court Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, who fired Lane after a stormy short term as general manager of the baseball club.

Lane had sued for $144,166 which he said represented unpaid salaries in a $250,000-per year, eight-season contract he signed with the A's Feb. 15, 1961. Lane was fired by Finley Aug. 26, 1961.

After 1½ days of closed chamber conferences, the jury trial ended with Judge James B. Parsons announcing that Finley agreed to pay $100,000 for Lane's contracted services from 1965 to 1968 and $13,000 for previous services.

The 68-year-old Lane, who chortled with delight at the settlement, had claimed $44,000 for his services between May 1, 1963, and Dec. 31, 1964.

This was reduced to $13,000 in consideration of the fact Lane during that period was general manager of the Chicago team in the National Basketball Association.

Lane had been paid previously-owed salary in his contracted 1961-1964 term as A's general manager. During the final four years of the contract Lane was to serve as consultant to Finley.

The agreement freed Lane of any obligation in services to Finley and permits him to seek future baseball employment. An exception is that if Lane gets another general manager job the settlement must be renegotiated.

Lane, before he joined the A's, was general manager for the Chicago White Sox, St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland Indians.

Finley left immediately after the agreement was announced.

The smiling Lane shook hands around the courtroom and posed for cameramen.

"Spread the word I'm still open for a baseball job," he said.

Bill Casper Takes Lead In LA Golf

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The once portly Bill Casper, Jr. found the golf course and a new diet to his liking Friday, knocked five strokes off par for a 66 and led the way through the first round of the $70,000 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

The 34-year-old Californian, who won the U.S. Open championship in 1959, toured the par 36-35—71 Rancho Municipal Course in 35-31—66 to grab a lead of one stroke.

Slimmed down to just under 200 pounds, Casper was dead on the greens, holing birdie putts that traveled, as his round proceeded, 30, 70, 20, 25 and 3 feet.

As favored Arnold Palmer and current National Open champion Ken Venturi settled back with 72's in a bracket packed with about a score of golfers, the defending champion, Paul Harney, and newcomer Bryant (Babe) Hiskey, each carded 34-34—68.

Tied at 69 were Bob McCallister, Howie Johnson and Jack McGowan.

Champion Tony Lema, America's British Open champion, had 37-33—70, along with Julius Boros, Jerry Edwards, Doug Sanders and Gardner Dickinson.

PGA champion Bobby Nichols made the 70 group, finishing with 35-35 just as darkness closed in.

The weather was bright and brisk and most of the big opening day gallery, as expected, took after Palmer. The Masters champion played the back side first and posted an unhappy 38. But he gathered his game in hand and came back in a respectable 34.

Venturi shot an even 36-36—72.

The 34-year-old Harney, who left a sick bed after an attack of pneumonia to come here from his home at Sacramento's Pleasant Valley Country Club, holed three 15-foot putts for birdies and his most explosive shot was a chip of 70 feet on the par-3 third.

Hiskey, 26, who plays out of Pocatello, Idaho, turned pro in 1963. He played for the University of Houston's golf team and then served a hitch in the Army.

In recent weeks Casper went on a special sort of diet after discovering that certain foods did not agree with him.

"Now I feel fine," he said.

Casper holed a 30-foot putt for a birdie on the third, and played out the remainder of the first nine in par.

He was even on No. 10, "and then things got exciting," Casper related.

'Skins Claim Broncos Jumped Gun on Signing

By W. B. RAGSDALE Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Football League captured Washington's two top draft choices by signing one before he completed his college play and giving the other a three-year, no-cut contract, Coach Bill McPeak of the Redskins said Friday.

It was the first time since McPeak took charge in 1961 that the Redskins have lost their top draft choices. Last year, they signed halfback Charley Taylor of Arizona State and defensive back Paul Krause of Iowa and saw them finish one-two in voting for National Football League Rookie of the Year honor.

Due to a pre-season trade, Washington had no first-round choice so Bob Breitenstein,, Tulsa guard chosen in the second round, was their top selection. His signing with Denver of the AFL was announced shortly after Tulsa played Mississippi in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

"Breitenstein was signed so far ahead of the Bluebonnet Bowl that he was in no position to entertain our offer," McPeak said.

The Tulsa lineman has said Denver offered him more money than Washington.

McPeak said he was ready to top any money offer by Denver, but never had a chance because the boy already was committed.

The Oakland Raiders have announced the signing of Kent McCloughan, Nebraska halfback selected No. 3 by Washington.

McCloughan has denied signing but has indicated he favors Oakland and has said the Raiders offered more money than Washington.

McPeak said McCloughan, when they conferred after the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, insisted upon a three-year, no-cut contract. The Washington coach added that he made McCloughan an offer for a three-year contract paying more money than Oakland offered, but with no-cut security for only one season.

"He told us he thought he'd better take the Oakland offer."

McPeak, whose team finished third in the NFL's Eastern Division last fall after years in or near the cellar, said he thinks it is dangerous for any team with title potential to give a no-cut contract for more than one year.

"It may be all right for a team like the New York Jets to do this. They only have a few veterans they care about keeping and the rest are only around until they can get somebody better," McPeak added. The AFL Jets recently signed Alabama quarterback Joe Namath to a three-year, no-cut contract for an estimated $400,000 and are expected to announce Saturday the signing of Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte, Notre Dame quarterback, for some $200,000.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Palookas Pursued

Why look a gift-horse in the mouth?

This seems to sum up Ralph Archer's attitude in regards to the National Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) Bowling Tournament moving to Classic Bowl in Colorado Springs.

Slated for Feb. 23-27 at Classic Bowl, the PBA tournament which has been labelled the Pikes Peak Open is one of 13 such tourneys scheduled for airing over national television via ABC-TV was to be held at Celebrity Sports Center in Denver. However, for sundry reasons Archer, the tourney's promoter for the Pikes Peak Open, elected or was forced to move the tournament site south of the upstate Mile High City.

And Colorado Springs was chosen the site for the 1965 tournament.

Regardless of the reasons, there are conflicting versions of why the PBA got booted out of Denver, which boasts nearly 50 bowling establishments in that city's metropolitan area. Two Denver bowling scribes give various reasons for the PBA tourney drummed out of the northern city, but both writers agree that it was a blow to Denver's bowling prestige.

Without question the PBA tourney is the biggest single event in the history of Colorado Springs bowling annals!

Local bowlers will have the opportunity to see the nation's top professional keglers in action during the five-day affair at Classic Bowl. According to Archer who heads the Ralph Archer Promotions Inc., some 96 touring pros are expected to compete in the Pikes Peak Open, and the big gunners will be shooting for a chunk of the $25,000 prize money.

Among the top ranked pros will be Don Carter, known in bowling circles as Mr. Bowling, and Bill Lillard, who is the only triple-crown winner in ABC tournament history; the 1963 National PBA touring champion Billy Hardwick; Bob Strampe, Billy Allen, Dick Weber, Ray Bluth, Harry Smith and Andy Marzich.

In addition to the 96 pros, 10 state bowlers will qualify to make for an estimated field of 106 keglers entered in the Pikes Peak Open. The open day of the tourney here will be for the 250 state bowlers competing in the Pro-Am Tourney.

The touring pros are scheduled to compete in the Thunderbird Open, which has its finals set for Feb. 20, at Wichita before they roll into Colorado Springs for the Pikes Peak Open.

Many of the local bowlers will remember Bill Lillard who made several exhibition bowling appearances in Colorad Springs. Lillard appeared at Ute Lanes and for the grand opening of Circle Lanes. During his two visits here, the Texan proved popular with Colorado Springs bowlers.

Lillard's history-making feats in the ABC Tournament came in 1956 when he shared the team title with the Chicago Falstaffs, added the doubles co-championship with Stan Gifford and claimed the individual all-events crown. That same year, he swept to victory in the BPAA-Star Tournament and was named the nation's Bowler of the Year.

Colorado Springs' member of the elite "300" perfect game club members and who two years ago was voted the Bowler of the Year, Harry (Ike) Eichelberger, defeated Lillard in a three-game series rolloff, 574-548, during an exhibition match at Circle Lanes' grand opening.

Archer, who resides in Wheat Ridge, said that the money from the ticket sales of the Pikes Peak Open will go to the March of Dimes. The local chapter of the March of Dimes will handle the tickets and Archer felt they could realize $4,000 from the tournament if the Pikes Peak Open proves popular with the local bowlers.

state-wide "300" Challenge

Archer is also promoting the which boosts a $5,000 jackpot prize for a 300 two-game score while bowling in the finals on television.

"We're looking for the 'palookas' in bowling," Archer said in summing up the "300" Challenge program. Archer related that the state-wide program, which kicks off the first TV show on Jan. 23 in Denver was set up to appeal to the below-average bowlers.

Two partners with a team average of less than 300, put up a buck and qualify at a house level. From there they compete in the semi-finals and the top scores there advance into the championship bracket.

Archer is expectant that the "300" Challenge will prove popular in Colorado Springs and spread throughout the state. However, at present there are only two bowling establishments in this area "buying" the program but Archer reports that there are more than 30 Denver houses participating in the program.

Fountain Opens League By Defeating Manitou

After dividing two close decisions in non-league early play, Fountain High pulled out a convincing 62-41 victory over Manitou Springs Friday night in the opener of Pikes Peak League action for both squads.

Twice before they had met and the PPL opener was rated a tossup, but balanced scoring from Bill Carne, Terry Kent and Neil Fleischauer gave the Trojans their triumph on the Fountain court. Carne paced the winners with 18, followed by 14 from Kent and a dozen by Fleischauer.

Busting loose from a deadlock at 25-25 at halftime, Fountain went ahead by four at the end of the third period and then turned on the gas in the final quarter with 25 points of Manitou's eight.

Top scorers for Manitou were Bruce Heidenreich with 17 and John (The Jet) Moore with 11.

The victory, of course, gave Fountain a 1-0 record in Pikes Peak League standings, and dropped Manitou to a 0-1 Mark. All previous games were non-league contests.

Newberrys Win Skate Crowns

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — A pair of Colorado Springs, Colo. sisters scored easy victories Friday at the annual Midwestern Sectional Figure Skating championships.

Gail Newberry, 14, last year's U.S. novice ladies titleholder, received the first votes of all five judges for a perfect score of five points in senior ladies' singles. Her sister, Carol, 12, received four firsts and a tie in novice ladies' singles with 5½ points.

In other Friday afternoon events, Doug Brendt of Denver upset two-time Midwestern champion Perry Hutchings of Skokie, Ill., in junior men's singles and Allen Weingarden of Minneapolis won the novice men's singles.

Competition in the 22-state state qualifying area continues through Saturday night when the three top skaters in senior and junior singles, senior pairs and silver dance, will win berths in the U.S. championships at Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10-13.

Results:

Junior men's singles—1, Doug Berndt, Denver, 7. 2, Perry Hutchings, Skokie, Ill., 8. 3, Chris Young, Troy, Ohio, 19.

Novice ladies singles —1 Carol Neberry, Colorado Springs, 5½, 2, Susan Susic, Chicago, 13 2-3. 3, Patti Ann Barz, Rockton, Ill. 18½.

Novice men's singles—1, Allen Weingarden, Minneapolis, 6. 2, Stephen Leroy, Minneapolis, 10 2-3. 3, Torrey Sun, Ames, Iowa, 16.

Michigan State Nips Gophers In Hockey 4-3

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)— Michigan goalie Jerry Fisher's brilliant game in the nets sparked the Spartans to a 4-3 victory over Minnesota in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association opener for the visitors Friday night.

Fisher had 30 saves for the night and was under tremendous pressure near the end when MSU had a man short and the Gophers pulled their goalie for a final shot at a tie. Fisher staved it off, however. Gopher goalie John Lothrop had 18 stops.

Minnesota had a 2-1 lead in the second period on goals by Doug Woog and Larry Stordahl. Doug Roberts got the Spartans' first goal.

MONUMENT — The Lewis-Palmer basketball team raced to its fifth straight Black Forest League victory here Friday night as the home cagers bombarded Elizabeth, 63-34.

In other league action Friday night, Calhan defeated the Colorado Deaf and Blind team, 48-32. Jim Carter hit for 22 points for the Calhan team while Dan Ward's 12 points was tops for the D&B squad.

The Lewis-Palmer roundballers jumped to a 20-8 first period score and increased that lead at intermission, 33-12. For the Monument team, Julian Warthen and Crosby Carver hit for 14 points apiece.

Spartans Run Past Buena 85-53

SALIDA —The Spartans of Salida opened their Pikes Peak League campaign with an 85-53 victory over Buena Vista here Friday night, for their second victory in seven games over the entire season. This was the first game in league action for both, however.

Paced by John Lantz' 28 points, the Spartans took a nine point lead in the opening period and stretched that to an 11-point margin by halftime. The winners coasted home in the second half, riding the crest of a 26 point outburst in the third period.

Beside Lantz' big night, others in double figures for the winners were Harley Hagan with 11 and Keith Baker's 10. Buena Vista was led by Mel Machtrieb's 13 points and a dozen from John Foreman.

Namath Key to Senior Bowl

By KELSO STURGEON

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The North is pinning its hopes for upsetting the South and Joe Namath in Saturday's Senior Bowl football game on a blitzing line rush and the ability of its defensive secondary to cover receiver Bob Hayes.

George Wilson, who is coaching the Yankees, said Friday, "we've got to rush hard and fast and, in some way also try to cover Hayes if we're to make a game of it.

"We know Namath and Steve Tensi are outstanding passers, but Hayes worries us most of all," Wilson said. "Hayes has so much speed that he can wreck you in a split second," he pointed out.

Hayes won the Olympic 100-meter dash at Tokyo in October.

The South remained a touchdown favorite to beat the Yanks on the eve of the 16th annual contest, which marks the official pro debut of the players of both teams.

A sellout crowd of 40,605 and a nationally televised audience (NBC) will witness the contest. Kickoff is scheduled for 2 p.m. (EST).

The weather forecast calls for temperatures in the mid-70s and for occasional showers, ending before game time.

This year's classic is the first time that the game has been integrated.

Officials of the Senior bowl invited Hayes and halfback Bob Felts, both of Florida A&M, to represent the South, and Michigan State's Dick Gordon and Jerry Rush, to play for the North.

They will be the first Negroes to compete in the game and they have been accepted without notice.

Wilson was quick to point out that the passing of Namath, the Alabama quarterback who signed a pro contract for $400,000 last week, and Tensi, the Florida State star, has drawn all the publicity but that he, too, has a man who can throw the ball.

He was talking about Tom Myers of Northwestern, who gained a solid reputation as a passer the past three years in the Big Ten.

"We know the South is going to have a wide-open attack. Myers will give us the same kind of an operation " he said.

Besides Hayes, Namath and Tensi will be throwing to such standout receivers as All-America end Allen Brown of Mississippi and flankerback Bob Schweickert of Virginia Tech.

Expected to do the bulk of the receiving for the North are Jim Whalen of Boston College, Len Frketich of Oregon State and Jerry Smith of Arizona State.

The rules will be a combination of those from the professional and college codes. The only major change will allow the team trailing by nine points or more to always receive the following kickoff, regardless of which squad scores.

NCAA Tackles Signings During Annual Convention

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association may lean more towards friendly persuasion than retaliation in tackling the problem of premature pro football signings, its top spokesman indicated Friday.

The 59th NCAA convention opened Friday with scattered preliminary meetings. The more than 3,000 delegates get down to official business when the conclave opens formally Monday.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said three "meaningful matters" were on the convention program which hits a climax with next Wednesday's voting session.

How to handle the freshly-aggravated problem of sneak pro signings of collegiate football seniors is one.

The other two top agenda items, Byers said, concern the NCAA policy "on cooperative sanctioning of outside competition" — a tame description of the raging feud between the NCAA and the AAU — and a minimum academic standard for NCAA-sponsored competitions.

Although some collegiate leaders are coming here with sparks aflying over premature pro signing of collegians, Byers displayed a conciliatory attitude.

"Personally, I'm not convinced that retaliation is the course to take, said Byers. "The course may be, the first step — let's try to get the pros together for a reasonable solution.

"The obvious solution is getting the pros to refrain from drafting a boy until his eligibility is ended. My first choice would be a June drafting deadline, which obviously would not be practical for the pros. But it certainly should be after the first of the year to avoid the bowl mess we have just seen."

The 1964 draft was held by both the National and American Football Leagues on Nov. 28. The situation became an issue when it was disclosed four Oklahoma players signed pro contracts before the Sooner-Florida State Gator Bowl game.

The college realm also was irked when it was revealed tackle Jim Wilson of Georgia Tech played his senior season while under contract to the Boston Patriots of the AFL.

Athletic Director Jim Corbett of Louisiana State, chairman of the NCAA committee on college-professional relations, Friday promised "a remedy to this situation" when his group meets Sunday.

"We can put a stop to this practice and we're going to," said Corbett.

Also rolling up his sleeves on the subject is Len Casanova, Oregon's head coach, who quit Thursday as co-coach of the North team in the Hula bowl game as a protest against premature signings.

Casanova, as president of the American Football Coaches Association, will represent the group's 1,700 members in Sunday's meeting of Corbett's committee.

The battle with the AAU brings a dissident Eastern College Athletic Conference delegation of 144 members. The ECAC will propose a coalition between the AAU and the NCAA-backed U.S. Track and Field Federation, with the AAU still retaining international sanctioning control.

But Byers contends the NCAA proposal to ban collegians from AAU sponsored meets has "wide support" among 587 voting delegates. He indicated the ECAC proposal is doomed because "it has to be agreed upon by both parties — the AAU and the Federation."

Sudden Death Scheduled In Case of Pro Bowl Tie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sudden death will be in order if the National Football League's Pro Bowl winds up in a tie Sunday.

This is the 15th annual NFL all-star game, and there's never been a tie. But there have been some close ones.

In the first game, in 1951, the East beat the West in the final moments, 28-27. In 1956 it was the East over the West, again by one point 31-30.

It was the same 31-30 in 1962 for the West over the East.

The NFL director of public relations, Jim Kensil, made the announcement here of the sudden death prospect Friday. The rule is not used in regular season games.

Meanwhile, the rival squads were about ready to conclude active training. But according to the coaches, Cleveland's Blanton Collier for the East and Baltimore's Don Shula for the West, there's still a lot of book and blackboard slated for the final day.

Each coach has a nucleus of talent from his own team. Collier has his quarterback star, Frank Ryan; fullback Jim Brown, and end Paul Warfield. Backing up Ryan is Sonny Jurgensen of the Washington Redskins.

Shula has such baltimore stars as quarterback Johnny Unitas, halfback Lenny Moore and end Ray Berry on his offensive team. He also has Jim Brown's opposite number, hard-hitting fullback Jimmy Taylor of the Green Bay Packers.

Offense is usually the theme of any all-star game since the coaches don't have time to install too many defensive game plans. But the defensive talent is here.

Lane Wins Settlement In Court

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball's much-traveled Frank Lane won a $113,000 settlement Friday in federal court Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, who fired Lane after a stormy short term as general manager of the baseball club.

Lane had sued for $144,166 which he said represented unpaid salaries in a $250,000-per year, eight-season contract he signed with the A's Feb. 15, 1961. Lane was fired by Finley Aug. 26, 1961.

After 1½ days of closed chamber conferences, the jury trial ended with Judge James B. Parsons announcing that Finley agreed to pay $100,000 for Lane's contracted services from 1965 to 1968 and $13,000 for previous services.

The 68-year-old Lane, who chortled with delight at the settlement, had claimed $44,000 for his services between May 1, 1963, and Dec. 31, 1964.

This was reduced to $13,000 in consideration of the fact Lane during that period was general manager of the Chicago team in the National Basketball Association.

Lane had been paid previously-owed salary in his contracted 1961-1964 term as A's general manager. During the final four years of the contract Lane was to serve as consultant to Finley.

The agreement freed Lane of any obligation in services to Finley and permits him to seek future baseball employment. An exception is that if Lane gets another general manager job the settlement must be renegotiated.

Lane, before he joined the A's, was general manager for the Chicago White Sox, St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland Indians.

Finley left immediately after the agreement was announced.

The smiling Lane shook hands around the courtroom and posed for cameramen.

"Spread the word I'm still open for a baseball job," he said.

'Skins Claim Broncos Jumped Gun on Signing

By W. B. RAGSDALE Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Football League captured Washington's two top draft choices by signing one before he completed his college play and giving the other a three-year, no-cut contract, Coach Bill McPeak of the Redskins said Friday.

It was the first time since McPeak took charge in 1961 that the Redskins have lost their top draft choices. Last year, they signed halfback Charley Taylor of Arizona State and defensive back Paul Krause of Iowa and saw them finish one-two in voting for National Football League Rookie of the Year honor.

Due to a pre-season trade, Washington had no first-round choice so Bob Breitenstein,, Tulsa guard chosen in the second round, was their top selection. His signing with Denver of the AFL was announced shortly after Tulsa played Mississippi in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

"Breitenstein was signed so far ahead of the Bluebonnet Bowl that he was in no position to entertain our offer," McPeak said.

The Tulsa lineman has said Denver offered him more money than Washington.

McPeak said he was ready to top any money offer by Denver, but never had a chance because the boy already was committed.

The Oakland Raiders have announced the signing of Kent McCloughan, Nebraska halfback selected No. 3 by Washington.

McCloughan has denied signing but has indicated he favors Oakland and has said the Raiders offered more money than Washington.

McPeak said McCloughan, when they conferred after the Cotton Bowl in Dallas, insisted upon a three-year, no-cut contract. The Washington coach added that he made McCloughan an offer for a three-year contract paying more money than Oakland offered, but with no-cut security for only one season.

"He told us he thought he'd better take the Oakland offer."

McPeak, whose team finished third in the NFL's Eastern Division last fall after years in or near the cellar, said he thinks it is dangerous for any team with title potential to give a no-cut contract for more than one year.

"It may be all right for a team like the New York Jets to do this. They only have a few veterans they care about keeping and the rest are only around until they can get somebody better," McPeak added. The AFL Jets recently signed Alabama quarterback Joe Namath to a three-year, no-cut contract for an estimated $400,000 and are expected to announce Saturday the signing of Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte, Notre Dame quarterback, for some $200,000.

Bill Casper Takes Lead In LA Golf

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The once portly Bill Casper, Jr. found the golf course and a new diet to his liking Friday, knocked five strokes off par for a 66 and led the way through the first round of the $70,000 Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

The 34-year-old Californian, who won the U.S. Open championship in 1959, toured the par 36-35—71 Rancho Municipal Course in 35-31—66 to grab a lead of one stroke.

Slimmed down to just under 200 pounds, Casper was dead on the greens, holing birdie putts that traveled, as his round proceeded, 30, 70, 20, 25 and 3 feet.

As favored Arnold Palmer and current National Open champion Ken Venturi settled back with 72's in a bracket packed with about a score of golfers, the defending champion, Paul Harney, and newcomer Bryant (Babe) Hiskey, each carded 34-34—68.

Tied at 69 were Bob McCallister, Howie Johnson and Jack McGowan.

Champion Tony Lema, America's British Open champion, had 37-33—70, along with Julius Boros, Jerry Edwards, Doug Sanders and Gardner Dickinson.

PGA champion Bobby Nichols made the 70 group, finishing with 35-35 just as darkness closed in.

The weather was bright and brisk and most of the big opening day gallery, as expected, took after Palmer. The Masters champion played the back side first and posted an unhappy 38. But he gathered his game in hand and came back in a respectable 34.

Venturi shot an even 36-36—72.

The 34-year-old Harney, who left a sick bed after an attack of pneumonia to come here from his home at Sacramento's Pleasant Valley Country Club, holed three 15-foot putts for birdies and his most explosive shot was a chip of 70 feet on the par-3 third.

Hiskey, 26, who plays out of Pocatello, Idaho, turned pro in 1963. He played for the University of Houston's golf team and then served a hitch in the Army.

In recent weeks Casper went on a special sort of diet after discovering that certain foods did not agree with him.

"Now I feel fine," he said.

Casper holed a 30-foot putt for a birdie on the third, and played out the remainder of the first nine in par.

He was even on No. 10, "and then things got exciting," Casper related.

Only Ryan Bothered Unitas

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Did those big ends bother you in the championship game?"

The question went to Baltimore's quarterback, Johnny Unitas, in reference to the recent Colt-Cleveland Brown championship game in the National Football League.

"The only guy that bothered me was Frank Ryan,," replied Unitas, holding back a grin.

Ryan, of course, was the winning quarterback that day in Cleveland.

The rival quarterbacks and teammates, plus coaches, were guests at a luncheon heralding Sunday's East-West Pro Bowl.

Baltimore's All Pro defensive end Gino Marchetti made it official—again. He announced his retirement. Giant Gino made the same announcement at the same social affair a year ago.

"This time it's different. I don't need the money any more," said Marchetti, who with Alan (The Horse) Ameche, a former teammate, owns a chain of hamburger havens in the Baltimore area.

Defensive end Willie Davis of Green Bay noted that he had been talking with Minnesota's famed scrambling quarterback, Fran Tarkenton, Unitas' alternate Sunday.

"It was the first time I ever saw him up close," cracked Willie.

"How many times did your coach, Dutch Van Brocklin, lose his temper this year, Fran?"

"Oh, none!" said Tarkenton in mock dismay.

Cleveland's Bill Glass was asked his size.

"Six-six, 255," replied Glass.

"And you, Roger Brown of Detroit?"

"Five-10, 185," answered the 6-5, 296-pound Roger.

Unitas was presented a trophy as the Back of the Game a year ago.

"I thought Jimmy Taylor deserved the trophy. Of course I'm not going to give it to him," said Unitas. The Green Bay fullback star, sitting nearby, joined in the laughter.

West Coach Don Shula, whose Colts were wrecked by Cleveland's Frank Ryan and Jim Brown in the title game, told his horror story.

"I got on the plane to come out here. I settled back and thought I'd forget football for awhile," Shula related.

"Then they showed a movie on the plane. It was Rio Conchos. You know who was in it? Jimmy Brown.

"It was better seeing him on the screen instead of the football field, though," Shula concluded.

10 Teams Slated For State Meet

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (UPI)—Ten colleges will compete this weekend in the Western State College Intercollegiate Ski Meet at Crested Butte.

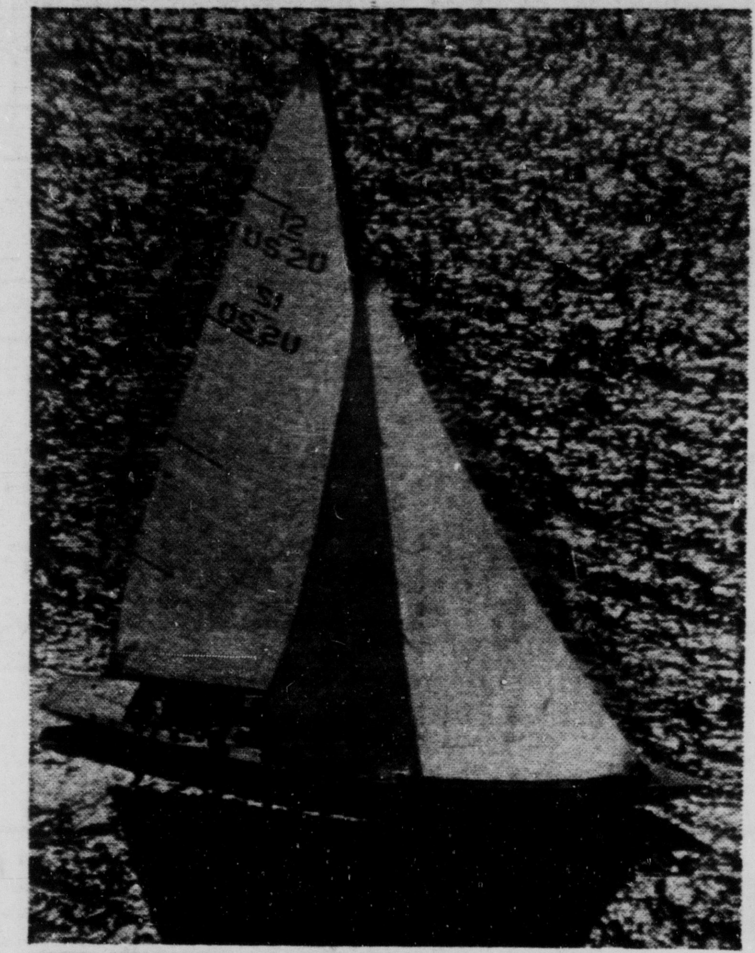
Arch-rivals Colorado University and Denver University are expected to be top contenders for the ski title. Colorado edged the Pioneers 199-197 last week at the Steamboat Springs Intercollegiate Meet.

Other teams entered in the event are: Western State, Utah, Utah State, Wyoming, Fort Lewis, Air Force, Colorado Mines and Yampa (Colo.) College.

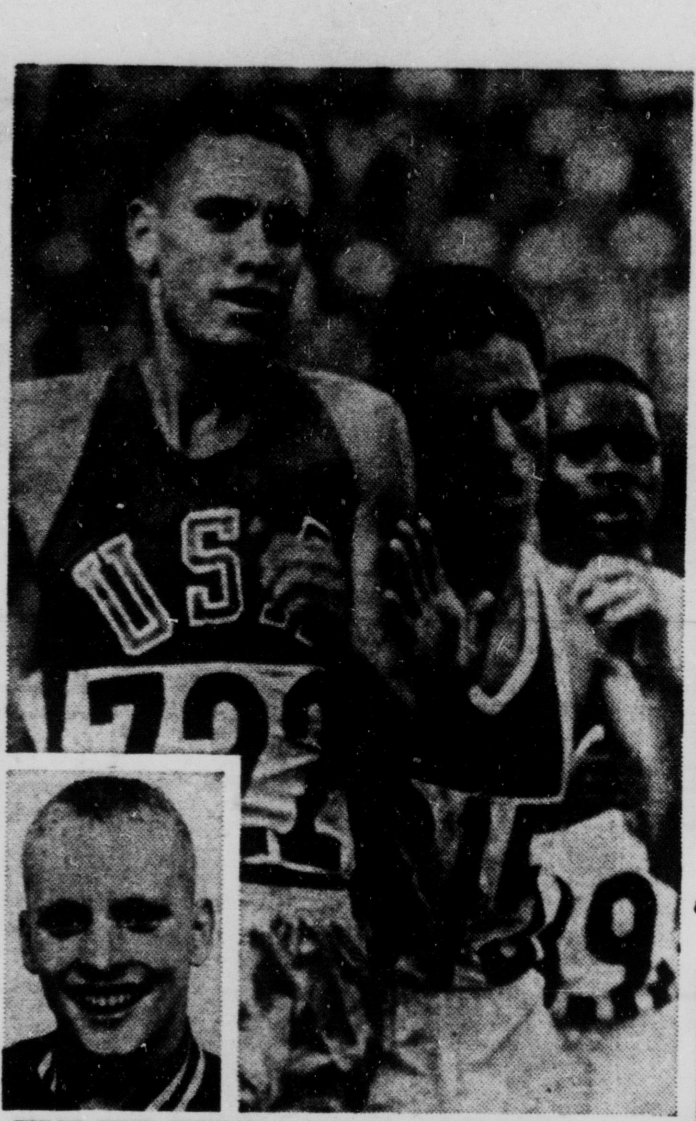
RANGERS CALL INGRAM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Defenseman Ron Ingram of the Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League will replace Rod Seiling, who has a bruised shoulder, for the New York Rangers in two National Hockey League games against Montreal and Toronto this weekend.

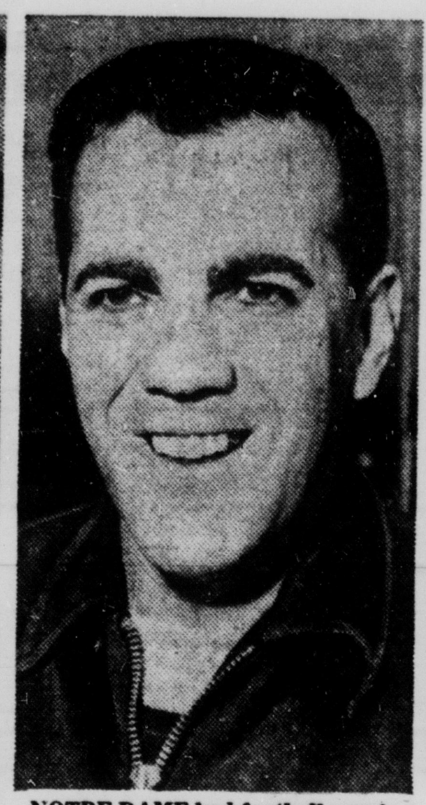
1964 CHAMPIONS



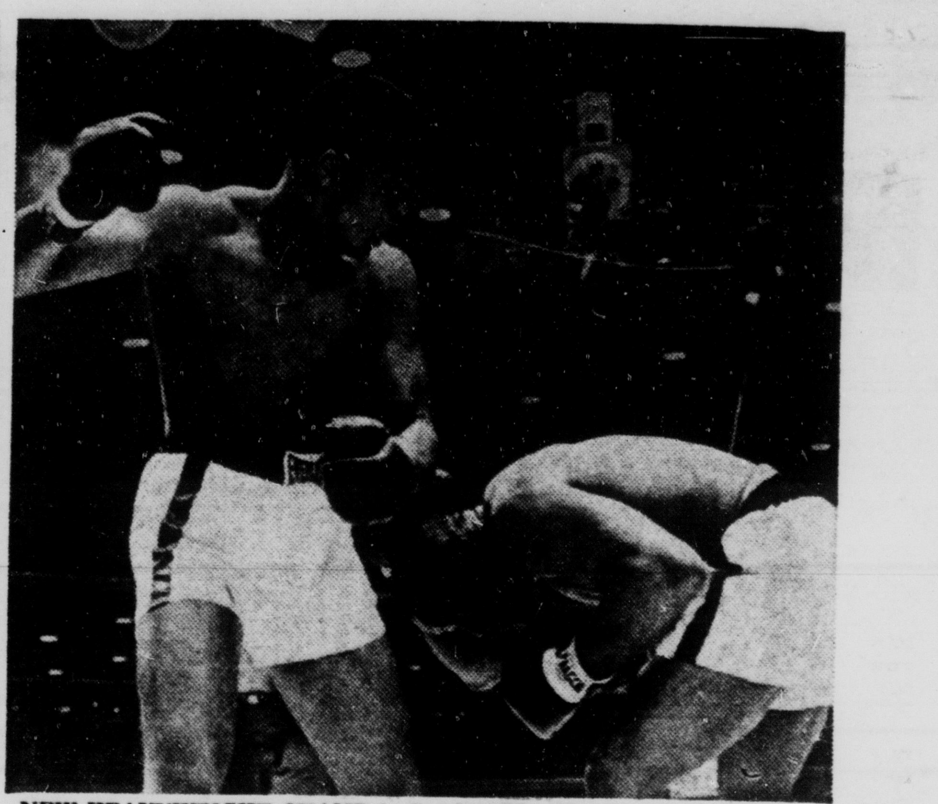
THE AULD MUG was held safe in America when the U. S. defender Constellation just clear outran Britain's Sovereign and swept four yacht races in Narragansett Bay, repulsing the 19th attempt since 1851 to win the symbolic America's Cup.



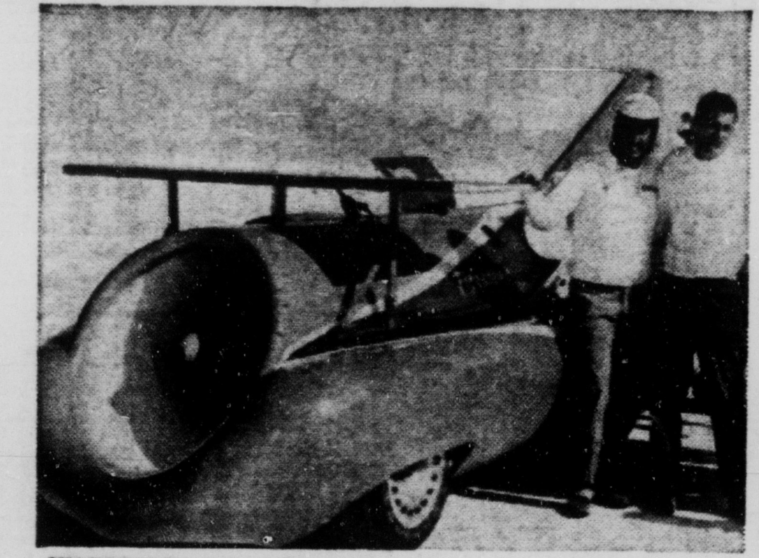
FIRST TIME EVER for an American, Billy Mills won the 10,000-meter run by three yards in the Tokyo Olympics. Big U. S. winner was Don Schollander of Oregon, inset, who won four gold medals in the swimming competition.



NOTRE DAME had football renaissance as new coach Ara Parseghian molded Fightin' Irish into a powerhouse in the old tradition.

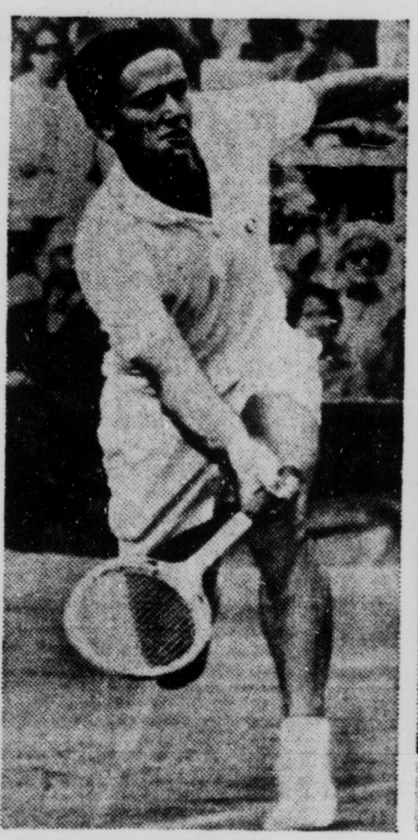


NEW HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP is Cassius (The Mouth) Clay who won a lackluster Miami Beach bout from defender Sonny Liston on a TKO when the latter failed to answer the bell for the seventh round. Here, Liston ducks a right by Clay. Hernia suffered by Clay canceled the rematch.



WORLD'S FASTEST HUMAN on wheels: Art Arfons of Akron. In his 17,000-horsepower Green Monster, Art scorched Utah's Bonneville Salt Flats at an unprecedented 536.17 miles an hour. Jetting through the sound barrier may be his next aim.

TOP MONEY WINNER on the pro golf circuit was Jack Nicklaus, with Arnold Palmer a few bucks off. Here, Nicklaus helps Arnie don symbolic green coat after Palmer became the first man ever to win the Masters title four times.



RACQUET MASTER Roy Emerson won the Wimbledon singles, teamed with Fred Stolle to take the Davis Cup back to Australia.

HORSE OF YEAR for fifth time is Kelso. The 7-year-old gelding is the world's leading money winner with $1,893,362 in his saddlebags.

THREE CAREER MAN: Jim Brown—Thespian, author of "Off My Chest," and record 10,000 plus yards gained as a top football pro.

Olympic Runners Perform In Winter Track's Debut

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The indoor track season gets off to a blazing start Saturday night in the Cow Palace with 27 Olymplanse competing in the second San Francisco Invitational Meet.

The meet won't be affected by the NCAA boycott of AAU events since no collegians were invited.

Leading the array of Olympic Games stars is Billy Mills, the Marine who surprised the world in Tokyo by winning the 10,000 meters.

Mills, from Camp Pendleton, runs the mile against a strong field that includes Gary Weisiger of North Carolina, who has a 3:56.6, and Archie San Romani from Oregon's Emerald Empire Athletic Association, who has run a 3:57.6. Mills' best is 4:05.2.

There are six gold medalists besides Mills entered in the meet.

They include double-gold medal winner Mike Larabee, who captured the 400-meter race in Tokyo and came back to help win the 1600-meter relay for the United States.

The other Tokyo individual gold medal winner is Rex Cawley, who finished first in the 400 meter hurdles. He'll match strides with Blaine Lindgren long jumper Ralph Boston and others in the 60-yard hurdles.

Larabee, running for the Southern California Striders, goes against gold medalist Paul Drayton in the 160-yard dash. Drayton was on the winning 400-meter relay team in Tokyo.

Jack Yerman, who ran on the winning 1600-meter relay team for the United States in the 1960 Rome Olympics, and Ulis Williams, a member of the U.S. team that took the same event in 1964, are some of the competition Larabee must face in the 440-yard dash Saturday.

Boston, the 1960 gold and 1964 silver medalist, is entered in the long jump and the triple jump besides the 60. Boston holds the world record of 27-4 in the long jump and will get a stiff test from Gayle Hopkins, whose 26-9 is the third best mark of all time.

Since no meet would be the same without him, the darling of the indoor track set — 18-year-old Gerry Lindgren of Spokane, Wash — runs in the two-mile.

All told, there are 24 events on the program, 16 of them track.

Thoroughbred Sold Twice in Single Day

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Auctioneer George Swinebroad sold a thoroughbred colt Friday — twice. He did 20 per cent better the second time.

Swinebroad had taken a $2,500 bid on Big Flash, a 3-year-old son of Bernburgoo, at the Keeneland winter sale of horses of all ages. But the bidder insisted he didn't go past $1,400.

So Swineboard ordered the colt back into the sale ring and finally sold it to Joe Mecula for $3,000.

Tom Gentry paid top price of the afternoon session when he bid $25,000 for Olympia Gal, a 12-year-old mare in foal to Hail to Reason. Mrs. Harry A. Love was the seller.

SKIPS FINAL SEAON

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—Louisiana State University tackle Mickey Cox will pass up a remaining year of college eligibility to play with the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

Bold Lad Expected Top Horse

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bold Lad, who succeeded in 1964 to the extent he won eight of 10 races and the 2-year-old title, is the 3-year-old most likely to succeed this year.

That is the opinion of Thomas E. Trotter, handicapper for The Jockey Club, in making the 1965 Experimental Free Handicap—a theoretical scaling of weights in which he listed 121 horses who reached their third birthday on Jan. 1.

Trotter assigned 130 pounds to the home bred ace of Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable while putting 127 on Mrs. Mary B. Hecht's Sadair, who established a money winning record of $498,217 with eight victories in 12 starts.

Both Bold Lad, never worse than second, and Sadair, never out of the money, are at Hialeah Park where they have started serious training for such major $100,000 plus races as the Flamingo, Florida Derby, Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes. Their first head-on clash over a distance of ground is expected to be in the 1⅛ miles of the Flamingo at Hialeah March 3.

The two times Sadair met Bold Lad last year he finished third, beaten by 4½ and 3½ lengths. Bold Lad retired in October before Sadair upped his 2-year-old record bankroll by victories in the Garden State Stakes and the Pimlico Futurity—each at 1 1-16 miles.

Bold Lad is the fifth colt in the 31-year history of the Experimental to be weighted with at least 130 pounds. Bimelech was the first at 130 in 1940. Two years later Alsab also was given 130 and in 1943 Count Fleet, who went on to win the Triple Crown, received the highest impost of 132 pounds. Then 10 years passed before Native Dancer was assigned 130.

Trotter scaled Michael Ford's Royal Gunner and the Warner Stable's Native Charger at 123 each with Tom Rolfe one pound less and Umbrella Fella, stablemate of Royal Gunner, at 121 along with Bosun.

Queen Empress, also from the Wheatley Stable and best of the 1964 2-year-old fillies, was rated tops among the distaff members. She was given 118 pounds.

Saturday's race program is headed by the $50,000-added San Carlos over seven furlongs at Santa Anita and the $25,000-added Dade Metro over 1 1-16 miles at Tropical Park. Fair Grounds headlines the 1 1-16-miles of the $7,500-added Old Hickory 'Cap.

Namath Wants to Prove Himself In Pro Ball After Huge Contract

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — "I'm gonna try like hell."

Joe Namath's steel gray eyes flash fire when he is reminded of the derisive remarks of pro football veterans over his fantastic $400,000 contract—and the suggestion that he could prove the game's biggest bust.

Frank Ryan, quarterback of the National League champion Cleveland Browns, commented facetiously that if a rookie quarterback with a bum knee is worth that kind of money, "then I must be worth a million."

Even more bitter words came from Namath's future teammates on the New York Jets of the American League—quarterbacks Dick Wood, Mike Taliaferro and Pete Liske.

"I don't see how anybody coming out of college is worth that much" said Wood. "Sounds impossible," added Taliaferro. "I'd lie if I didn't say I was disappointed," complained Liske.

Dave (Hawk) Hanner, 10-year tackle of the Green Bay Packers, said he didn't belive Namath or any other bonus baby in pro football would be willing to pay the price.

"Pay the price" Namath blurted today, talking between practice sessions for Saturday's Senior Bowl game. "This guy hasn't spent four years at Alabama or he'd never make a statement like that.

"You don't play four years under Coach Bryant (Paul Bear Bryant, the Alabama coach) without paying the price. You give every gut you have or you don't play."

Namath admitted that he was concerned by the furor raised in pro football over his incredible three-year contract and bonuses, the largest financial outlay ever handed a player.

"I can't blame some of the fellows for being skeptical and even sore, but they should understand the circumstances.

They should give me a chance to prove myself before they come down on my head like this."

The 194-pound, 6-foot-2 signal caller with the rifle arm is determined to silence his critics by making good.

"I know they'll be laying for me—it's just natural," he said. "But I'm not scared. I don't run scared any more. I've had all the scare knocked out of me.

"I know pro football is touch, but ability doesn't change. The difference in pro and college football is that the pros are smarter. They have learned more. They are big and smart and good at every position but I figure I can learn, too.

"I will learn, and if I have my way, I'll play football for 20 years. I love it."

Namath gives the impression of a young man who doesn't frighten easily. Born of Hungarian parents and reared in the rugged steel area of Western Pennsylvania, he looks like a collection of nuts and bolts, tough leather and sheer nerve.

He talks in an almost inaudible whisper—low, every word measured and with an incongrous mixture of modesty and brash confidence.

At times, he appears cocky.

He is quiet but not bashful. On the campus at Tuscaloosa, he may turn up one day wearing a rakish beret and the next day a racy zoot suit. Other students follow suit. When the band strikes up a jazzy tune, Joe may do an impromptu twist on the 50-yard line.

He is a lean, powerfully built youngster with sleepy grey-green eyes, skin and brown as Mohgany and a prominent nose. The hands which can throw the football so accuretly are big, strong and full of callouses.

They say no man in the game, pro or college, can get the ball away more quickly. With a lightning flick of the wrist he can heave the ball 30 or 40 yards and place it on a fifty-cent piece.

"I had to get the ball off in a hurry or I'd have been smothered," Joe explained, recalling his earlier days.

He was born in Beaver Falls, Pa., a steel center of 30,000 residents 30 miles northwest of Pittsburgh.

He played football with his three brothers—John, Bob and Frank—ON a dirt road which was Sixth Street. No grass, no lines, just dirt.

"Most of the time we played touch football but sometime we tackled, and I was half the size of the other boys," Nath said.

"When I wasn't playing, I practiced by throwing the ball against the side of the laundry and I broke every window in the place.

"In high school, I WAS THE SMALLEST BOY ON THE TEAM. I only weighed about 140 pounds. I took a real beating."

Although he liked both basketball and baseball better than football, he took up football he said, in self defense.

"I shined shoes at Gus' Top Hat—which later burned down—for 50 cents a week. Until I got my college scholarship, I was afraid I was going to have to spend my life in the steel mills.

"I dreaded that. I saw my father come home tired and grimy. I hated it. I even thought about entering the Air Force as a career just to keep out of those mills.

"Then I got a chance to play football at Alabama. That seemed like heaven to me. It was hard, but I welcomed it. And that's why I intended to make good as a pro—anything but those steel mills."

County Umpires Hold Meeting This Weekend

The first meeting of the year for the El Paso County Umpires Association will be held this Sunday Jan. 10, at 4 p.m. at the Stratton Meadows Elementary School.

The group's constitution and by-laws will be discussed and voted upon, and general discussion on the coming baseball season is planned. In addition, 1965 dues will be collected.

Group president Randy Hammel has urged that all umpires who worked during the 1964 season attend the meeting.

Three Northern Cities Bid for Winter Games

LACONIA, N.H. (AP) — Three northern New England cities — in three states — have been named as possible focal points for consideration as Winter Olympic sites in 1976.

Burlington, Vt., Portland, Maine and Laconia were named Thursday night by Malcolm McLane, of Concord, chairman of the Olympic Ski Committee, as potential homes for the Games.

McLane said features essential to any area in attracting the Olympics are mountains with racing terrain, reasonable proximity to an airport — and money.

McLane said Denver is bidding hard for the Games and New York State also is interested.

The 1968 winter competitions are scheduled for Grenoble, France and indications are that the 1972 games will be held in Canada which, McLane said would weaken America's bid for the 1976 events.

He said New England's only hope is in a joint six state effort to attract the Games.

He noted California raised funds for the 1960 games at Squaw Valley by floating a $12 million bond issue.

McLane said New England slopes are adequate for distance racing but the region lacks downhill facilities of "truly international caliber."

That is the opinion of Thomas E. Trotter, handicapper for The Jockey Club, in making the 1965 Experimental Free Handicap—a theoretical scaling of weights in which he listed 121 horses who reached their third birthday on Jan. 1.

Trotter assigned 130 pounds to the home bred ace of Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable while putting 127 on Mrs. Mary B. Hecht's Sadair, who established a money winning record of $498,217 with eight victories in 12 starts.

Both Bold Lad, never worse than second, and Sadair, never out of the money, are at Hialeah Park where they have started serious training for such major $100,000 plus races as the Flamingo, Florida Derby, Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes. Their first head-on clash over a distance of ground is expected to be in the 1⅛ miles of the Flamingo at Hialeah March 3.

The two times Sadair met Bold Lad last year he finished third, beaten by 4½ and 3½ lengths. Bold Lad retired in October before Sadair upped his 2-year-old record bankroll by victories in the Garden State Stakes and the Pimlico Futurity—each at 1 1-16 miles.

Bold Lad is the fifth colt in the 31-year history of the Experimental to be weighted with at least 130 pounds. Bimelech was the first at 130 in 1940. Two years later Alsab also was given 130 and in 1943 Count Fleet, who went on to win the Triple Crown, received the highest impost of 132 pounds. Then 10 years passed before Native Dancer was assigned 130.

Trotter scaled Michael Ford's Royal Gunner and the Warner Stable's Native Charger at 123 each with Tom Rolfe one pound less and Umbrella Fella, stablemate of Royal Gunner, at 121 along with Bosun.

Queen Empress, also from the Wheatley Stable and best of the 1964 2-year-old fillies, was rated tops among the distaff members. She was given 118 pounds.

Saturday's race program is headed by the $50,000-added San Carlos over seven furlongs at Santa Anita and the $25,000-added Dade Metro over 1 1-16 miles at Tropical Park. Fair Grounds headlines the 1 1-16-miles of the $7,500-added Old Hickory 'Cap.

Namath Wants to Prove Himself In Pro Ball After Huge Contract

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — "I'm gonna try like hell."

Joe Namath's steel gray eyes flash fire when he is reminded of the derisive remarks of pro football veterans over his fantastic $400,000 contract—and the suggestion that he could prove the game's biggest bust.

Frank Ryan, quarterback of the National League champion Cleveland Browns, commented facetiously that if a rookie quarterback with a bum knee is worth that kind of money, "then I must be worth a million."

Even more bitter words came from Namath's future teammates on the New York Jets of the American League—quarterbacks Dick Wood, Mike Taliaferro and Pete Liske.

"I don't see how anybody coming out of college is worth that much" said Wood. "Sounds impossible," added Taliaferro. "I'd lie if I didn't say I was disappointed," complained Liske.

Dave (Hawk) Hanner, 10-year tackle of the Green Bay Packers, said he didn't belive Namath or any other bonus baby in pro football would be willing to pay the price.

"Pay the price" Namath blurted today, talking between practice sessions for Saturday's Senior Bowl game. "This guy hasn't spent four years at Alabama or he'd never make a statement like that.

"You don't play four years under Coach Bryant (Paul Bear Bryant, the Alabama coach) without paying the price. You give every gut you have or you don't play."

Namath admitted that he was concerned by the furor raised in pro football over his incredible three-year contract and bonuses, the largest financial outlay ever handed a player.

"I can't blame some of the fellows for being skeptical and even sore, but they should understand the circumstances.

They should give me a chance to prove myself before they come down on my head like this."

The 194-pound, 6-foot-2 signal caller with the rifle arm is determined to silence his critics by making good.

"I know they'll be laying for me—it's just natural," he said. "But I'm not scared. I don't run scared any more. I've had all the scare knocked out of me.

"I know pro football is touch, but ability doesn't change. The difference in pro and college football is that the pros are smarter. They have learned more. They are big and smart and good at every position but I figure I can learn, too.

"I will learn, and if I have my way, I'll play football for 20 years. I love it."

Namath gives the impression of a young man who doesn't frighten easily. Born of Hungarian parents and reared in the rugged steel area of Western Pennsylvania, he looks like a collection of nuts and bolts, tough leather and sheer nerve.

He talks in an almost inaudible whisper—low, every word measured and with an incongrous mixture of modesty and brash confidence.

At times, he appears cocky.

He is quiet but not bashful. On the campus at Tuscaloosa, he may turn up one day wearing a rakish beret and the next day a racy zoot suit. Other students follow suit. When the band strikes up a jazzy tune, Joe may do an impromptu twist on the 50-yard line.

He is a lean, powerfully built youngster with sleepy grey-green eyes, skin and brown as Mohgany and a prominent nose. The hands which can throw the football so accuretly are big, strong and full of callouses.

They say no man in the game, pro or college, can get the ball away more quickly. With a lightning flick of the wrist he can heave the ball 30 or 40 yards and place it on a fifty-cent piece.

"I had to get the ball off in a hurry or I'd have been smothered," Joe explained, recalling his earlier days.

He was born in Beaver Falls, Pa., a steel center of 30,000 residents 30 miles northwest of Pittsburgh.

He played football with his three brothers—John, Bob and Frank—ON a dirt road which was Sixth Street. No grass, no lines, just dirt.

"Most of the time we played touch football but sometime we tackled, and I was half the size of the other boys," Nath said.

"When I wasn't playing, I practiced by throwing the ball against the side of the laundry and I broke every window in the place.

"In high school, I WAS THE SMALLEST BOY ON THE TEAM. I only weighed about 140 pounds. I took a real beating."

Although he liked both basketball and baseball better than football, he took up football he said, in self defense.

"I shined shoes at Gus' Top Hat—which later burned down—for 50 cents a week. Until I got my college scholarship, I was afraid I was going to have to spend my life in the steel mills.

"I dreaded that. I saw my father come home tired and grimy. I hated it. I even thought about entering the Air Force as a career just to keep out of those mills.

"Then I got a chance to play football at Alabama. That seemed like heaven to me. It was hard, but I welcomed it. And that's why I intended to make good as a pro—anything but those steel mills."

County Umpires Hold Meeting This Weekend

The first meeting of the year for the El Paso County Umpires Association will be held this Sunday Jan. 10, at 4 p.m. at the Stratton Meadows Elementary School.

The group's constitution and by - laws will be discussed and voted upon, and general discussion on the coming baseball season is planned. In addition, 1965 dues will be collected.

Group president Randy Hammel has urged that all umpires who worked during the 1964 season attend the meeting.

Three Northern Cities Bid for Winter Games

LACONIA, N.H. (AP) — Three northern New England cities — in three states — have been named as possible focal points for consideration as Winter Olympic sites in 1976.

Burlington, Vt., Portland, Maine and Laconia were named Thursday night by Malcolm McLane, of Concord, chairman of the Olympic Ski Committee, as potential homes for the Games.

McLane said features essential to any area in attracting the Olympics are mountains with racing terrain, reasonable proximity to an airport — and money.

McLane said Denver is bidding hard for the Games and New York State also is interested.

The 1968 winter competitions are scheduled for Grenoble, France and indications are that the 1972 games will be held in Canada which, McLane said would weaken America's bid for the 1976 events.

He said New England's only hope is in a joint six state effort to attract the Games.

He noted California raised funds for the 1960 games at Squaw Valley by floating a [illegible] million bond issue.

McLane said New England slopes are adequate for skiing racing but the region lacks downhill facilities of "truly international caliber."

Weekend Ski Conditions Excellent

DENVER (UPI)— The Colorado Ski Information Center said weather and skiing conditions over Colorado today were excellent.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled irregularly lower in fairly active trading late Monday afternoon.

Volume for the day was estimated at 5.2 million shares compared with 5.08 million Thursday.

The list was subject to profit taking, brokers said, after rising for the past three sessions and most of this morning.

Gold mining shares, higher in the morning, slipped to the downside on a U.S. Treasury statement that those who expect a boost in gold's basic price will "end on the losing side."

The top steelmakers showed minor losses. Motors were unchanged to narrowly mixed, with General Motors firm and Chrysler down a fraction.

Cigarette stocks declined in view of another report on smoking and health expected Monday.

Prices were generally higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were unchanged to slightly lower.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices were generally firm on the Board of Trade today but soybeans went into a slow decline shortly after he opening.

Early buying in soybeans reflected some stop loss orders and the dip came when some cash houses and longs sold on the advance.

Brokers said most interests preferred to remain on the sidelines pending outcome of efforts to head off a threatened strike of longshoremen Monday in Gulf and Atlantic ports.

Carlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 3 cars, corn 115, oats 7, rye none, barley 9, soybeans 11.

Food Proves Fatal To Two Zoo Seals

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Prepackaged foods proved fatal to two seals at Mohawk Park Zoo.

An autopsy ordered after the seals had died showed their stomachs were lined with plastic which had blocked their digestive processes, it was disclosed Thursday.

The plastic was traced to a pool-side cooler where fish wrapped in plastic bags were sold to patrons as zoo food. some of the customers apparently fed the seals the fish still wrapped in the bags. The concession has been closed.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled irregularly lower in fairly active trading late Monday afternoon.

Volume for the day was estimated at 5.2 million shares compared with 5.08 million Thursday.

The list was subject to profit taking, brokers said, after rising for the past three sessions and most of this morning.

Gold mining shares, higher in the morning, slipped to the downside on a U.S. Treasury statement that those who expect a boost in gold's basic price will "end on the losing side."

The top steelmakers showed minor losses. Motors were unchanged to narrowly mixed, with General Motors firm and Chrysler down a fraction.

Cigarette stocks declined in view of another report on smoking and health expected Monday.

Prices were generally higher in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds were unchanged to slightly lower.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices were generally firm on the Board of Trade today but soybeans went into a slow decline shortly after he opening.

Early buying in soybeans reflected some stop loss orders and the dip came when some cash houses and longs sold on the advance.

Brokers said most interests preferred to remain on the sidelines pending outcome of efforts to head off a threatened strike of longshoremen Monday in Gulf and Atlantic ports.

Carlot receipts were estimated at: wheat 3 cars, corn 115, oats 7, rye none, barley 9, soybeans 11.

Food Proves Fatal To Two Zoo Seals

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Prepackaged foods proved fatal to two seals at Mohawk Park Zoo.

An autopsy ordered after the seals had died showed their stomachs were lined with plastic which had blocked their digestive processes, it was disclosed Thursday.

The plastic was traced to a pool-side cooler where fish wrapped in plastic bags were sold to patrons as zoo food. Some of the customers apparently fed the seals the fish still wrapped in the bags. The concession has been closed.

Two Injured In Car Mishap

A two-car collision Friday at Broadway Street and Market Street resulted in minor injuries to two persons, the State Patrol reported.

Barbara A. Gouker, 28, 2415 Wheeler St., and Douglas Thompson, 4, also of 2415 Wheeler St., both sustained bruises to the head and were released at the scene of the accident.

The accident took place at 9:25 a.m. Friday when the Gouker vehicle, northbound on Market Street, skidded 58 feet into the intersection of Broadway Street. The Gouker car at this point struck a car driven by Edwin J. Berger, 49, 218 N. 7th St., then skidded another 44 feet into a ditch on the left side of the road. Berger was westbound on Broadway Street at the time, and after the initial impact skidded 30 feet further into the intersection.

The Gouker vehicle had an estimated $250 worth of damage, while Berger's car had $100 damage, according to the patrol.

Judge Puts Man On Probation

Vincent Pinkston was given a suspended sentence of one to two years in the State Penitentiary Friday by District Judge William M. Calvert and was then placed on probation.

Pinkston, 30, 836 Vermijo Ave. was found guilty Oct. 28 by a District Court jury of causing injury while driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

The incident happened April 27 at the Cimarron Street interchange and freeway when Mrs. Laura Josephine Smith, 822 E. Vermijo St., a passenger in a second car, received a broken leg, multiple cuts and possible internal injuries. Three cars were involved in the accident.

Judge Calvert, in passing sentence, said Pinkston could not apply for a driver's license without the permission of the probation department.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Carey said the person tried to force his way through the back from the top of the roof and caused $50 damage.

How to Cut Your Own Income Tax

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PROBLEM: Your daughter, whose total support you furnished all year long marries on New Year's Eve. Can you claim her as a $600 dependency credit on your tax return?

Answer: Pop, you may be stuck. Since your daughter and her husband were married on the last day of the year they are treated by the tax collector as if they had been married all year long. This means she may file a joint return with her new husband or be listed as an exemption on his return. Should the newly married couple file in either of these two ways you may NOT list her as a dependent on your return.

The remedy: Make a deal with your son-in-law. It's perfectly legal. Assuming that your income is higher than your son-in-law's and therefore your tax rate higher, suggest that he file as if he were unmarried. In that way you can list your daughter as your dependent. Your savings on this $600 credit, will vary from $96 to $462, depending on whether you are in the 16 per cent or 77 per cent tax bracket. Offer to share your savings with him.

Two other questions concerning dependency occur almost as frequently. This is the first:

"My son graduated from college last June. I paid all his expenses until graduation—tuition, clothes, housing, medical and dental care, spending money. After graduation he started to work and earned $1,500 through the end of the year. Can I claim him as a dependent? Can I at least get credit for that first six months?"

Answer: You either get full credit or none at all. There is no such thing as getting a dependency credit for part of the year. Since your child qualified as a student by having attended college full time for at least five months of the year he may earn more than $600 and you may still claim his as a dependent PROVIDING you furnished the chief support.

Now how do you determine just who furnished the chief support? This is the time for work with a pencil and paper. Put a line through the middle of your sheet of paper running from top to bottom. On one side enter the expense of your contributions to his support. On the other side enter his $1,500 plus any other earnings he may have had for the year.

Your contributions will have to exceed his before he can be claimed. Start with the cost of his tuition, if any, then add room and board for the six months, clothing purchases, spending money, transportation expenses, medical care and any other items of expense in his behalf.

If your total is greater than his, you claim him on your return. If they are not you are out of luck.

The other frequently asked dependency question goes like this:

my mother lives in my home She has no income other than her Social Security checks which amounted to $720 last year. She paid me no board. May I claim her as a dependent?"

Answer: Ordinarily anyone who has more than $600 gross income may not be listed as a dependent. (The exceptions are students and your children under 19.) It is true that Social Security is not considered a part of gross income but it is still spendable income.

Therefore the question revolves around who furnished chief support. Proceed as in the problem above and record the cost of support contributed by each. If your total is greater than your mother's $720 you may claim her as a dependent.

Question: How is the tax situation affected by a birth or death during the year?

Answer: A child born any time during the year—even on Dec. 31—entitles the supporting parents to a full year's $600 dependency credit. In the case of death the controlling factor is the status at the time of death. If the deceased person was a qualified dependent of the taxpayer until his death, the taxpayer may claim a full year's credit. Similarly, if a husband or wife dies during the year the surviving spouse may file a joint return and claim a full year's exemption credit for the deceased partner.

One final hint: A wife is never considered a deependent for income tax purposes even though she may have had no income. As a spouse she qualifies the taxpayer to the same $600 credit but in many other ways a spouse is given different tax treatment than a dependent.

For example, a dependent need not file a return until his gross income is $600 or more. A spouse will pay an income tax on her first dollar of income, whether it be on her own separate return or include with her husband's income on a joint return.

Two Injured In Car Mishap

A two-car collision Friday at Broadway Street and Market Street resulted in minor injuries to two persons, the State Patrol reported.

Barbara A. Gouker, 28, 2415 Wheeler St., and Douglas Thompson, 4, also of 2415 Wheeler St., both sustained bruises to the head and were released at the scene of the accident.

The accident took place at 9:25 a.m. Friday when the Gouker vehicle, northbound on Market Street, skidded 58 feet into the intersection of Broadway Street. The Gouker car at this point struck a car driven by Edwin J. Berger, 49, 218 N. 7th St., then skidded another 44 feet into a ditch on the left side of the road. Berger was westbound on Broadway Street at the time, and after the initial impact skidded 30 feet further into the intersection.

The Gouker vehicle had an estimated $250 worth of damage, while Berger's car had $100 damage, according to the patrol.

Judge Puts Man On Probation

Vincent Pinkston was given a suspended sentence of one to two years in the State Penitentiary Friday by District Judge William M. Calvert and was then placed on probation.

Pinkston, 30, 836 Vermijo Ave. was found guilty Oct. 28 by a District Court jury of causing injury while driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

The incident happened April 27 at the Cimarron Street interchange and freeway when Mrs. Laura Josephine Smith, 822 E. Vermijo St., a passenger in a second car, received a broken leg, multiple cuts and possible internal injuries. Three cars were involved in the accident.

Judge Calvert, in passing sentence, said Pinkston could not apply for a driver's license without the permission of the probation department.

Break Into Safeway Store Unsuccessful

An unsuccessful attempt was made to get into the Safeway Store on South Tejon Street, the sheriff's office reported Friday.

Deputy Sheriff Ray Carey said the person tried to force his way through the back from the top of the roof and caused $50 damage.

How to Cut Your Own Income Tax

By RAY DE CRANE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PROBLEM: Your daughter, whose total support you furnished all year long marries on New Year's Eve. Can you claim her as a $600 dependency credit on your tax return?

Answer: Pop, you may be stuck. Since your daughter and her husband were married on the last day of the year they are treated by the tax collector as if they had been married all year long. This means she may file a joint return with her new husband or be listed as an exemption on his return. Should the newly married couple file in either of these two ways you may NOT list her as a dependent on your return.

The remedy: Make a deal with your son-in-law. It's perfectly legal. Assuming that your income is higher than your son-in-law's and therefore your tax rate higher, suggest that he file as if he were unmarried. In that way you can list your daughter as your dependent. Your savings on this $600 credit, will vary from $96 to $462, depending on whether you are in the 16 per cent or 77 per cent tax bracket. Offer to share your savings with him.

Two other questions concerning dependency occur almost as frequently. This is the first:

"My son graduated from college last June. I paid all his expenses until graduation—tuition, clothes, housing, medical and dental care, spending money. After graduation he started to work and earned $1,500 through the end of the year. Can I claim him as a dependent? Can I at least get credit for that first six months?"

Answer: You either get full credit or none at all. There is no such thing as getting a dependency credit for part of the year. Since your child qualified as a student by having attended college full time for at least five months of the year he may earn more than $600 and you may still claim his as a dependent PROVIDING you furnished the chief support.

Now how do you determine just who furnished the chief support? This is the time for work with a pencil and paper. Put a line through the middle of your sheet of paper running from top to bottom. On one side enter the expense of your contributions to his support. On the other side enter his $1,500 plus any other earnings he may have had for the year.

Your contributions will have to exceed his before he can be claimed. Start with the cost of his tuition, if any, then add room and board for the six months, clothing purchases, spending money, transportation expenses, medical care and any other items of expense in his behalf.

If your total is greater than his, you claim him on your return. If they are not you are out of luck.

The other frequently asked dependency question goes like this:

my mother lives in my home She has no income other than her Social Security checks which amounted to $720 last year. She paid me no board. May I claim her as a dependent?"

Answer: Ordinarily anyone who has more than $600 gross income may not be listed as a dependent. (The exceptions are students and your children under 19.) It is true that Social Security is not considered a part of gross income but it is still spendable income.

Therefore the question revolves around who furnished chief support. Proceed as in the problem above and record the cost of support contributed by each. If your total is greater than your mother's $720 you may claim her as a dependent.

Question: How is the tax situation affected by a birth or death during the year?

Answer: A child born any time during the year—even on Dec. 31—entitles the supporting parents to a full year's $600 dependency credit. In the case of death the controlling factor is the status at the time of death. If the deceased person was a qualified dependent of the taxpayer until his death, the taxpayer may claim a full year's credit. Similarly, if a husband or wife dies during the year the surviving spouse may file a joint return and claim a full year's exemption credit for the deceased partner.

One final hint: A wife is never considered a deependent for income tax purposes even though she may have had no income. As a spouse she qualifies the taxpayer to the same $600 credit but in many other ways a spouse is given different tax treatment than a dependent.

For example, a dependent need not file a return until his gross income is $600 or more. A spouse will pay an income tax on her first dollar of income, whether it be on her own separate return or include with her husband's income on a joint return.

INCOME PROPERTY

A very exceptional opportunity for an employed or retired person to secure a large income from property which has enjoyed full occupancy for past 21 years, because it is ideally located and contains a large number of small highly improved units, each complete with kitchen and bath. These units are of the popular demand type and are moderately priced which is possible because of the large number of units in the property. Our experience proves that there is a constant, unsatisfied demand for this type of apartment. Will yield a high percentage on investment. 634-2706.

43—Income Property

INCOME PROPERTY

A very exceptional opportunity for an employed or retired person to secure a large income from property which has enjoyed full occupancy for past 21 years, because it is ideally located and contains a large number of small highly improved units, each complete with kitchen and bath. These units are of the popular demand type and are moderately priced which is possible because of the large number of units in the property. Our experience proves that there is a constant, unsatisfied demand for this type of apartment. Will yield a high percentage on investment. 634-2706.

DICK TRACY
HM!—HER CLOTHES LOOK LIKE NEW, ALTHOUGH THEY'VE BEEN IN THE ICE 27 YEARS.
I NOTICED YOU SPOKE A FEW WORDS OF VERY BROKEN ENGLISH—WHAT'S YOUR NATIONALITY?
THE COPTER'S HERE —YOU CAN HOLD IT.
YES—THE TERRAIN'S ROUGH, BUT YOU CAN MAKE IT—COME ON DOWN.

WINNIE WINKLE
SO PERRY'S GETTING MARRIED, EH, RIP?
YEP! BUT THE POOR KIDS ARE HAVING TROUBLE GETTING A PLACE TO HOLD THE RECEPTION.
HOW ABOUT LETTIN' THEM USE THE FIREHOUSE... PROVIDIN' WE ALL GET AN INVITE TO THE WEDDIN'?
SAY, THAT'S A WONDERFUL IDEA! YOU GOT YOURSELF A DEAL.... YOU'RE ALL INVITED!
MEANWHILE....
MAYBE I CAN FIND A PLACE THAT WILL CATER YOUR WEDDING. HOW MANY GUESTS DID YOU FIGURE ON?
OH, IT WILL BE A RATHER SMALL AFFAIR, WINNIE. WE'LL BE LUCKY IF WE CAN MUSTER UP SEVENTY-FIVE GUESTS.

Wife Says She Does Not Believe Spying Charges

BAY SHORE, N.Y. (AP) — What kind of man is Robert Glenn Thompson?

The government says he was a spy for the Soviet Union. His German-born wife says she doesn't believe the charge that he sold military secrets to the Soviet Union over a six-year period.

"My husband would never have done anything like this against his country," said Eveline Thompson. "He will be cleared."

Some neighbors described the former Air Force man as a "good Joe." But Benjamin Young, a Negro who lives next door, said he was "a troubled, sick man goaded on by bigotry."

Another neighbor, Vincent McGarr, said Thompson expressed a "very deep dislike of communism."

The picture of the man who lives in a red, $12,500 Cape Cod house is a mixed one.

Thompson, who looks at least 10 years older than his age — he'll be 30 on Jan. 30 — told a wild story of World War II escapades, said McGarr.

He boasted of having been secret intelligence agent with the Air Force during the war, and claimed he was among the first American soldiers to enter Berlin, McGarr said.

Actually, Thompson served in the Air Force from 1952-1958. The government charged in a three-count indictment Thursday that he was recruited by the Russians as a spy in 1957 and continued his espionage operations until July 1963.

One family has an affection for the Thompsons.

"I think the world of the Thompsons," said Nancy Sistarella. "They are regular neighbors. Our kids play together. We would get together often, even though they kept pretty much to themselves."

When Mrs. Sistarella's husband came home from work he was told of the shocking news — and it stunned him.

"They've arrested Bob," Mrs. Sistarella told her husband. "They say he is an enemy agent."

"I don't believe it!" Sistarella replied. "We were going to go rabbit hunting Sunday."

Patty Says Actors Must Stay Alert

"Actors must always be on the alert to avoid falling into the habit of doing things the easy way when they are working in a weekly series," maintains Patty Duke, star of ABC-TV's "The Patty Duke Show."

"It's difficult sometimes because there is rarely enough time to concentrate on a role in a specific episode as one would like to. But we try.

"For example," continued Patty, who stars in the dual role of look-alike cousins, "in a recent show, 'Practice Makes Perfect,' I was supposed to have taken lessons on the tuba. John Ross, my manager and coach, decided that although it would take extra time I should have a couple of lessons and practice on the tuba. (I can tell you that tuba players and teachers are quite scarce in New York City.)

"I learned how to hold it and to play a few notes on it. It paid off. The notes I played were just sour enough to be in th show rather than have them dubbed by someone else on the sound track. The film was shown exactly as I did it. This is what makes my work fun.

"For an upcoming show, 'Patty and the Peace Corps,' I was supposed to eat grass soup. Rather than slice a green vegetable to look like grass, we boiled real grass and I ate it for the scene. (Well, tasted it, anyway.)"

There are certain things Patty would like to see happen to Patty and Cathy Lane as the series continues.

"I would like—and am curious—to see them grow up. Our plan is for them to get involved in situations that will be different as Patty and Cathy grow older."

Patty finds that her private life often is affected by situations used in the show's scripts.

"Of course, I feel our scripts are entertaining. But mostly I feel they always make good sense. This, I believe, is one of the most important aspects and benefits of our series to teen-age viewers. In every episode there is something to be learned by young people which could help them better relate with their parents and vice-versa. When I find a particular truth in a situation (in the script), whether it's on the subject of fairplay, trying to do the right thing, an ability to apologize to a parent, etc., it always leaves an impression and becomes something more I've learned. I'd like to think these things make me a better person."

Hyenas are principally scavengers and in many of the regions they inhabit in Africa and Asia they depend largely upon the remains of carcasses left by lions. Although they are quite generally cowardly, they will attack helpless animals and may become quite daring when hungry.

NEW FEATURE

In our special Ski Edition last month, we promised a new ski column and after much trial and tribulation, it makes its debut in today's issue. THE SKI SCROLL appears on page 6 of today's edition and one of the reasons for the delay in presenting it takes up STEVE WILLIAMS' initial effort. STEVE, who is a ski fan from way back and a former instructor, deserted the slopes of Michigan for the mountains of Colorado several months ago to join the G-T staff. In the coming weeks, STEVE plans columns on various slopes in the state as well as the latest weekend ski information from the fun areas. All in all, we think you'll enjoy THE SKI SCROLL. And in case you haven't noticed, JIM GLEN has been doing a weekly feature on the Metropolitan radio opera. Even if you aren't an opera buff, we think you'll find these features most interesting and entertaining. You can judge for yourself by turning to page 19 of today's issue.

Slate Tabbed As 'Heavy' in Wallis Film

Jeremy Slate was signed by producer Hal Wallis for a major role in "The Sons of Katie Elder," starring John Wayne and Dean Martin, which went before the technicolor cameras, January 4, with Henry Hathaway directing the big-budget western.

Slate joins a cast which also includes Martha Hyer, Earl Holliman and Tommy Kirk in the film based on Allan Weiss' screenplay.

ENTEBBE—Ugandz will train school teachers.

Curtis Signs For Role In 'Boeing'

Tony Curtis has been signed by Hal Wallis for a starring role in "Boeing, Boeing," film version of the comedy now in its third year on the London Stage. The play will open shortly on Broadway with an all British cast.

With filming scheduled for the spring, Producer Wallis plans to shoot "Boeing, Boeing" in Rome, the locale of the play, and in Hollywood at Paramount Studios.

"Boeing, Boeing," which will be directed by John Rich, centers around the comedic and romantic antics of two young gentlemen with strong affinities for entertaining beautiful young airline stewardesses.

NEW FEATURE

In our special Ski Edition last month, we promised a new ski column and after much trial and tribulation, it makes its debut in today's issue. THE SKI SCROLL appears on page 6 of today's edition and one of the reasons for the delay in presenting it takes up STEVE WILLIAMS' initial effort. STEVE, who is a ski fan from way back and a former instructor, deserted the slopes of Michigan for the mountains of Colorado several months ago to join the G-T staff. In the coming weeks, STEVE plans columns on various slopes in the state as well as the latest weekend ski information from the fun areas. All in all, we think you'll enjoy THE SKI SCROLL. And in case you haven't noticed, JIM GLEN has been doing a weekly feature on the Metropolitan radio opera. Even if you aren't an opera buff, we think you'll find these features most interesting and entertaining. You can judge for yourself by turning to page 19 of today's issue.

Slate Tabbed As 'Heavy' in Wallis Film

Jeremy Slate was signed by producer Hal Wallis for a major role in "The Sons of Katie Elder," starring John Wayne and Dean Martin, which went before the technicolor cameras, January 4, with Henry Hathaway directing the big-budget western.

Slate joins a cast which also includes Martha Hyer, Earl Holliman and Tommy Kirk in the film based on Allan Weiss' screenplay.

Principal photography takes place at Durango, Mexico and at Paramount Studios in Hollywood.

ENTEBBE—Ugandz will train school teachers.

Curtis Signs For Role In 'Boeing'

Tony Curtis has been signed by Hal Wallis for a starring role in "Boeing, Boeing," film version of the comedy now in its third year on the London Stage. The play will open shortly on Broadway with an all British cast.

With filming scheduled for the spring, Producer Wallis plans to shoot "Boeing, Boeing" in Rome, the locale of the play, and in Hollywood at Paramount Studios.

"Boeing, Boeing," which will be directed by John Rich, centers around the comedic and romantic antics of two young gentlemen with strong affinities for entertaining beautiful young airline stewardesses.

How West Was Won at Ute Thursday

The triumphant Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cinerama production in Metrocolor, "How the West Was Won," is as American as the Fourth of July and as symbolic of patriotism as the Stars and Stripes.

This great family attraction starts Thursday at the Ute Theatre for the first time at popular prices, uncut, direct from its tremendously successful roadshow engagements.

The story of "How the West Was Won" is right from the history books, a visual presentation of the men and women whose courage and daring made America great. To tell this story in visual form, the cameras traveled the length and breadth of the nation, filming the events where they happened.

From the Erie Canal and Ohio River across the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Ocean, this massive motion picture was filmed with the greatest cast of stars ever assembled for leading roles. The plains and Black Hills of South Dakota and the rugged terrain of the Southwest add to the scope of a production that was nearly a year in filming. No other motion picture has so vividly captured the face of western America.

"How the West Was Won" is the story of America's expansion westward, starting from the period right after the Revolutionary War with the movement of settlers down the Erie Canal to the lush and fertile lands of the Ohio River Valley.

This was the land of Daniel Boone, the furtrappers and the buckskin clad explorers. The Ohio, the Mississippi, the St. Lawrence and their tributaries had been the highways of the French voyageurs and the intrepid Catholic missionaries.

The Louisiana Purchase and the war with Mexico, however, expanded America still farther west, and by horse, mule and wagon-train pioneers moved across snow-capped mountains toward the Pacific. Some were lured by gold strike in California, others by tales of the fertile soil of Oregon. Lewis and Clark had blazed the trail. Thousands were to follow.

St. Louis had become a big, bawdy city. Independence, Missouri, had become the jumping off point for wagon-trains heading west. In Illinois, legislators were becoming aware of a lanky, beardless young lawyer named Abraham Lincoln.

But always the nation's eyes were turned westward, and westward the people moved, braving desert and mountain, heat and cold, Apache and Sioux. Many only got as far west as the pile of prairie stones that marked their graves.

These were the days of Calhoun, Clay and Webster, the great triumvirate of the United States Senate. Their oratory and statesmanship led to a series of compromises that kept the Union together while burning controversy raged over whether each new western state should be admitted as free or slave Finally, there could be no more compromise and the nation divided itself in a bitter Civil War. But when peace was restored, the movement westward became greater than ever.

Now came the days of the buffalo hunters, names like Buffalo Bill Cody and Wild Bill Hickok, the Pony Express, the first trans-continental telegraph and, finally, the first trans-continental railroad. The United States at last was linked ocean to ocean, by something more permanent, more safe than the plodding wagon trains and stage coaches.

The Indians fought bravely and with justification to save their dwindling hunting grounds, but their cause was hopeless against the growing pressure of a nation bursting westward with the influx of immigrants from poverty-stricken Europe.

There was to be more bloodshed in frontier America, and soon names like Billy the Kid, Wyatt Earp, Bat Masterson and Pat Garrett were added to the fattening books on American history.

IS THIS HOW THE WEST WAS WON?—According to the picture, it would seem so. But James Stewart and Carroll Baker are not quite the dalliers they seem to be, and the movie, starting Thursday at the Ute Theatre, has its share of memorable moments. The Buffalo Stampeded and a train wreck make for exciting visual entertainment in "How the West was Won."

TAKE THAT, YOU MONSTER — Science fiction gets a bit out of hand in the latest Hollywood attempt at other-worldly creations, "Atragon." The film, which starts soon at the Chief Theatre, features a super weapon-warship by the same name. The warship, according to its creators, can fly, float, swim underwater, travel on land and bore underground.

Wierd Weapon Star of Next Chief Film

Special effects experts have a veritable "field day" resulting in one of the most unusual science fiction thrillers ever filmed, American International's "Atragon".

With wide screen scope and graphic color added to the total effect, the new science fiction adventure spectacle was conceived and produced by the same experts who made the memorable "Godzilla" and other similar thrillers. "Atragon", opening soon at the Chief Theatre, is the tale of a super weapon warship which saves the world from destruction and domination by strange men from beneath the sea.

Highlights of the "Atragon" special effects wizardry, of course, is the super weapon-warship of the title itself. The creation and conception of this fantastic ship is so realistically presented that it is no trouble at all to believe that Atragon can fly, float, swim underwater, travel on land and bore underground — a quintuple threat weapon.

Another special effects triumph are Atragon's amazing weapons, especially the freezer gun which spurts deadly temperatures of 273 degrees below zero which stop anyone or anything in its path.

Equally as impressive, and immensely larger, is another fantastic creation—a huge city beneath the sea which blends ancient ways with tomorrow's scientific wonders of power and transportation—the Mu Empire.

Also amazing is the atomic submarine of the Mu Empire which has its own super-weapon—a deadly atomic disintegrator gun and flying missiles. When these creations are seen on the scope screen in color, they are so real that audiences cringe in their seats.

When all these special effect elements meet and clash, it is science fiction adventure spectacle at its most powerful and most exciting. Highlights here are the attack of the Mu missiles on a huge city and upon a merchant ship fleet, with all ending up destroyed and afire.

But most thrilling and most memorable of all is the attack on the supposedly impregnable Mu Empire underwater city by the mighty Atragon and its freezer guns. Here special effects wizardry is at its best and science fiction adventure at its most thrilling, as Atragon goes to the depths of the sea to crash through and into the fortified underwater city, smashing all before it.

An added element of the special effects men is an enormous sea serpent which attacks Atragon to make for an unusual and eventually onesided battle. The total effect is a terrifying and memorable science fiction screen entertainment which will thrill adventure fans of all ages.

4 for Texas At Aircadia Wednesday

The days of the thundering stagecoach returned to the Warner Bros. lot during the fliming of "4 For Texas", new comedy-drama Western in Technicolor starring Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Anita Ekberg and Ursula Andress which opens Wednesday at the Aircadia Theatre.

When producer - director Robert Aldrich decided he would need four stagecoaches, investigation showed there were only four in existence in all of Hollywood. So Aldrich ordered that completely new ones be built from extant models. Art director William Glasgow selected a sample and went to work.

The vehicle had originally belonged to the California Stage Lines and made the Sacramento-San Francisco run in the 1860's and '70's. Ten feet long, six wide and eight high, it presented a magnificent, if decrepit, example of pioneer transportation. It was stripped down to the frame and the great steel-rimmed wheels.

The Warner crafts department began to resemble an old-time wheelwright's shop as modern craftsmen fabricated the fittings for the coach, except that they used electrical welding equipment instead of bellows and hand forges. Iron castings and buckles were duplicated from carefully - documented designs. Straps and leather upholstery were tanned and fitted entirely by hand.

One of the four new coaches, when finished, was mounted on a motorized rig which accommodated a camera hook-up on any of three sides. This arrangement was meant for close-up shots. Of the remaining three, one was destined to be completely wrecked during a hold-up scene staged in the Mojave Desert. The other two were involved in the fast action of the scene.

The original coach after which they were modelled was estimated to have cost $1500. The replicas cost about five times as much each. But Aldrich was satisfied. Said he, "A stagecoach is a mighty big thing to start with. Magnify it on the big screen, in Technicolor, and it becomes colossal. I wanted those coaches absolutely authentic." That was how he got them.

The second feature on the program, "Spencers Mountain," stars Maureen O'Hara and Henry Fonda.

'Two Potato' Next Film at Peak Theatre

"One Potato, Two Potato," scheduled as the next attraction at the Peak Theatre, is the first film of 34 - year old Larry Peerce, son of famed singer Jan Peerce. He joined forces with a former television co-worker, 36 - year old Sam Weston. Encouragment was supplied by Larry's wife Peggy who acted as Sam Weston's assistant and also still photographer for the project.

To raise their budget, Sam Weston and Larry Peerce left their families in Los Angeles and moved to New York. The money took six months to raise. They contacted anyone who might contribute at least $100. Their first success was with a man they had met briefly two years previously, who contributed $25,000. Their backers were mainly people unconnected with show business.

As they raised money for the film, Peerce and Weston also cast it. And a New York writer — Raphael Hayes — completed the final version of the screenplay. Then they selected their crew — from New York and Los Angeles — choosing men who were experienced in location work. The cameraman had worked on the TV series 'Naked City.' And the production manager had worked on another location series, 'Route 66.'

As a setting for their film, they chose a small town in Ohio. "We wanted to make the film in the Middle West in as typical a town as we could find," says Larry Peerce. "We wanted it to be an 'American' movie."

Sam Weston,, born in Cleveland, Ohio, remembered a town nearby called Painesville. It turned out to be the perfect site. The City Manager of Painesville liked the script and cooperated with them in every way. His wife even appears briefly in one scene. And the townspeople were delighted to help. The policeman is a real Painesville policeman. The dancers at the wedding were a local dance group. And the lawyer is a real lawyer from Cleveland.

"The business in the local beauty salons went up by fifty per cent while we were in Painesville — and everyone was eager to play crowd scenes," says Larry Peerce.

Easy Come Money

Bill Cullen, host of ABC-TV's "The Price is Right," reports that in its nine years on the air the show has given away $3½ million worth of merchandise to more than 8,000 contestants.

'Single Girl' Continues at Peak Theatre

The now famed proprietress of a half-million-dollars enterprise was, only three years ago, a newly married advertising copy-writer in her late thirties who was bored by her office chores in Hollywood.

"I want to quit work and write a book," she informed David, her husband. "What can I write about?"

"Write about what you know," replied David, her spouse of five months.

Helen Gurely Brown surprised David with what she knew—what it's really like to be single.

Her witty book, "Sex and the Single Girl," all about the rich, sexy life that a single girl could have for herself, proved to be a runaway international best-seller. Warner Bros. now has fashioned an hilarious Technicolor comedy of the same title, starring Tony Curtis, Natalie Wood (as Helen Brown), Henry Fonda, Lauren Bacall and Mel Ferrer, Joseph Heller, the brilliant author of "Catch 22," wrote the zany screenplay with David R. Schwartz. The new film is now showing at the Peak Theatre.

Helen Brown, in less than three years, has become a leading authority on big boy—big girl relationships. Today she has a syndicated column (Woman Alone) and a hit record album ("Lessons in Love") which she wrote and narrated. Her first book, "Sex and the Single Girl," continues to be a hot best-seller as a paperback.

Only a fraction of Helen's premartial life is contained in her book which is "a gummy chocolate fudge of gromming hints, advice to the lovelorn, jokes, snippets of psychological insight, decorating suggestions, exercises, stock market tips and recipes."

Look magazine observes that Miss Brown "conjures images of a liberated single girl, complete with Capri pants, a sophisticated little apartment and a delicious absence of guilt feelings."

Helen, who estimates she was a "single girl" for 17 years, now--with her husband, film-producer David Brown—has "two Mercedes - Benzes, 100 acres of virgin forest near San Francisco, a Mediterranean house overlooking the Pacific, a full-time maid and a good life."

Yet not long ago, as Helen recently confessed to an interviewer, she was "a mouse-poor secretary . . . not bosomy or brilliant."

Helen's book is plenty readable, as well as practical. Sample "Sex" hint on how to meet men: "Livebait barges hire girl clerks."

Asked if her book was written tongue-in-cheek, Helen, using the fixed, hooded glance she describes in her book's chapter on flirting as "The Sexy Look," says "I simply cannot tell you how sincere this silly little book of mine really is."

CHIN UP, PLEASE—Or so Peter Finch seems to be saying to Rita Tushingham, co-starred in Woodfall Films' poigant love story "Girl with Green Eyes," now showing at the Broadmoor theatre.

'Green Eyes' Now Showing At Broadmoor

Young Tony Richardson, a name to conjure with in picture production, was in a quandary.

He needed a girl. An ordinary girl. No great beauty, but no slouch either. A girl with "something." An intangible something which lifted her above the crowd and made you look at her twice,. And a third and fourth time, too.

He needed her for a picture called "A Taste of Honey." It was an important picture for his Woodfall Films company and he needed her at once.

So he started looking. The flower of Britain's femininity and pulchritude passed before him. There were beauties and names. Two thousand of them passed in review — and then came that face!

It was, well, let's be truthful about it, no face to crumble empires or move men to die gladly with the name of its owner on their lips. But it had something —an inner radiance you may call it!

She got the role in "A Taste of Honey" — and became famous overnight.

Her name was Rita Tushingham. Her only theatrical experience had been as manager of a Liverpool repertory company.

There was no question in Richardson's mind as to who was going to be his leading lady in his Woodfall Film Company production of Edna O'Brien's novel "Girl With Green Eyes," now at the Broadmoor Theatre.

"Girl With Green Eyes," a tender and poignant romance concerning two lassies from the Irish countryside who come to Dublin to make good — and do, romantically speaking — is from the same company and with many of the same production people who have made the sensationally successful "Tom Jones" among other things.

Lynn Redgrave and Peter Finch are the other principals.

'Emily' Held Over at the Ute Theatre

Tears, laughs, explosive drama and satire combined in the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's new Martin Ransohoff production, "The Americanization of Emily," based on William Bradford Huie's widely-read novel and starring James Garner, Julie Andrews and Melvyn Douglas is being held through Wednesday at the Ute theatre. It is packed with entertainment from its opening reel to final fadeout.

In no-holds-barred terms, it punctures mock heroics and preconceived notions as to what makes a coward or produces a hero in wartime and it tells its story with laughter playing almost as much a part as its explosive impact.

"The Americanization of Emily" has a wide range of scenes and moods. There are the amusing officers' parties, in which "three namelss broads" play a prominent part. There are romantic rendezvous between Charlie and Emily both in the country and in corners of a rainy London. There is a poignant sequence in which Charlie meets Emily's seemingly dotty but perceptive mother, played by Joyce Grenfell. There is a hilarious scene between Charlie and a veteran sailor (Keenan Wynn). In sharp contrast is the re-creation of the invasion of Omaha Beach with the troops disembarking under shell fire and explosions, depicted with a tense and gripping reality

The screen play for "The Americanization of Emily" was written by noted playwright Paddy Chayefsky, with the picture directed by Arthur Hiller. It follows James Garner's comedy hit in "Move Over, Darling" and marks Julie Andrews' first movie non-singing role since her Broadway stage triumphs in "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot." Its third star, Mel vyn Douglas, is an Academy Award-winner for his outstanding performance in "Hud."

'Seven Days' Booked for Academy Show

"Seven Days In May," one of Paramount Pictures most highly acclaimed releases of 1964, has been set for a special Academy Awards engagement at the Wilshire theatre in Santa Monica, Calif., beginning Jan. 27, it is announced by Paramount general sales manager, Charles Boasberg.

The booking of the Seven Arts - Joel - Frankenheimer Production is designed as a convenience for voting members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences before they cast their ballots for this year's "Oscars."

'Two Potato' Next Film at Peak Theatre

"One Potato, Two Potato," scheduled as the next attraction at the Peak Theatre, is the first film of 34 - year old Larry Peerce, son of famed singer Jan Peerce. He joined forces with a former television co-worker, 36 - year old Sam Weston. Encouragment was supplied by Larry's wife Peggy who acted as Sam Weston's assistant and also still photographer for the project.

To raise their budget, Sam Weston and Larry Peerce left their families in Los Angeles and moved to New York. The money took six months to raise. They contacted anyone who might contribute at least $100. Their first success was with a man they had met briefly two years previously, who contributed $25,000. Their backers were mainly people unconnected with show business.

As they raised money for the film, Peerce and Weston also cast it. And a New York writer — Raphael Hayes — completed the final version of the screenplay. Then they selected their crew — from New York and Los Angeles — choosing men who were experienced in location work. The cameraman had worked on the TV series 'Naked City.' And the production manager had worked on another location series, 'Route 66.'

As a setting for their film, they chose a small town in Ohio. "We wanted to make the film in the Middle West in as typical a town as we could find," says Larry Peerce. "We wanted it to be an 'American' movie."

Sam Weston,, born in Cleveland, Ohio, remembered a town nearby called Painesville. It turned out to be the perfect site. The City Manager of Painesville liked the script and cooperated with them in every way. His wife even appears briefly in one scene. And the townspeople were delighted to help. The policeman is a real Painesville policeman. The dancers at the wedding were a local dance group. And the lawyer is a real lawyer from Cleveland.

"The business in the local beauty salons went up by fifty per cent while we were in Painesville — and everyone was eager to play crowd scenes," says Larry Peerce.

Bill Cullen, host of ABC-TV's "The Price is Right," reports that in its nine years on the air the show has given away $3½ million worth of merchandise to more than 8,000 contestants.

'Single Girl' Continues at Peak Theatre

The now famed proprietress of a half-million-dollars enterprise was, only three years ago, a newly married advertising copy-writer in her late thirties who was bored by her office chores in Hollywood.

"I want to quit work and write a book," she informed David, her husband. "What can I write about?"

"Write about what you know," replied David, her spouse of five months.

Helen Gurely Brown surprised David with what she knew—what it's really like to be single.

Her witty book, "Sex and the Single Girl," all about the rich, sexy life that a single girl could have for herself, proved to be a runaway international bestseller. Warner Bros. now has fashioned an hilarious Technicolor comedy of the same title, starring Tony Curtis, Natalie Wood (as Helen Brown), Henry Fonda, Lauren Bacall and Mel Ferrer, Joseph Heller, the brilliant author of "Catch 22," wrote the zany screenplay with David R. Schwartz. The new film is now showing at the Peak Theatre.

Helen Brown, in less than three years, has become a leading authority on big boy—big girl relationships. Today she has a syndicated column (Woman Alone) and a hit record album ("Lessons in Love") which she wrote and narrated. Her first book, "Sex and the Single Girl," continues to be a hot best-seller as a paperback.

Only a fraction of Helen's premartial life is contained in her book which is "a gummy chocolate fudge of gromming hints, advice to the lovelorn, jokes, snippets of psychological insight, decorating suggestions, exercises, stock market tips and recipes."

Look magazine observes that Miss Brown "conjures images of a liberated single girl, complete with Capri pants, a sophisticated little apartment and a delicious absence of guilt feelings."

Helen, who estimates she was a "single girl" for 17 years, now—with her husband, film-producer David Brown—has "two Mercedes - Benzes, 100 acres of virgin forest near San Francisco, a Mediterranean house overlooking the Pacific, a full-time maid and a good life."

Yet not long ago, as Helen recently confessed to an interviewer, she was "a mouse-poor secretary . . . not bosomy or brilliant."

Helen's book is plenty readable, as well as practical. Sample "Sex" hint on how to meet men: "Livebait barges hire girl clerks."

Asked if her book was written tongue-in-cheek, Helen, using the fixed, hooded glance she describes in her book's chapter on flirting as "The Sexy Look," says "I simply cannot tell you how sincere this silly little book of mine really is."

CHIN UP, PLEASE—Or so Peter Finch seems to be saying to Rita Tushingham, co-starred in Woodfall Films' poigant love story "Girl with Green Eyes," now showing at the Broadmoor theatre.

'Green Eyes' Now Showing At Broadmoor

Young Tony Richardson, a name to conjure with in picture production, was in a quandary.

He needed a girl. An ordinary girl. No great beauty, but no slouch either. A girl with "something." An intangible something which lifted her above the crowd and made you look at her twice,. And a third and fourth time, too.

He needed her for a picture called "A Taste of Honey." It was an important picture for his Woodfall Films company and he needed her at once.

So he started looking. The flower of Britain's femininity and pulchritude passed before him. There were beauties and names. Two thousand of them passed in review — and then came that face!

It was, well, let's be truthful about it, no face to crumble empires or move men to die gladly with the name of its owner on their lips. But it had something —an inner radiance you may call it!

She got the role in "A Taste of Honey" — and became famous overnight.

Her name was Rita Tushingham. Her only theatrical experience had been as manager of a Liverpool repertory company.

There was no question in Richardson's mind as to who was going to be his leading lady in his Woodfall Film Company production of Edna O'Brien's novel "Girl With Green Eyes," now at the Broadmoor Theatre.

"Girl With Green Eyes," a tender and poignant romance concerning two lassies from the Irish countryside who come to Dublin to make good — and do, romantically speaking — is from the same company and with many of the same production people who have made the sensationally successful "Tom Jones" among other things.

Lynn Redgrave and Peter Finch are the other principals.

'Emily' Held Over at the Ute Theatre

Tears, laughs, explosive drama and satire combined in the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's new Martin Ransohoff production, "The Americanization of Emily," based on William Bradford Huie's widely-read novel and starring James Garner, Julie Andrews and Melvyn Douglas is being held through Wednesday at the Ute theatre. It is packed with entertainment from its opening reel to final fadeout.

In no-holds-barred terms, it punctures mock heroics and preconceived notions as to what makes a coward or produces a hero in wartime and it tells its story with laughter playing almost as much a part as its explosive impact.

"The Americanization of Emily" has a wide range of scenes and moods. There are the amusing officers' parties, in which "three namelss broads" play a prominent part. There are romantic rendezvous between Charlie and Emily both in the country and in corners of a rainy London. There is a poignant sequence in which Charlie meets Emily's seemingly dotty but perceptive mother, played by Joyce Grenfell. There is a hilarious scene between Charlie and a veteran sailor (Keenan Wynn). In sharp contrast is the re-creation of the invasion of Omaha Beach with the troops disembarking under shell fire and explosions, depicted with a tense and gripping reality

The screen play for "The Americanization of Emily" was written by noted playwright Paddy Chayefsky, with the picture directed by Arthur Hiller. It follows James Garner's comedy hit in "Move Over, Darling" and marks Julie Andrews' first movie non-singing role since her Broadway stage triumphs in "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot." Its third star, Mel vyn Douglas, is an Academy Award-winner for his outstanding performance in "Hud."

'Seven Days' Booked for Academy Show

"Seven Days In May," one of Paramount Pictures most highly acclaimed releases of 1964, has been set for a special Academy Awards engagement at the Wilshire theatre in Santa Monica, Calif., beginning Jan. 27, it is announced by Paramount general sales manager, Charles Boasberg.

'Goldfinger' In 2nd Week At Chief

In "Goldfinger," the latest James Bond movie, the villain is a greedy millionaire with an insatiable lust for gold and a heartless murderer. He is the most spectacular of all the villains created by Ian Fleming and the role was one of the parts most sought after by every "heavy" in the entertainment industry. It was finally won by German-born Gert Frobe. A star of the continental stage, screen and concert halls for more than twenty years, Frobe appears opposite Sean Connery in the Technicolor thirller held over at the Chief Theatre, through United Artists release.

"It is the sort of villain's role which could become a screen classic," says Mrs. Frobe, who has made a specialty of playing criminal and horror types. Altogether he has appeared in more than seventy films and has been named by critics as the natural successor to the great Emil Jannings.

He first became a screen actor in 1949, atfer a successful career on the stage, playing the leading role in a film entitled "Berlin Ballad." But his most famous early film was "Les Heros Sont Fatigues," in which he co-starred with Yves Montand. His most recent U. S. release is the English language version of "The Threepenny Opera." In "Goldfinger," the third James Bond film, he co-stars with Honor Blackman, playing Pussy Galore, and lovely Shirley Eaton.

Debbie Glows In 'Charlie' At Cooper

Debbie took a giant step toward unshackling herself from stereotyped roles in "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and, in her latest film, 20th Century-Fox's "Goodbye, Charlie," she emerges for the first time as a sophisticated screen siren. Miss Reynolds stars with Tony Curtis and Pat Boone in the CinemaScope and Deluxe Color attraction being held through Thursday at the Cooper theatre.

Miss Reynolds' role in "Goodbye, Charlie" is not only her first sophisticated assignment, but also represents one of the most challenging ever offered an actress.

The popular star portrays Charlie Sorel, a character who outwardly appears to be an alluring blonde, but in reality is the reincarnation of a roving male Hollywood writer who was killed by an irate husband during a dalliance. The female Charlie retains all the wiles of the wolfish writer while attracting an army of wolfish Hollywood characters.

Enhancing Miss Reynolds' new provocative image is a $250,000 wardrobe designed by Helen Rose, and featuring ten ensembles ranging from a polka dot bikini to a breathtaking beaded evening ensemble.

Debbie herself is excited and happy about her "new look."

"I've often wondered how my fans, preconditioned to think of me as a purveyor of mild, marshmallow entertainment, would accept me in my new image," she says.

"But now that they've taken Molly Brown to their hearts, I no longer worry about Charlie. I think they understand and realize, as I do, that I am no longer 18 years old and cannot play the Tammy-type roles anymore.

"You grow up in life as well as in your profession," she continues, "and while comedy seems to be my talent, in order to play comedy you must be able to play drama too. Nobody can stand still. Either you develop as a human being, or you become jaded by reiterative experience."

Larkin & Larkin

Kathleen Larkin, who plays a student nurse on ABC-TV's daytime drama, "General Hospital," is the daughter of John Larkin, one of the stars of "Twelve O'Clock High," on the same network.

Ann-Margaret In 'Kitten' At Cooper

Mindful that Hollywood itself is undergoing some profound changes, Ann-Margret is busily re-tooling her own image before the public.

It is not just that she chances to play an alley-cat type in her new movie, Universal's "Kitten with a Whip"; rather, that she deliberately chose to play it as a big step in a new direction. The tense, suspense melodrama comes Friday to the Cooper Theatre.

Ann-Margret made it to stardom in just four earlier films, hitting the heights as the singer-dancer-ingenue of "Bye, Bye Birdie." But her great success in that role left her no place to go but elsewhere — to emotional drama, perhaps.

This was accomplished with Ann-Margret's completion of her role in "Kitten" as the girl Jody who all but tears to tatters a good man's life, reputation and prospects. The sex kitten bares its nails and lashes out. She is a tigress on the loose as the escaped delinquent who thrusts herself, and then her lawless friends, into the ordinarily staid household of good citizen John Forsythe, and who almost wrecks him in the process.

This is a tour-de-force any purposeful actress would enjoy, and Ann-Margret is no exception. She revels in it.

"I am that girl, but for one thing," says Ann-Margret, "the security and love my parents have given me." (Jody, the girl of the movie, has no loving parents — and this makes all the difference.

Gustav and Anna Olson brought only-child Ann-Margret to the United States when she was hardly more than an infant. They have watched her become now, at 23, one of the brightest young stars in Hollywood. (The Wall Street Journal for Tuesday, April 7, 1964, noted that Ann-Margret had now become "financible," meaning that her name on a contract for a film is sufficient guarantee of its success to satisfy a lender, script unseen.)

George Sidney, who directed Ann-Margret in both "Bye, Bye Birdie" and "Viva Las Vegas" is quoted on the subject; I've been in this business for 30 years, and have seen no one with her fire. When she goes, it's electric."

After the sweetness and light of Ann-Margrets four earlier films, it is not unlikely that the parent Olsons view with qualms, albeit pride, their daughter's new switch to badness.

"When I did the picture," says Ann-Margret, I stayed in my studio dressing room, rather than go home and risk losing the mood. And when I did go home, I would go right to my room to be alone, rather than talk with my family."

UNCLE—Jacques Tati, known for his screen character of Mister Hulot, is seen about to take a 'header' into a modern garden pool in French color comedy "My Uncle." Opening with this film Sunday at the Flick Theatre will be the delightful explanation of man and the Universe, "Of Men and Stars," animated in color by John Hubley.

Uncle Starts At Flick on Sunday

Jacques Tati, French comic known best to American Audiences as Mister Hulot, will be seen in the next attraction at the Flick in his latest movie, "My Uncle," starting Sunday. Hulot strikes back, in his own bumbling way, at the modern world of conveniences and gadgets.

With "My Uncle," will be shown the new and effervescent animated color film "Of Stars and Men." Directed by famous animation artist John Hubley, "Of Stars and Men" is an adaptation from the book by Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard University Astronomer. The facts of time, space and matter, and man's place in the Universe are rescued from dull recital by Hubley's wildly imaginative and inventive characters and color design.

To all movie-goers interested in a fresh cartoon treatment, John Hubley's work is well worth seeing. He was the guiding light behind the creation of Gerald McBoing Boing.

"Of Stars and Men" is the most imaginative use of the art of screen animation. By utilizing simplified cartoon characters over abstract backgrounds, a subject which might otherwise draw yawns instead has created lively interest among audiences.

Part of the film is narrated by the author, but for the voices of the cartoon characters representing Mankind, tape-recorded conversations by the author's sons have been used. The boys, Mark and Hampy, were given a suggestion of the scene and situation and then were taped by a candid-type microphone while they expounded on the subject.

The combination of small boy's voices discussing astronomical subjects accompanied by abstract artwork designs in motion may seem to have drifted far afield, yet this combination has held the attention of audiences and entertainingly conveyed its story.

Because of the subject, this film has been especially brought to the Springs during the Colorado College Symposium week as part of their New Science program theme. Together with "My Uncle," the pair of films promises modern science to all with a smile.

'Serengeti' At Fine Arts Tuesday

"Serengeti," the excellent color documentary filmed in the wilds of Africa, will be shown at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center Tuesday in conjunction with the Colorado College Science Symposium. To coincide with Symposium sessions, the film will be shown at 4, 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. The public is invited.

The Academy Award winning, highly acclaimed film, was made during a recent expedition whic hobtained the wild life census on the great Serengeti Plain of Africa. The action is completely unstaged and natural, tracing the animals' migration routes across the plain.

The excellent color filming of the thrilling, sometimes frightening wild life, has been hailed as one of the most vivid ever made.

The week-long Symposium deals with the impact of science on every aspect of human endeavor.

The Academy Award winning, highly acclaimed film, was made during a recent expedition whic hobtained the wild life census on the great Serengeti Plain of Africa. The action is completely unstaged and natural, tracing the animals' migration routes across the plain.

The excellent color filming of the thrilling, sometimes frightening wild life, has been hailed as one of the most vivid ever made.

The week-long Symposium deals with the impact of science on every aspect of human endeavor.

The Ski Scroll

by Steve Williams

Initially, one of the most difficult and frustrating things about writing a weekly (or, for that matter, monthly, daily, or even hourly) column is that in order for it to be published, it must have a name. Shakespeare's famous little ditty about roses aside, a name is rather important, especially if it's a good one. A bad one might not be too injurious to a good column, but a bad name on a bad column. . .well, that's something else again.

With the above thoughts firmly in mind, several of the newsroom loiterers at the Gazette Telegraph gathered around a coffee table in the back room one day a couple of weeks ago to come up with a name. In what is generally termed a "creative session," in which everyone deploys in varying poses of relaxation and attempts to think brilliantly, five of us took the longest coffee break on record at the paper and suggested column names.

Among those which didn't make it were "I Wouldn't Pull your Ligament," "Black and Blue on the Snow," "Ankles Away," and "Contusions, Abrasions, and Lacerations." All of the aforementioned were discarded because they sounded like a column was being written by an ambulance chaser, and not a skier.

In passing, it should be noted that the latest statistics on ski injuries show that less than one half of one per cent of all skiers injure themselves while they're on their skis. . .amen!

"Schussing with Steve," was discarded because the writer doesn't "schuss," and "Slope notes" wasn't considered because we thought the "e" in slope might be dropped in the composing room, leaving a less - than - desirable title for Colorado Skiing.

"Lodge Log" wasn't considereded because we didn't think anyone 1,000 miles away from a large-enough body of water to be termed navigable would know what a "log" referred to. . .In this case we were thinking of it in Navy terms, and we felt that Colorado Springs was too far away from moisture for the inhabitants to make the connection. . .begging Capt. Hoyt D. Mann's pardon.

Since the creative symposium was composed of an all-male cast, several of the suggestions can't be repeated in print. . .especially those having to do with females and stretch pants. "Stretching It" wasn't acceptable because of several connotations, among them one that practically accuses the writer of plagiarism.

"Downhill Dandies", was crossed out because it sounds like a joke book, and "Ups and Downs" was, after quite a bit of thought, discarded because it sounds too much like a description of the author's skiing ability . . . which it is.

And now we come to "The Ski Scroll," which was finally decided upon. I could go into a long dissertation on the many reasons why this particular name was chosen, but one will be sufficient. . .I thought of it. Amidst yelps of pain from the rest of the "creative Thinkers," the final decision was made, so now we can get down to the business at hand. . .skiing.

Since, however, the alloted space for the column has now been used up, we'll have to get to that later. . .like next week.

Spoon River Set Feb. 13 In Pueblo

The hit Broadway show "Spoon River" will play a single performance in Pueblo's Feb. 13, under the local management of Miss Frieda Bell Altman.

Called a "glowing theater experience" by the New York Times, "Spoon River" was the only nonmusical production of the 1963-64 season to win rave reviews from the 12 New York-Broadway critics.

Based on Edgar Lee Masters' classic of American literature, "Spoon River Anthology," the production presents a portrait of life in the American midwest at the turn of the century. From the cemetery by the river, the dead could speak truths that had been hidden in life. About 70 of Masters' poems have been dramatized.

"Spoon River" was conceived, adapted and directed by Charles Aidman.

Miss Altman said this is the original Broadway production with staging, scenery, costumes and lighting exactly as they appeared in New York.

Miss Altman's office in Memorial Hall is opened from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Mail orders are handled promptly.

"Spoon River" is the third presentation of the Greater Artist Series sponsored by Miss Altman. Other concerts of the current season include the Chicago Little Symphony, with Thor Johnson conducting, on March 29 and concert pianist Jose Echaniz on May 16.

CBS Acquires Rights to Triple Crown

The Triple Crown of horse racing — the Kentucky Derby, Preakness, and Belmont Stakes will be broadcast exclusively on the CBS Television Network for the next two years, it was announced by William C. MacPhail, vice president, CBS Television Network Sports.

In making the announcement, MacPhail said that new contracts have been negotiated for the Preakness and Belmont Stakes and that the Network still retains the television broadcast rights to the Derby under an existing contract.

The Preakness and the Kentucky Derby have been broadcast on the CBS Television Network each year since 1948. The Belmont was presented on the Network from 1947 through 1949, and has been broadcast annually since 1953.

The 1965 Derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., is scheduled for Saturday, May 1. The Preakness will be run two weeks later, May 15, at Pimlico Race Course Baltimore, Md. The Belmont takes place three weeks later, June 5, at Aqueduct race track on Long Island, N.Y.

Zorach Watercolors Set For Special FAC Exhibit

The Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center will show a group of watercolors by one of the country's most prominent artists, William Zorach. The paintings will be on view from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15.

The watercolors will show another side to the artist who is perhaps best known for his sculpture which graces many of the country's leading edifices and is found in nearly all large museums.

Colorado Springs is fortunate in having his sculpture, "The Family" which was recently purchased and installed outside the Columbia Savings and Loan Assn.

But, as Jacob Getlar Smith said in an article on Zorach for "American Artist" magazine, "Few are aware that his talent as a sculptor is matched by an equally fine ability to wield the sable brush. It is no ordinary feat for one preoccupied with the bulkiness of stone and bronze to turn so readily to the delicate instrument of the diaphanous wash, producing pictures of such fragility that they suggest a creator's hands more accustomed to the ephemeral stuff of vanishing cream than to mallet and chisel."

Zorach's watercolors are predominantly simple, reflecting the pure reverence for the outdoors, the New England countryside where he frequently paints, and, finally, for the art which he is ever trying to perfect.

Again quoting Smith's article, "vibrant color, orchestrated in resonant harmonies, is one of the Zorach's chief virtues. Leaning heavily on the warm pigments, he imbues the viewer with a feeling of sensuous well-being. There is no challenge; this is not an intellectual painting. It is a homespun declaration of affection for the simple things that surround us, and Zorach is willing to let it go at that; significant art has never sprung from a finer motive."

The son of Lithuanian immigrants, Zorach came to America in 1891 at the age of four when his family settled in Ohio. The family was poor and Zorach was forced to leave school after the 8th grade to support himself as a journeyman lithographer. Evenings he studied at the Cleveland School of Art, later—on his scant savings—he studied in New York and Paris.

He began to carve in 1917, and his reputation as a sculptor grew rapidly and won him many important public commissions including the Benjamin Franklin Statue in the Franklin Post Office in Washington, the big reliefs on the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., the "Builders of the Future" for the World's Fair in New York and "The Spirit of the Dance" at Radio City Music Hall.

'Sylvia' Cast Finally Gets Acquainted

New York stage actor Gene Lyons makes his Hollywood film bow in "Sylvia," the Carroll Baker-George Maharis romantic drama directed by Gordon Douglas and produced by Martin Poll.

In the Paramount release, Lyons has been cast as "Gavin Cullen," college professor who helps Maharis in his search into Carroll Baker's past.

Lyons said that he found his motion picture debut intriguing, and almost as much a mystery as the one he is called upon to help solve in the movie. Generally, in the theatre, the entire cast meets by the time the first rehearsal is called. However, in "Sylvia," enacting the role of the college professor, Lyons never does have a scene face to face with Carroll Baker. Two days after he completed working with Maharis, and talking about the background of "Sylvia," he was introduced to the star herself when Carroll Baker expressed an interest in meeting "Gavin Cullen," the college professor who gives a clue to the origin of the locale from where her poetry originated. Lyons said he was charmed and delighted to meet "Sylvia" in person.

PRESIDENT WASHINGTON'S DEATH— The January, 1800, issue of the Ulster County (N. Y.) Gazette had black borders, a way of mourning the death of President George Washington. Washington died in December, 1799, but the paper was a monthly and could not report the tragedy until January. Above, Mrs. Robert Ervin, who owns the ancient magazine-newspaper collection, displays the paper for the Gazette Telegraph photographer.

Family Collection of Newspapers Brings to Life Tragedy of Death

By SHARON ERVIN
Gaztte Telegraph Staff Writer

"Stout, healthy, active Negro wench for sale," the advertisement read. It was one of the ads run in the issue of the Ulster County Gazette published in Kingston, N. Y., January, 1800.

The paper, which reports the death of President George Washington, is part of a collection owned by Mrs. Robert Ervin,, 88 S. Black Forest Road, Black Forest. The collection includes newspapers, yellowed and made brittle with age, and magazines.

Mrs. Ervin's collection includes issues reporting the deaths of all four U. S. president who have been assassinated. She also has issues of the "Young Ladies Journal" from 1883 to 1889 inclusive. The "Young Ladies Journal," formerly printed in England, later became the "Ladies' Home Journal," published in New York.

The oldest newspaper in the collection is the January, 1800 issue which tells of the death of President Washington. It includes a poem which is by-lined "By a Young Lady," as it was not considered proper for a woman's name to appear in print in those days.

That newspaper also has news of the war raging in Europe against Napoleon and advertisements for wonder drugs and ointments guaranteed to cure everything from corns to thinning hair.

The newspapers and magazines were collected by various generations of Mrs. Ervin's family, the Chamberlains.

"I even have some letters written by and to my great, great grandmother, Sarah King of Lafayette, N. Y., " Mrs. Ervin said. "They were written to my great, great grandfather, Addison King, and sent to her from him, during the Civil War."

Several of the letters have no stamps. They were sent to and from a community in Kansas and were carried by pony express riders. Postage was paid according to weight.

The paper reporting the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln reports that when the president was shot, his head dropped forward and his eyes closed. A doctor at the scene pronounced him mortally wounded. He was taken across the street to a house where he was put to bed. His constitution, the paper reports, was strong. He breathed slowly and regularly throughout the night but died at 7:22 a.m.

The Junction City (Kans.) Union, published Sept. 24, 1881, reports the shooting of James A. Garfield. The bullet entered but did not leave his body and doctors, not knowing where the shell might be lodged, and not wanting the president to die under their hands, did not operate. Garfield lived about two weeks before he died of the wound.

The Kansas City Journal, Sept. 7, 1901, reports the shooting of President William McKinley. The banner headline was a quote from the late President Garfield after he had been shot. It said, "God Reigns and the Government at Washington Still Lives."

Mrs. Ervin added her part to the collection Nov. 22, 1963, when the newspapers were filled with the story of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. She also added a copy of Life Magazine which included a write-up on the late president.

"These old papers are falling apart," Mrs. Ervin said, "but I don't know how to preserve them. They are a wonderful collection. My children have shown a great interest in them and I imagine they will continue to be handed from one generation to the next in the years to come. Actually, they give history color which history books do not have. They give an on-the - spot account and make things seem as though they happened just yesterday rather than over 100 years ago."

COLORADO SPRINGS KENNEL CLUB NOTES

by Mary Urban

In London recently the Associated Press reported this story on dogs.

A new vogue for barkless dogs — a notion involving extraction of the canine vocal chords —was condemned in the House of Lords as a piece of cruelty that ought to be outlawed.

"I believe it is time to stop this practice," declared Laborite Peer Lord Willis. "We have tailless dogs, sexless dogs, coatless dogs, all in the interest of social convenience."

Lord Derwent who, as Minister of State to the home office found himself in line to answer, said he understood surgery of canine vocal chords caused no undue suffering to the dog, that in any case it was preferable from the hound's point of view to being sentenced to death by courts as a noise nuisance.

Personally I think people are losing their minds. Aren't we glad that things haven't gone that far in this country?

Breed of the Week—The English Springer Spaniel

The English Springer Spaniel is a close relative of the English Cocker. At one time both could be found in the same litter. The smaller ones were set aside as Cockers and the larger ones as Springers. The difference is three inches at the withers. The adult female Springer measures about 19 inches and the male 20 inches.

These two dogs were developed side by side and were derived from the original Spaniels from Spain.

Prior to the 17th century, all members of the spaniel group were merely called spaniels, whether they were large or small. Gradually the marked difference in size began to impress those who used the dogs for hunting, with the result that the larger dogs were soon "springer" game and the smaller ones hunting woodcock.

The names springer spaniel and woodcock spaniel, "cocking spaniel" or cocker, naturally followed and in 1892 the English Kennel Club recognized the separate breeds.

Because the Springer was long known as a sporting dog he was not often seen in shows in the British Isles but could be found in the field.

Though a few of these dogs were used in the field in America it was not until 1924 when the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial Association was formed that the breed became better known.

The Springer has been among the leading breeds in popularity in the United States since 1926, for many years holding down the No. 8 spot and never dropping below the 20th.

A hard worker at flushing and Springer, once he gets a paw in the door, usually remains the "boss" of the household. Although he is a medium rather than a small breed he has the spaniel spirit and can be quite a clown, loving and performing for not only his owner but anyone else who will take the time to encourage him. As a result, many Springer owners never go near the field but just enjoy him for the lovable individual he is.

His coat is moderately long, almost waterproof, usually black and white or liver and white, with feathering on his legs, pendulous ears, chest and brisket.

The typical Springer is friendly, eager to please, quick to learn and willing to learn. In the show ring he will exhibit poise, attentiveness and should permit himself to be examined by the judge without resentment or cringing.

More than anything else the eyes contribute to the Springer's appeal. They should be of medium size, neither small, round or prominent, nor bold or hard in expression. The color should harmonize with the coat, a dark hazel in liver dogs and a black or dark brown in the black and white speciments. The expression should be alert, kind and trusting.

This breed fits right in with a bachelor who likes to hunt or with a family of noisy, boisterous children. He loves every minute of just being alive and can contribute much to the happiness of "his" family.

Questions about dogs may be directed to Mrs. Glenn Urban, 495-2143.

He breathed slowly and regularly throughout the night but died at 7:22 a.m.

The Junction City (Kans.) Union, published Sept. 24, 1881, reports the shooting of James A. Garfield. The bullet entered but did not leave his body and doctors, not knowing where the shell might be lodged, and not wanting the president to die under their hands, did not operate. Garfield lived about two weeks before he died of the wound.

The Kansas City Journal, Sept. 7, 1901, reports the shooting of President William McKinley. The banner headline was a quote from the late President Garfield after he had been shot. It said, "God Reigns and the Government at Washington Still Lives."

Mrs. Ervin added her part to the collection Nov. 22, 1963, when the newspapers were filled with the story of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. She also added a copy of Life Magazine which included a write-up on the late president.

"These old papers are falling apart," Mrs. Ervin said, "but I don't know how to preserve them. They are a wonderful collection. My children have shown a great interest in them and I imagine they will continue to be handed from one generation to the next in the years to come. Actually, they give history color which history books do not have. They give an on-the - spot account and make things seem as though they happened just yesterday rather than over 100 years ago."

COLORADO SPRINGS KENNEL CLUB NOTES

by Mary Urban

In London recently the Associated Press reported this story on dogs.

A new vogue for barkless dogs — a notion involving extraction of the canine vocal chords —was condemned in the House of Lords as a piece of cruelty that ought to be outlawed.

"I believe it is time to stop this practice," declared Laborite Peer Lord Willis. "We have tailless dogs, sexless dogs, coatless dogs, all in the interest of social convenience."

Lord Derwent who, as Minister of State to the home office found himself in line to answer, said he understood surgery of canine vocal chords caused no undue suffering to the dog, that in any case it was preferable from the hound's point of view to being sentenced to death by courts as a noise nuisance.

Personally I think people are losing their minds. Aren't we glad that things haven't gone that far in this country?

Breed of the Week—The English Springer Spaniel

The English Springer Spaniel is a close relative of the English Cocker. At one time both could be found in the same litter. The smaller ones were set aside as Cockers and the larger ones as Springers. The difference is three inches at the withers. The adult female Springer measures about 19 inches and the male 20 inches.

These two dogs were developed side by side and were derived from the original Spaniels from Spain.

Prior to the 17th century, all members of the spaniel group were merely called spaniels, whether they were large or small. Gradually the marked difference in size began to impress those who used the dogs for hunting, with the result that the larger dogs were soon "springer" game and the smaller ones hunting woodcock.

The names springer spaniel and woodcock spaniel, "cocking spaniel" or cocker, naturally followed and in 1892 the English Kennel Club recognized the separate breeds.

Because the Springer was long known as a sporting dog he was not often seen in shows in the British Isles but could be found in the field.

Though a few of these dogs were used in the field in America it was not until 1924 when the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial Association was formed that the breed became better known.

The Springer has been among the leading breeds in popularity in the United States since 1926, for many years holding down the No. 8 spot and never dropping below the 20th.

A hard worker at flushing and Springer, once he gets a paw in the door, usually remains the "boss" of the household. Although he is a medium rather than a small breed he has the spaniel spirit and can be quite a clown, loving and performing for not only his owner but anyone else who will take the time to encourage him. As a result, many Springer owners never go near the field but just enjoy him for the lovable individual he is.

The Springer is a medium sized dog with a neat, compact body and docked tail. The reason for docking his tail is obvious. His tail wags constantly and if it were left long it would be in shreds after a day in the field.

His coat is moderately long, almost waterproof, usually black and white or liver and white, with feathering on his legs, pendulous ears, chest and brisket.

The typical Springer is friendly, eager to please, quick to learn and willing to learn. In the show ring he will exhibit poise, attentiveness and should permit himself to be examined by the judge without resentment or cringing.

More than anything else the eyes contribute to the Springer's appeal. They should be of medium size, neither small, round or prominent, nor bold or hard in expression. The color should harmonize with the coat, a dark hazel in liver dogs and a black or dark brown in the black and white speciments. The expression should be alert, kind and trusting.

This breed fits right in with a bachelor who likes to hunt or with a family of noisy, boisterous children. He loves every minute of just being alive and can contribute much to the happiness of "his" family.

Questions about dogs may be directed to Mrs. Glenn Urban, 495-2143.

Hungarian Quartet Back In Residence at Boulder

The Hungarian Quartet, fresh from a world concert tour, will be back in residence during the spring semester at the University of Colorado and will give seven free, public concerts between February and May.

The quartet has been part of the CU music faculty between concert tours for the last three years. Members are Zoltan Szekely and Michael Kuttner, violins; Denes Koromzay, viola, and Gabriel Magyar, cello.

The group's first appearance will be at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 12, and the program will be repeated at the same time the following evening, Saturday, Feb. 13. Similar paired concerts will be given March 14-15, and May 14-15, all in the Music Hall. In addition, there will be a concert April 6 in Macky Auditorium and lecture-recitals Feb. 18, March 18 and April 21 in the Music Hall.

Although all concerts are free, admission will be by ticket only. Tickets will be available one week before each concert at the College of Music, according to Dean Warner Imig.

"Chamber music requires the intimacy of a small auditorium, such as the Music Hall," Imig said. "At the same time, the quartet's immense popularity always has attracted many more people than the Music Hall can accommodate. So the quartet has agreed to repeat three of its concerts, and we will attempt to let as many different people as possible attend by requiring tickets for admission."

The quartet was organized in 1935 in Budapest. By 1938 it had been heard in every major city of Western Europe. It made its first American tour in 1948, and in 1950 it adopted the United States as its permanent home.

The quartet's repertoire encompasses works from the early classics through the romantics to the contemporaries. The quartet is especially noted for its performances of the 16 Beethoven quartets.

FAC Currently Showing Entire Art Collection

For the first time in several years the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center will exhibit at one tine all of the paintings and sculpture owned by the Fine Arts Center in its permanent collection.

The showing which opens this week, will include about 100 pieces of art which have been acquired by the Fine Arts Center over the past 25 years almost entirely from gifts and donations by individuals and foundations. The Fine Arts Center has never budgeted funds for purchase of permanent art works.

Grants from the El Pomar Foundation have provided the nucleus of the collection. About 20 of the collection have been purchased with these funds over the years. Two of the most important and well - known paintings, "Trio" and "Red Apples" both by Walt Kuhn, were acquired through a separate $5000 grant from the El Pomar Foundation.

To be seen also are the first paintings acquired through income from the Carlton Fund, the only purchase fund. These are "View of the Teton Range, Moose, Wyoming" by Albert Bierstadt and "Country Landscape" by Ernest Lawson. The fund was bequeathed by the late Mrs. Ethel Carlton.

Another major contributor to the collection is the Contemporary Art Society which has selected and purchased one contemporary art piece each year for the past eight years. The Society, composed of individuals and couples who are interested not only in contributing to the Fine Arts Center but in learning more about art.

Five pictures were acquired the past year through the Anonymous Donor program of the American Federation of Arts.

The collection is concentrated primarily on American art dating from about 1930, with particular emphasis on works by both teachers and students who have been connected with the Fine Arts Center school.

However, there is a good representation of well - known names in the art world, including: Arthur Dove, Morris Graves, Milton Avery, Harry Bretoia, Jean Paul Darriau, Georgia O'Keefe, Gene Charlot, John Singer Sargent, Peter Hurd.

Local artists, both past and present, include: Boardman Robinson, Robert Ray, Edgar Britton, Mary Chenoweth, Bernard Arnest, Herman Raymond.

Stamps in the News

U. S. First day cover collectors will be glad to know about two commemoratives scheduled for issuance in 1965.

The Battle of New Orleans stamp will be issued in that city on Jan. 8. The Sokol commemorative will make its appearande in Washington on Feb. 15.

The 5-cent rec, blue and black stamp for the Battle of New Orleans depicts Gen. Andrew Jackson leading his troops against the British. Also shown on this stamp is the sesquicentennial medal honoring the occasion.

The 5-cent red, blue and black marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of this physical fitness organization in the U. S. reproduces the statue of a discuss thrower that stands in the State Department in Washington.

Collectors desiring first - day cancellations of these stamps may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the appropriate postmaster (New Orleans and Washington).

Requests for the New Orleans stamp must be postmarked not later than Jan. 8 and requests for the Sokol stamp not later than Feb. 15.

The Federal Republic of Germany will begin a new series of definitive stamps by issuing the first six in the set, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new series will be issued over the indefinte period of time and will contain 31 stamps depicting 16 examples of German architecture built during the last 1,200 years. There will be 16 different values. The first six will be issued in three denominations and illustrate three structures. The 50 pfennig will show Castle gate in Ellwaneged, 60 pf the Trertower Gate in Newbrandenberg, and the 80 pf the Ellinger Gate in Weissenburg. Three ofthe stamps will be inscribed "Berlin" for use in that city.

Contrary to the views and feelings of the majority of stamp collectors everywhere, the printers in the U. S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing, acting under orders from the Post Office Department, are doing their utmost to assure that no errors appear on stamps and therefore that no items of value get to the public.

Every precaution was taken to prevent the production of inverts on the Stuart Davis abstract art stamp. Because the design of abstract art makes it easy for errors to occur, the engravers even deliberately made a few so that they dould know what the boo boos looked like.

The stamps are in three colors and required two press runs. This gave greater opportunity for error. But the printers would not be undone and the hopeful stamp collectors were foiled again.

Jeanne Cagney Returns to Pix

Jeanne Cagney will return to the screen after seven years absence in A. C. Lyles' "Town Tamer," Paramount Technicolor release which stars Dana Andrews, Terry Moore and Colleen Gray.

In "Town Tamer," Jeanne plays the owner of a small restaurant in a lawless western town.

PATTY TRIPLES—Patty Duke in an acting tour-de-force stars in three separate roles in "The Perfect Hostess," on ABC-TV's "The Patty Duke Show," Wednesday on Channel 13. That's Patty as Patty Lane on the left and Cathy Lane on the right. In the middle is a picture of Patty as distant cousin Betsy from Chattanooga, a platinum blonde with honeysuckle accents.

Still Sinking

THIS WEEK IN YOUR LEGISLATURE

An informative discussion of State and National legislative activities and how they affect the people of El Paso County. Sponsored by the Republicans of El Paso County.

Stunter Draws Mouse In Fight

Johnny Indrisano, Hollywood stuntman and former welter-weight contender, training several hundred German actors and extras how to fake and feint so as not to get hurt in a movie fight scene, himself drew a "mouse."

Indrisano, who insists that some of the world champs "Never laid a glove on him," drew a black eye on location while training his men for sequences in "Situation Hopeless—But Not Serious," which stars Alec Guinness, Michael Connors and Robert Redford, produced and directed by Gottfried Reinhardt for Paramount.

The former welter-weight contender was preparing the performers from a battle scene for the film-within-the-film when one of his charges let go with a hay-maker and forgot to "pull" or Johnny forgot to duck.

Pair of Jones

A pair of Jones, Shirley and Jack will make their Las Vegas debuts at Morris Lansburgh's Fabulous Flamingo Hotel during 1965. Shirley opens on April 15 and Jack in August.

PATTY TRIPLES—Patty Duke in an acting tour-de-force stars in three separate roles in "The Perfect Hostess," on ABC-TV's "The Patty Duke Show," Wednesday on Channel 13. That's Patty as Patty Lane on the left and Cathy Lane on the right. In the middle is a picture of Patty as distant cousin Betsy from Chattanooga, a platinum blonde with honeysuckle accents.

Still Sinking

They're Here!

Chad and Jeremy, popular shaggy-haried British singing duo, appear as themselves in an upcoming satire on the current look in pop singers on "The Dick Van Dyke Show" on the CBS Television Network. Episode title is "The Redcoats Are Coming."

Stunter Draws Mouse In Fight

Johnny Indrisano, Hollywood stuntman and former welter-weight contender, training several hundred German actors and extras how to fake and feint so as not to get hurt in a movie fight scene, himself drew a "mouse."

Indrisano, who insists that some of the world champs "Never laid a glove on him," drew a black eye on location while training his men for sequences in "Situation Hopeless—But Not Serious," which stars Alec Guinness, Michael Connors and Robert Redford, produced and directed by Gottfried Reinhardt for Paramount.

The former welter-weight contender was preparing the performers from a battle scene for the film-within-the-film when one of his charges let go with a hay-maker and forgot to "pull" or Johnny forgot to duck.

Pair of Jones

'Anatomy' Is Revived

NEW YORK (AP) — A project that started for Broadway seven years ago, "Anatomy of a Murder," is being revived under fresh auspices.

An adaptation was begun by John van Druten of the best-selling novel, but the venture was dropped when he died before finishing the script. Later a film was made by Otto Preminger starring James Stewart and Lee Remick.

Elihu Weiner, A TV playwright, is at work on the new stage version and production is planned this season by Norman Twain, who will double as director.

KARACHI — Pakistan will build wharves at Chittagnong.

BOB HOPE SPECIAL — Bob Hope's 13th annual Christmas tour of overseas Armed Forces bases was taped and highlights of the tour will be presented Friday on Channel 5 as "Chrysler Presents the Bob Hope Special." The 90 minute show will feature stops at Korea, Thailand, the Phillippines, South Viet Nam and Guam. Hope's guests include Jill St. John, Janis Paige, Ann Sidney, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Jerry Colonna, Peter Leeds and John Bubbles.

'HULLABALOO' HOST AND GUEST — Jack Jones will be the host and Miss Joey Heatherton one of the guests on the Tuesday premiere colorcast of "Hullabaloo," NBC-TV's new musical show for young people. Jones, a top recording star and nightclub artist, will be the first of various hosts on the full-hour series. Joey Heatherton, a singer, dancer, dramatic actress and comedienne, is one of television's brightest new stars. The show will be seen on Channel 5.

'Anatomy' Is Revived

NEW YORK (AP) — A project that started for Broadway seven years ago, "Anatomy of a Murder," is being revived under fresh auspices.

An adaptation was begun by John van Druten of the best-selling novel, but the venture was dropped when he died before finishing the script. Later a film was made by Otto Preminger starring James Stewart and Lee Remick.

Elihu Weiner, A TV playwright, is at work on the new stage version and production is planned this season by Norman Twain, who will double as director.

KARACHI — Pakistan will build wharves at Chittagnong.

BOB HOPE SPECIAL — Bob Hope's 13th annual Christmas tour of overseas Armed Forces bases was taped and highlights of the tour will be presented Friday on Channel 5 as "Chrysler Presents the Bob Hope Special." The 90 minute show will feature stops at Korea, Thailand, the Phillippines, South Viet Nam and Guam. Hope's guests include Jill St. John, Janis Paige, Ann Sidney, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Jerry Colonna, Peter Leeds and John Bubbles.

'HULLABALOO' HOST AND GUEST — Jack Jones will be the host and Miss Joey Heatherton one of the guests on the Tuesday premiere colorcast of "Hullabaloo," NBC-TV's new musical show for young people. Jones, a top recording star and nightclub artist, will be the first of various hosts on the full-hour series. Joey Heatherton, a singer, dancer, dramatic actress and comedienne, is one of television's brightest new stars. The show will be seen on Channel 5.

NARRATES SPECIAL— Raymond Massey will narrate the Lou Hazam production of "The Capitol — Chronicle of Freedom." One of the few truly great performers of the American Theatre, Massey found his story-telling role in the hour-long and in-color documentary quite different from his weekly apearance as Dr. Gillespie on the network's "Dr. Kildare," but he quickly accepted the challenge after reading the brilliant script by Hazam. The program will be telecast Tuesday on channel 5.

NEW CHAMPION—Ginny's Mitchell, who won his first points three months ago, entered the champion ranks recently when he went winners dog and best of opposite sex to finish with a three-point major at the Terry-All Kennel Club's all breed show at Thornton. He is shown here with his handler, Edna James of Denver who will show the new champion at various shows across the U.S. in 1965. Ginny's Mitchell is owned by Fran and Duke of Colorado Springs.

Bobby Bland Revue Slated Today at City Auditorium

Bobby Bland, one of the country's top Rythm and Blues performers, will bring his all-star revue to the City Auditorium tocay for a dance and show.

Jerry Schaffer, popular local disc jockey, said Bland's band will be on the stage of the auditorium continuously from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

In between the dance music, members of the revue will perform, Schaffer said.

Bland, whose music is anything but bland, is ranked just behind James Brown and the Flames in popularity among Rhythm and Blues addicts.

Schaffer said that James Brown and the Flames had been scheduled to appear at the City Auditorium later this week, but cancelled out at the last minute.

At the same time, the popular disc jockey apologized to those who turned out for the scheduled gala New Year's Eve dance and show and were disappointed when the star performers failed to appear.

"We had no control over that," Schaffer said. "And I personally feel very badly about the affair. That's why we scheduled Bland and Brown, but we didn't want to announce James' appearance until we were positive. I'm glad we didn't."

However, Schaffer said he is negotiating with other top names in the music business to make personal appearances in the Springs.

"We have some trouble because we're not on the regular circuit, but I think the fans in this area will have a lot to shout about in the coming weeks," Schaffer said.

Among the possibilities mentioned for appearances here are Ray Charles and Brenda Lee.

Schaffer began the series of bringing in top personalities late last year when he scheduled Peter and Gordon. Among others appearing at dance - shows in the City Auditorium were Little Richard and The Drifters.

The disc jockey said he had at least five shows planned for the coming weeks.

Schaffer will be on the stage to emcee the Bobby Bland Revue today.

Rosalind In 'Poor Dad' Film Comedy

Rosalind Russell has been signed for a starring role in the Seven Arts production of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You In The Closet And I'm Feeling So Sad," it was jointly announced this week by Howard W. Koach, vice-president of Paramount and studio and production head, and Ray Stark and William Goetz of Seven Arts. Stark will personally produce the screen version of the successful Arthur Kopit play and Richard Quine will direct, with Paramount releasing the production.

Miss Russell is the first of several stars to be signed for the comedy-drama, which is being adapted for the screen by Ian Bernard.

"Oh Dad, Poor Dad" will mark the reunion of the Stark-Quine producing and directing team which made "The World of Suzie Wong" in 1960 for Paramount release. Stark recently claimed motion picture, "The Night of the Iguana," and the Broadway hit, "Funny Girl." Quine is currently putting the finishing touches on "Synanon."

KRDO-TV to Broadcast High School Basketball Games Starting Sunday

KRDO TV takes to the bleachers this weekend as the Channel 13 mobile cameras prepare to capture the action of South Central League basketball play. A full season of games will be video taped for replay on Sunday afternoons beginning Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

This year, the play by play announcing of Bob Burghart has been complimented with game commentator Bill Westbay, well known Palmer High School football coach and well acquainted with South Central League play. Former KRDO Sports Director Bob Burghart brings to the television audience a wealth of broadcast experience, being a sportscasting veteran of Skysox baseball, high school and college football and hockey as well as other sports interests.

The TV season opens January tenth as thePalmer High quintet moves south where they meet strong and unpredictable Pueblo South. This is coach Roger O'Neill's first outing in S. C. L. play as the explosive scoring Colts buck his highly touted Terrors.

The following week brings an aerial battle between the Eagles and the Thunderbirds. This game sends Dick Westbay's charges winging their way to Pueblo and an appointment with last year's cellar-dwellers but a much improved East squad.

On January 24th, coach Doyle Fyfe unveils Centennial High's answer to "flubber" as the league's tallest player, seven foot and then some, Ron Smith makes his television debut before KRDO TV's cameras in a game against the traveling Trinidad Miners.

Contest number four sends Dick Westbay & Co. into the basketball ring with the Palmer Terrors. The two traditional sparring partners square off in a match usually rated a tossup. To date, however, Wasson holds the edge in the record books.

On February 7th, the KRDO TV Mobile Unit journeys to Pueblo where Jim Ranson paces his Wildcats in a meeting with the Colts. This mid season game will undoubtedly be a test of Central's reconstruction program after last season's 19-0 record. This time, they face South's patented free for all ball handling.

On February 14, the Palmer five grab their traveling bags and head for Central High hardwood and what could be the "winner take all" game. Valuable game experience will have been gained by both clubs in a contest that could be the pivotal tilt of the season.

The following week, John Kilpatrick's Miners pack up and ply their way north to the Palmer gym and the awaiting Thunderbirds. Again, among the spectators in the stands, the KRDO TV cameras will catch the action on and off the courts as Bob Burhart and Bill Westbay describe the play.

On February 28th, the Pueblo East Eagles journey to Colorado Springs and bring with them two of last years league leading scorers in the persons of Dan Noll and Darrell McDaniel. Against this contingent will be pitted Palmer's "Bill McCalvy Quintet" in what should be an interesting talent contest.

The last game of the season matches intra-city rivals, Palmer and Wasson in a return match that has been, historically speaking, a grudge game spotlighting the loser of the previous meeting. However, more than the city cup could be at stake this year in this late season outing.

As with all of the sporting events telecast through the facilities of KRDO Television, the programs should not replace in-stands spectating, but should encourage more of it by sporting buffs throughout the Pikes Peak Region.

Julie Signs TV Contract With NBC

Julie Andrews, who followed Broadway musical successes with motion picture hits, has entered into an exclusive agreement with the National Broadcasting Company to star on a number of musical color specials on the NBC Television Network.

Announcement of the agreement was made by Mort Werner, vice president, Programs, NBC-TV Network, who said that the first special starring Miss Andrews will be presented in the Springs of 1965 and the second during the following Fall.

"NBC is delighted to obtain the services of this most versatile star whom we consider to be one of the world's most talented performers," Werner said. "Miss Andrews' past rare television appearances garnered acclaim from audience and critics alike and we are sure she will have the same success on her new TV specials as she has had on Broadway and in Hollywood films."

The contractual agreements were concluded between NBC and Miss Andrews' representatives, Chasin-Park-Citron agency and Charles Tucker of London ,England

Miss Andrews, the original Eliza Doolittle of Broadway's "My Fair Lady," faced her first New York audience at the Royale Theatre Sept. 30, 1954, in "The Boy Friend," an imported British musical lampooning the foibles of the 1920s.

Born at Walton-on-Thames in 1935, Miss Andrews made her professional acting debut in "Starlight," a revue at the London Hippodrome in 1948. She won the role of Polly Browne in "The Boy Friend" after her performance in the title role of "Cinderella" at the Palladium. Following her "Fair Lady" role, Miss Andrews starred in "Camelot" on Broadway.

She is currently seen on theatre screens starring in "Mary Poppins" and "The Americaniation of Emily," which will be followed next Spring by "The Sound of Music." Miss Andrews' TV credits include a Carnegie Hall special, a musical version of Maxwell Anderson's "High Tor" with Bing Crosby, a musical "Cinderella," "The Broadway of Lerner and Lowew" salute with Richard Burton, Maurice Chevalier and others; the Ed Sullivan, Dinah Shore and Jack Benny Shows, and "The Andy Williams Show" on Monday, Nov. 30.

The dates of NBC's Julie Andrews color specials will be announced.

A few years ago a strange kind of phenomena burst onto the American musical scene.

It wasn't anything new by a long shot, but the people who make or break the music recording industry — the young folks—took it to their hearts and soon everybody and their cousin was picking a banjo or guitar and warbbling about "John Henry" and his ilk.

The phenomena was folk music and when you get a bunch of folk singers together along with a large mass of foot-stomping, hand clapping, ready-to-sing-along addicts, you have what is known to the world as a hootenanny.

And that's what the Jaycees are bringing to the City Auditorium Jan. 16.

It's the second annual Hootenanny sponsored by the Jaycees for the benefit of the March of Dimes and it features local talent.

Some 25 acts will be featured in the three-hour show which will get underway starting at 7 p.m.

There is no admission, but the Jaycees are asking for a donatation of $1 from adults and 50 cents from students to join in the hootenanny. All of the proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

Included among the performers will be several professionals but if enthusiasim is any barometer, it will be difficult to tell them from the amateur groups.

That's what makes a hootenanny, a hootenanny—enthusiasm.

If you've never attended one, it's kind of like a free-for-all on a street corner or a pier 6 brawl—with the exception that all of the slugging is done with words and music and the kicking confined to pounding the floor with your foot in time to the music.

Some People Say That Hootin' Annie Started The Fun Ball Rolling

There are some people who say the term came from a famous lady of folk music who, naturaly enough, was known as "Hootin' Annie." The dictionary relegates this type of hootenanny to second meaning of the word.

Primary definitation of the word is: "A thing, gadget: a device or piece of mechanical equipment — used especially when the standard name is unknown." (We always figured this was a thigamajig). "B. a device for holding a crosscut saw in position while sawing a log from the under side."

And then it comes to what folk singers are talking about when they use the word: "2. An informal party usually featuring dancing and group singing."

Actually, some people think that the folk-singing kind of hootenanny is what the primary defination says it is: A thing or gadget.

But most people agree that whatever definition you use, it's a lot of fun.

Last year, the City Auditorium was jampacked with hootenanny fans and the Jaycees hope to pack it again this year.

For those who have never attended one, it is recommended that you bring along some cream to keep your hands from smarting; some corn plasters for your feet and whatever you use to keep your throat from becoming too raw from shouting and singing.

Bob Gerdeman, a teacher at Cheyenne Mountain Junior High School is chairman of the event this year for the Jaycees. Bill Yeager of KRDO will act as master of ceremonies for the show.

And the stars will come from just about every walk of life and section of Colorado Springs.

YOUNG TRAVELERS— They call themselves The Travelers Four and they're from Divine Redemmer School and they will be traveling to the City Auditorium next Saturday night to take part in the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce Hootenanny. The second annual benefit show will get underway at 7 p.m. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

He Had a Heart Attack and Learned That He Could Work With His Hands

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Owen Hall once worked with the strength of his arms and back. A heart attack ended that and Hall discovered he could work with his hands.

"I was a grave vault maker," Hall said. He was sittin in his home, 506 S. Hancock, surrounded by the small wooden articles he has learned to make since his attack. "I poured cement into steel forms and when a vault was hard, I took it to the cemetery and put it over the grave. I did that for 15 years.

"Then three years ago Christmas Eve, I was 62 years old, our kids were all over here opening their presents. I got up to walk into the bedroom for a minute and felt a terrible pain in my chset. It hit once and I fell across the bed.

"While I was in the hospital my boss came to visit and said my job would be waiting for me. The doctor said if I improved, I could go back but I just never improved enough to suit him.

"My wife was working at a cleaners so I was home by myself for a while. I wasn't bored. I just felt tired and worn out for a while. Then, gradually, I started doing some of the housework and some odds and ends.

"Christmas was coming up again and I used some spools my wife brought home and started decorating them for my little grandchildren and nieces and nephews. I was afraid of working with paint, so I colored them with cake coloring and varnish.

"Looking at those, I wondered if I couldn't make some salt and pepper shakers and color them the same way.

"When I got started, I figured out how to make a lot of things. I had done a little carpentry work years ago and I enjoyed working with wood.

"Pretty soon everyone started wanting the things I made and the kids started giving me things for a workshop. We had a little apartment downstairs and I changed that into a regular workshop. I made TV salt and pepper and toothpick holder sets, napkins holders, stud boxes and lots of other things.

"I used to lay in bed at night trying to think of how to do different things with the wood. I've done some inlaid work and fancy stuff by I never use any kind of pattern other than what I can think of myself.

"I give away most of the things I make. They make good Christmas and birthday presents. I don't think I ever could turn it into a business because I'm afraid I don't have the time to make it pay, or the energy to keep up with it.

"I get tired pretty easily and I fall real easily now. I can't seem to pick my feet up as high as I used to. Sometimes I don't work in my shop for several days. Then I'll go down and work for two or three hours at a time. When I get tired, I stop.

"In the summertime, I don't work in the shop much. I like to work outside with my flowers. And last summer I painted the inside of the house. I keep pretty busy.

"Anyway, the woodworking is just a wintertime hobby with me to keep me out of trouble."

Computer Technician Set To Address Radio Hams

Max Main, RCA technical representative, will speak on "Computers: From Steam to Solid State" at the monthly meeting of the Pikes Peak Radio Association at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Red Cross building, 1600 N. Cascade Ave.

Main, who provides maintenance and programing of computers for BMEWS, has been a ham operator for the past decade. He became interested in computers while working as a broadcast engineer with station WIOU, a CBS affiliate at Kokomo, Ind.

A native of Indiana, Main has made a study of the history of computers, some dating back as far as 1683. He found that first computers were called difference machines, which served a purpose similar to slide rules.

With the advent of transistors, many problems of computers were removed. In pre - transistor days computers were large and unwieldy and overheated tubes, which had to be either air or water cooled, were greatly overcome with the emergence of transistors.

Today even the most complex computer has as its basis, simple circuitry used in many basic electronic machines. This is illustrated by a simple two-tube computer which can store memorized information.

It has been established that the capacity of a computer, in order to equal the mature mind in stored memory, would have to be as tall as New York's Empire State Building, be powered by Niagara Falls and cooled by the Niagara River.

A question and answer period will follow Main's talk Wednesday night.

Model Plane Events Set For Summer

The 34th National Model Airplane Championships will be held at Willow Grove Naval Air Station, Willow Grove, Pa., July 26 - Aug. 1, according to the Academy of Model Aeronautics.

Although many of the expected 1200 contestants will be from the Philadelphia area, entrants are expected from all 50 states, Mexico, Canada and other countries.

The week - long event is held regularly by the U. S. Navy at its air stations across the country, and is a cooperative effort by the Naval Air Training Command, the Naval Air Reserve, and the host station.

More than 200,000 spectators are expected to visit NAS Willow Grove this year for the model flying and to see the Navy's Blue Angels in spectacular air demonstrations.

The contest is open to anyone desiring to enter an appropriate aircraft in one of the 35 different events. These range from indoor stick models to the most advanced radio controlled models.

More than 500 trophies will be presented to winners, champions, and record - breakers in 3 age groups: Junior, up to 16 yrs.; Senior, up to 21 yrs.; and Open, 21 yrs. and older. Trophies are awarded for first through fifth place finishers.

John Worth, AMA executive director, says contestants entering events in the Junior category, even with limited flying experience, have an excellent chance of winning a trophy.

Further information on contest categories and entrance requirements may be obtained from the Academy of Model Aeronautics, 1025 Connecticut Ave., N. W., Wash, D. C. 20036.

Schumacher To Present Concert

Thomas Schumacher, brilliant young pianist, will present a concert at Western State College, Tuesday.

A graduate of the Manhattan School of Music and Julliard School of Music, Schumacher has been accorded many honors, including the Carl M. Reeder Memorial Award, the Morris Loeb Memorial Prize, the JUGG Award, and was winner of the 1962 Busoni Competition in Bolzano, Italy. He received the Julliard Alumni Scholarship and teaching fellowship in 1961-62, and made his New York recital debut in Town Hall in April, 1963.

"He is able to make the keyboard sing," New York Herald Tribune; "Mr. Schumacker displayed power in abundance and ability for virtuosic display," St. Louis Globe - Democrat; "Schumacher has the sincerity, temperament, keyboard technique and changes of tone color and dynamics required for his challenging concert." Kansas City Times; "Thomas Schumacher revealed himself as a musical personality of subtle sensitivity last night in his recital," Baltimore Sun," are a few of the press comments concerning his appearances.

The concert (8 p.m., college auditorium) is a feature of the WSC Associated Student Concert-Lecture Series.

He Had a Heart Attack and Learned That He Could Work With His Hands

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Owen Hall once worked with the strength of his arms and back. A heart attack ended that and Hall discovered he could work with his hands.

"I was a grave vault maker," Hall said. He was sittin in his home, 506 S. Hancock, surrounded by the small wooden articles he has learned to make since his attack. "I poured cement into steel forms and when a vault was hard, I took it to the cemetery and put it over the grave. I did that for 15 years.

"Then three years ago Christmas Eve, I was 62 years old, our kids were all over here opening their presents. I got up to walk into the bedroom for a minute and felt a terrible pain in my chset. It hit once and I fell across the bed.

"While I was in the hospital my boss came to visit and said my job would be waiting for me. The doctor said if I improved, I could go back but I just never improved enough to suit him.

LEISURETIME BOOKS by John Fetler

Travelers Traverse Twilight in Europe

THE TRAVELERS — By Andrew Fetler - Houghton-Mifflin - $4.95 - Travelers to Europe may, now and then, see some of the most curious and fascinating characters. It may be a band of gypsies. It may be an itinerant politician or evangelist in London's Hyde Park. It may be Russian refugees in Paris or Zurich. And, if he is a perceptive traveler, he may ask himself the question: Who are these people? Where do they come from? Where are they going? What are they talking about, waving their arms wildly, always arguing, always preaching about one ideology or another, about one religion or another, how to save the world?

The author wrote this highly engrossing book about an itinerant preacher. The European counterpart of a circuit - rider. The old preacher perambulates in an old bus through Europe, just before the outbreak of World War Two in a one-man crusade against Stalin, the "Red Satan."

It is a Don Quixotic story, that of the heroism, or nonheroism of a single, ragged, figure attacking the windmills of Soviet atheistic might. The plot of this story is probably one which could be produced only in the atmosphere of the European "travelers," the refugee wanderers between wars, reminiscent somewhat of the old, engrossing legends of the eternally wandering Jew. The central character is a Salvation Army - type preacher who is sometimes mistaken for a Jew in Nazi Germany, through which he travels on his mission, because he has a beard. But, as the preacher points out to the Nazis: "We are neither Jews nor Gypsies, but Russian Christian exiles fighting the Red Terror through ice and snow."

Just how he fights the Red Terror, single - handed, bombarding such world figures as Chamberlain and Mannerheim with missives of advice, is the burden of the story, which grows on the reader with a wealth of detail.

As the publishers explain: "It is December, 1938. Vanya's (the preacher's) old bus rattles northward through a cruel and fearsome Germany, bound for the Baltic coast." The preacher's plan is to reach Finland, and ride into Russia on the coat-tails of Finnish Gen. Mannerheim, when, and if, he invades Russia and marches into Leningrad. "With the itinerant preacher are his wife Anna and their children. They are travelers on a strange journey." And, one might add, one of the most unusual journeys depicted in current American fiction. For, it is something of a pilgrim's crusade. "He is a fanatical Protestant whose mission is to spread the Word (of the Gospel) into a Russia which he sees gripped by the Red Satan of atheism.

His wife, Anna, accompanies him on these journeys, apparently with hardly a murmur, even though long ago her father cautioned her: "God save you from a man who insists on truth." And apparently the old preacher does insist on his theological truth — or does he? That, among other questions, is one of the puzzles to be solved by the reader.

As the publishers note: "As he (the preacher) moves from city to city in the glowering dusk of Hitler's Europe, one sees a man in spiritual torment, destroying himself for his faith. But he becomes, in the end, a man for whom one can weep."

The main outline of the story is that of the exiled preacher's wanderings from country to country, as he conducts his own brand of a one-man anti-Communist crusade, still hoping to return victoriously to Russia. But as with Moses, he never enters the promised land. The question which the author proposes is whether his was a real cause, or Quixotic self-delusion; was it an egomaniacal dream, or was he a kind of Gen. William Booth of the exile circuit?

As it seems to happen with patriarchs, the old preacher has to face more than the Soviet and Nazi might in his fight. For the complication in the plot is that the preacher's children, in the never - ending battle between the generations, get to learn about the world in a manner more sophisticated than that of the "old-time religion." And there is revolt brewing against the ragged preacher, with predictable results. Moreover, the story is told mostly through the eyes of the preacher's children, with some scathing comments on the state of affairs.

The author traveled widely in Europe before World War Two. During the war he served in the U.S. Army in various theaters of war in Europe, and traveled widely also after the war. He taught at the University of Iowa in Iowa City, where he also held writing fellowships, and currently is teaching English at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, Mass.

The author knows his Europe. All through the book there are references to names, places, political events, historical influences going back through the hoary centuries in Germany, Latvia, Finland, Sweden, etc.

There is a large array of characters in the story. Throughout the book these characters experience hundreds of sharply drawn, illuminating moments — sometimes described incisively in just a few words. The author's style is compressed. He crams into the sentences and paragraphs a caleidoscope of impressions, and this in itself is a considerable achievement of literary style.

Even though the book is designed mainly as a good story, it does include philosophical, political, religious and agnostic questions. This sophistication would be specially appreciated by the cosmopolitan audience such as in New York. The book is being published in England as well, and should be of interest overseas to those who are highly literate with the political, religious and philosophical questions of the past half century of the Europe which through the years of turmoil has sought to burrow its way out to a brighter future.

The earliest reference to the practice of diving occurs in the Iliad, where Patroclus compares the fall of Hector's charioteer to the action of a diver diving for oysters. Thucydides mentions the employment of divers during the siege of Syracuse to saw down the barriers which had been constructed below the surface of the water.

Cheese From Old Santa? Try Some of These Tips

Twelfth Night has gone by, and now presumably, most households have been restored to their pre-Christmas order.

The trees have been stripped of their finery, now stored away until twelve months hence. Gifts have finally been carted upstairs or downstairs as the case may be.

But if you are among the many who received one of assorted cheese, you're probably wondering what you can do with some of them.

If you've still got a bottle of champagne left over from New Year's Eve, and if you were lucky enough to have received a bright copper or silver chafing dish from Santa, here's a good way to make use of both.

Melt two tablespoons butter in the chafing dish. Add one-half pound grated Cheddar cheese and as it melts slowly stir in one - fourth cup champagne. Add a pinch of salt and serve over toast points. Drink the rest of the champagne along with the rabbit.

Or else save three - fourths cup of champagne to make a Gorgonzola spread. Mix one-half pound Gorgonzola with one-fourth pound soft butter, adding cayenne pepper to taste. Stir into a smooth paste, add the champagne. Serve with crackers or thin slices of your favorite bread.

Did old St. Nick leave a sandwich grill under the tree? Then butter the sides of two thick slices of white bread. Spread between them a mixture of one egg yolk, one tablespoon grated Swiss cheese, with mustard, salt and white pepper to taste. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Grill until lightly browned.

After ducks and geese, turkeys and hens, and that American standby ham, you might yearn for a good thick steak for a change from the holiday fare.

Mix one - fourth pound Roquefort cheese with one - fourth cup olive oil and a garlic clove that has been crushed in one tablespoon brandy. Broil a thick, juicy steak, then blanket it with some of this sauce and return to broiler just until the cheese has melted.

Throughout the book these characters experience hundreds of sharply drawn, illuminating moments — sometimes described incisively in just a few words. The author's style is compressed. He crams into the sentences and paragraphs a caleidoscope of impressions, and this in itself is a considerable achievement of literary style.

Even though the book is designed mainly as a good story, it does include philosophical, political, religious and agnostic questions. This sophistication would be specially appreciated by the cosmopolitan audience such as in New York. The book is being published in England as well, and should be of interest overseas to those who are highly literate with the political, religious and philosophical questions of the past half century of the Europe which through the years of turmoil has sought to burrow its way out to a brighter future.

The earliest reference to the practice of diving occurs in the Iliad, where Patroclus compares the fall of Hector's charioteer to the action of a diver diving for oysters. Thucydides mentions the employment of divers during the siege of Syracuse to saw down the barriers which had been constructed below the surface of the water.

M. Champion Comes Back

NEW YORK (AP) — Marge Champion, who last danced on Broadway in 1955, makes her first excusion into straight dramatic acting this seasin in "Everybody Out, the Castle Is Sinking."

Mrs. Champion said she was returning to action because her husband, Gower, has been urging her to get out of the kitchen. The couple have two sons, Gregg, 8, and Blake, 2. During the past several years Champion has established himself as a leading Broadway director with such hits as "Carnival" and "Hello, Dolly!"

The director of "Everybody Out," is to be Henry Ephron, coauthor of the comedy with his wife, Phoebe.

Cheese From Old Santa? Try Some of These Tips

Twelfth Night has gone by, and now presumably, most households have been restored to their pre-Christmas order.

The trees have been stripped of their finery, now stored away until twelve months hence. Gifts have finally been carted upstairs or downstairs as the case may be.

But if you are among the many who received one of assorted cheese, you're probably wondering what you can do with some of them.

If you've still got a bottle of champagne left over from New Year's Eve, and if you were lucky enough to have received a bright copper or silver chafing dish from Santa, here's a good way to make use of both.

Melt two tablespoons butter in the chafing dish. Add one-half pound grated Cheddar cheese and as it melts slowly stir in one - fourth cup champagne. Add a pinch of salt and serve over toast points. Drink the rest of the champagne along with the rabbit.

Or else save three - fourths cup of champagne to make a Gorgonzola spread. Mix one-half pound Gorgonzola with one-fourth pound soft butter, adding cayenne pepper to taste. Stir into a smooth paste, add the champagne. Serve with crackers or thin slices of your favorite bread.

Did old St. Nick leave a sandwich grill under the tree? Then butter the sides of two thick slices of white bread. Spread between them a mixture of one egg yolk, one tablespoon grated Swiss cheese, with mustard, salt and white pepper to taste. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Grill until lightly browned.

After ducks and geese, turkeys and hens, and that American standby ham, you might yearn for a good thick steak for a change from the holiday fare.

Mix one - fourth pound Roquefort cheese with one - fourth cup olive oil and a garlic clove that has been crushed in one tablespoon brandy. Broil a thick, juicy steak, then blanket it with some of this sauce and return to broiler just until the cheese has melted.

ARTS CHRONICLE by John Fetler

Art Battle Continues In New York Galleries

HARTFORD SPEAKS AGAIN — The enfant terrible of the New York art world, the business man, art collector, philanthropist and publisher Huntington Hartford, who founded the Gallery of Modern Art, has never been known for toning down any of his views.

He can afford not to. Recently he published his views in a book characteristically titled "Art or Anarchy," and he is clearly for art, when it is not, in his opinion, anarchy.

His view could be summarized by his statement "How the Extremists and Exploiters Have Reduced the Fine Arts to Chaos and Commercialism." By this, he obviously means abstract art.

He mocks painters and sculptors who use bizarre techniques for the sake of sensation, and indicts the general fun of expressionism. But it is somewhat puzzling that he calls this commercialism.

True, the art world has always had fashions, and perhaps now more than ever; or perhaps today's trends should be called "sensationalism" rather than fashion; for traditionally fashion is still associated with something fairly solid, while sensationalism depends merely on creating shock.

The fantastic spread of abstract art has brought about the curious condition that while some of the "top" artists, that is, the most sensational, and the ones with proper connections, can exploit it, the majority of abstract artists find themselves in the same traditional boat of the garret and the palette, so to speak and the majority of abstract artists, who tried to jump on the bandwagon, find that the bandwagon has left them far behind. So that for the majority of abstract artists there seems to be little or no commercialism to be benefited from.

What Hartford means is illustrated by his view of Picasso, whom he calls the "apostle of ugliness," although "Picasso was a good painter when he was young," but who in later years "ruined art in this century."

But then Hartford makes the rather archaic (as it would be regarded today) statement that "The purpose of great art in my opinion, is ethical." Such a view has long since fallen into disrepute, although it may not be dismissed outright philosophically, since esthetics is still a part of philosophy.

And it may show more Huntington's wish to believe in something, than an objective value judgment, when he says: "The genuine artist, in spite of his frequently anti social attitudes, is by the very nature of his profession a moral person." It may be somebody sold Hartford a bill of goods, for the general view today seems to be that art is esthetic, and amoral, and that if any morality is involved, it is a personal taste of the artist.

And yet, Hartford's idea is not new; it is part of art history, going back to the Greeks, who seemed to think that whatever is beautiful is good. Later estheticians have thought that the beautiful can also be evil; it all depends.

But Hartford does not give up that easily. He has a rationale, as he says "if we are willing to admit that art is a product of personality, and that the human personality is essentially a positive, creative force, then have we not proven a point in regard to this relationship?" Again the question is whether Hartford indulges in wishful thinking. He seems to be falling into the trap of creating a kind of cultural religion of art. But the philosophical ground seems to be somewhat shaky.

All the same, Hartford has no ban against abstract paintings in his gallery. And, he even has shown a picture by Picasso.

ANYTHING GOES — As if to illustrate some of Hartford's views, the current show at the Whitney Museum of American Art is an exhibit of modern sculpture in which "anything goes." Or, as a reviewer put it, "it includes constructions, concoctions and hunks of stuff." There are 31 types of materials used in the works of 123 artists represented. Not just welded metal, not just polished wood or driftwood. Not just compressed junk. There is clay, burlap, stuffed animals, straight pins, and all the variations of aluminum, stainless steel, painted plastic and flickering lights. There are ropes, bits of glass webs of metallic skin, and a box filled with lighted globes. Sometimes these objects are meant to be suspended, as in the case of a large, transparent device that looks like a space satellite. Another large hanging object resembles the underside of three exotic outboard motorboats. In one case, the "sculpture" lies on the floor. It consists of two human figures, cast half - depth in white plaster, lying on a tar roof - surface, beside a metal ventilator. Then there is a sculpture made of road signs. And a crude figure of a man at a pay telephone, speaking into an instrument which contains an ear.

THE ECONOMICS OF TASTE — That is the title of a book by Gerald Reitlinger, published at $8.50 by Holt, Rinehart. It might also be entitled "the economics of the art market," for it is both a history and a handbook covering "The Rise and Fall of the Picture Market 1760 - 1960." The principal emphasis is on the London market, which traditionally has been the most important one, because the British have long regarded the purchase of art as a wise investment. But even the English judgment was not infallible. For instance, in the 18th century, the English had a strange blindness for any Italians earlier than Raphael, but were keen for Correggio, and later for Claude Lorrain. Reitlinger also goes into the fees paid to living painters, especially the portrait artists. Early in this century, American millionaires began to raid the European markets and brought major works to this country. The second part of the book is a compilation of market prices for the works of several hundred artists of all periods. It is a sort of handbook that makes fascinating reading. And we have rarely, if ever, run across an artist who is not interested in the matter of price. But more than that, Reitlinger makes art collecting a great adventure.

TWO TRENDS — The abstract and the figurative trends in art will develop side by side. Neither one will go under. At least that's the opinion of Norman Reid, new director of London's famous Tate Gallery. He says: "Some artists will always want to work in the abstract, with little or no reference to to the appearance of objects around us. Others will produce figurative pictures of subjects more nearly like the eye sees."

He adds: "In my position you have got to keep free of particular bias and expand your field of sympathy. Take the two great divisions of the abstract and the figurative. In a sense these are like two separate languages. In my view neither is going to throw out the other. They are bound to develop in parallel."

Reid succeeded Sir John Rothenstein as director of Tate last October, after serving as Rothenstein's deputy for 18 years.

Significantly, the centerpiece of the gallery are the works of Turner. But it also features the work of British moderns, as well as of other top artists in the world of art from throughout the world.

CU Choir Sets Concert For Monday

The University of Colorado Modern Choir, under direction of Dean Warner Imig, will present a free, public concerta at 8 p.m. Monday in Macky Auditorium.

Selections of the 28-voice choral organization will range from 17th to 20th century music. The two featured works will be "The Magnificat," by the 17th century composer Juan Bautista Comes, and "Mass for Mixed Chorus," by the contempodary composer Vincent Persichetti.

Also on the program will be compositions by two CU music faculty members: "Inner Song While Watching a Square Dance by Prof. Cecil Effinger, with words by Thomas Hornsby Ferril, noted Denver poet; and "The Lambs," by Imig.

Imig organized the Modern Choir in 1947. The choir has gained a solid reputation for its repertoire of serious contemporary, folk and popular music.

He Has Real Method for Reel Scenes

On the set of "Sylvia" at Paramount, Gordon Douglas was directing a high voltage sequence involving Carroll Baker and Aldo Ray.

In the scene, Carroll, as a teen-ager, is shown applying lipstick for the first time. Enraged, Aldo smears the lipstick all over her face, slaps her around the bedroom, ends up assaulting her after first beating her mother, played by character actress Shirley O'Hara.

It was a violent scene and the sound stage reverberated with first Miss O'Hara's screams and then Carroll's. When it was over, Director Douglas asked Ray if he had much difficulty in playing the role.

"Well, I'm no wife beater. . . . .and I don't approve of slapping a girl around. It's not the gentlemanly thing to do."

"Then how do you manage to do it so convincingly?", inquired Director Douglas.

Square Dancers Have Real Swinging New Year's Eve

The New Year's dance was a lively one with a hall full of merrymakers and good calling. Dancers stayed with it from 9 to 1, then several after-parties were held in various homes. One group danced and partied until 5 o'clock and thus qualified for the Nite Owl badge. They also had a Kangaroo party and two qualified for that badge. We hear the other party broke up about 3.

Club members are reminded of the classes for beginners on Thursday evenings. Harold Palmer's class started January 7 at the Carriage Stop. Spencer Yates class will begin on the 21st at the Eagles Lodge, the first dance is free. One need not be a member of the Eagles Lodge to participate in this activity; everybody is welcome. Norman Chichester will have a beginners class Monday night at 8:30, sponsored by his club, Beaus and Belles, the first night is free. For further information, interested parties may call the instructors, Palmer, Yates, and Chichester.

The editor of Sets-In-Order has asked that all clubs submit a copy of their by-laws, if possible, and a short resume of items of interest for their column, "Little Things That Count," so that Colorado can be included in their future articles. Each president will receive a letter to this effect; replies to be given or mailed to the Maddocks, members of the State Public Relations Committee.

Movie Board Picks 'Becket' As Year's Best

Hal Wallis' "Becket," starring Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole, has been selected as the best motion picture of 1964 by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, leading reviewing organization currently celebrating its 44th anniversary.

In announcing the selection of "Becket," Henry Hart, chairman of the board's committee on exceptional films, said that the Paramount Pictures release is "An outstanding example of the re-creation of the mis-en-scene of past time, proving anew that the motion picture is the most effective art form of the twentieth century."

Peter Glenville directed "Becket," from the screenplay by Edward Anhalt, based on the play by Jean Anouilh. John Gielgud, Donald Wolfit, Pamela Brown, Martita Hunt and Sian Phillips co-star in the panavision-Technicolor production.

'Don Pasquale' Composed On the Brink of Madness

By JIM GLEN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

It is difficult to believe that "Don Pasquale," one of the gayest operas ever written, was composed by Donizetti when his mind was tottering on the brink of madness.

It will be broadcast today at noon on radio station KOA direct from the stage of the Met.

' This sparkling masterpiec the last and ripest fruit on the tree of Italian opera buffa, was Donizetti's second last work. He wrote it in 11 days and it was first performed in 1843 at the Paris Italian Theatre. Two years later his reason had completely gone, and he was little better than an imbecile when he was found banging on the piano like a child, shouting "I've written four operas in a week."

He died in 1849, a pitiful victim of overwork. Donizetti was 51 and had written 70 operas.

There is no doubt that most of his music had aged considerably since his death, for, as the writer mentioned recently in an article on "Lucia di Lammermoore," Donizetti was not a musical innovator or great musical thinker like Wagner, Verdi or Berg.

He was happy to write within the musical conventions of his time. Keeping this in mind it is astonishing that he even left us three works of the quality we find in "Lucia," "l' Elisir d'amore," and today's opera.

It is also not surprising that most of his work has not worn too well when one remembers the conditions under which it was written — as quickly as possible, dashing from one opera to the next without the necessary time for reflection and mental digestion most artistic creation requires. It is not the best way to create work of enduring quality. On one occasion he even wrote an opera in nine days, "Il Campanello di Notte."

The composer lived in an age of great vocal virtuosity. Grisi, Duprez and Rubini are names which have passed into operatic history and they virtually ruled the opera house. At this distance it is difficult to determin whether Donizetti was under a heavier debt than they were to him. Today the bulk of his music appears, on the few occasions when we hear the lesser works, facile and sentimental.

"Don Pasquale" however is alive, furiously alive, and crammed with its own unfailing brand of delight. One of the many astonishing things about it is that although it was the sixty ninth opera of a man about to collapse into madness, it is filled with a springtime freshness.

For many years after the first production it was given in contemporary dress. Finally singers and audiences decided opera in every day dress was ridiculous and it was moved into eighteenth century garb. It is still presented in this manner though it might as well be in the seventeenth century for the plot is pure commedia dell's arte.

Although the music has no great weight it is nevertheless precious metal. If Faberge could have written music it might have been something like this.

The chattery saucy overture sets the mood for what is to come. It is filled with melodies heard later in the opera and is a delightful potpourri of good things ahead.

The barefaced nonsense of the story is wonderfully matched by the music which is both high spirited and farcical running from Norina's first and wonderfully "hummable" aria, "So anch 'io ca virtu" to the mad absurdity of the final act II quartet.

It will be preceeded by a performance of the ballet, "Les Sylphides" considered by some to be one of Fokine's masterpieces. When it was first given by the Diaghilev company before World War I the solo male role was danced by Nijinsky.

It is intensely romantic, drenched in pale moonlight with white-clad ballerinas dancing in a shadowy and dimly lit garden. Although we will not see the ballet those who like Chopin, it is set to his mazurkas, preludes and waltzes, should enjoy listening well enough.

Jimmy Brown Inks Movie Contract

Jimmy Brown, all pro football player with the Cleveland Browns' National Football League has been signed to a multiple picture contract by Paramount Pictures, it was announced by Howard W. Koch, vice president and production and studio head.

Brown, one of the league's top fullbacks, was signed by Paramount after Koch caught Brown's performance as an actor in "Rio Conchos."

Douglas was so high on Brown's acting ability in "Rio Conchos" that Koch decided to catch the athlete's performance in the film. The contract with the studio will guarantee Brown important roles in forthcoming Paramount Pictures releases.

Teen Movie Fans Used as Film Extras

A change in the dating habits of the younger set of the little Israeli resort town of Nahariya was reported since the production of "Judith."

Producer Kurt Unger transformed the biggest of the town's movie theatres into a sound stage for the picture which stars Sophia Loren, Peter Finch and Jack Hawkins.

Instead of taking their girls to the movies at night to see their favorites on the screen, the teenagers showed up to work as extras in the film.

McGiver's Tico

Elena Verdugo of "Many Happy Returns" once was a singer wth Xavier Cugat and did the vocal on the band's hit record of "Tico Tico."

Fingers Now

Organist-pianist Jerry Burke, with 34 years with Lawrence Welk and the Champagne Music Makers to his credit, began playing piano "by ear" at the age of 4.

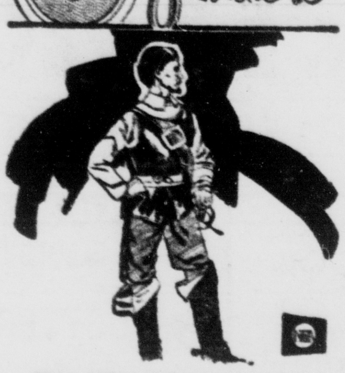
matter of fact



Roundhead was a term applied to the adherents of the parliamentary party in England during the great Civil War. Some of the Puritans wore the hair closely cropped around the head. The word was first used in 1644 by a disbanded officer, David Hide, who drew his sword during a riot and said he would "cut the throats of those round-headed dogs that bawled against bishops."

Mouse Club Alum

Tim Considine and Don Grady, two of ABC-TV's "My Three Sons," are both alumni of "The Mickey Mouse Club."

Radio Needs Dedicated People, Patrick Says

This week "Pat" Patrick, the president of the Colorado Broadcaster's Association, talked to our small radio class that meets in one room at the Alexander Film Co.

He reminisced over his two decades of broadcasting experience that started as a radio actor in New York City and included part ownership of several radio stations plus working for the ABC radio network.

To the class of future broadcasters, he showed the first portable radio ever built . . . a huge, heavy instrument that was about as big as a large suitcase and came in three parts: a two feet square aerial, a cover, and the radio itself.

He had secured the radio in a recent contest held by his station KAVI in Rocky Ford to find the oldest radio in the area and the set had been turned in by a farmer in Olney Springs (a town of about 200) who had used it as recently as last year on a hunting trip.

In contrast he took out a small transistor radio a little smaller than a pack of cigarettes and flipped it on . . . it immediately started to play and with a fairly good tone.

He then gave an average day in the life of a small town radio station manager: Sign on the station at 6 a.m. and do a personality show until 9, hold a short meeting with the staff, go over some past due accounts with the bookkeeper, go out and do some collecting, attend a Rotary Luncheon — a club of which he is president — go out and see some advertisers, visit a meeting of feedlot cattlemen, and then go back to the station to wrap up some administrative details.

He also mentioned the role of the FCC in broadcasting — that of keeping each station on its assigned frequency and the growing role they are playing in program content. It took him over three weeks recently to fill out forms to turn into Washington.

"This is the way we look at it," he said. "I think that it's proper that the FCC should keep everyone on there freqency . . . but consider this. Within a hundred miles of here there are about 45 AM radio signals. The minimum capital investment made in these stations is probably around $65,000. It takes the listener only about a one millimeter turn on the dial of this transistor to tune a station out."

When asked about the job possibilities in broadcasting he commented:

"When I started in radio there were only a few hundred stations . . . mostly dominated by network programming. Now there are over 4,000 AM radio stations in the country not to mention FM and TV . . . it takes people, good dedicated people to run them."

The talk that started out to be 45 minutes ended up to be about two hours long when the last question was answered. "Well," he said, "I'll have to be getting home . . . it's after ten and I've got to open up the station tomorrow."

He left for Rocky Ford. He had driven over 200 miles to talk to less than a dozen people after a full day's work . . . because they too were interested in broadcasting.

Josephine Estill to Sing Tosca in Production Here

Mrs. Josephine Estill, well-known local soprano who most recently performed as soloist in the Colorado College presentation of Mozart's "Grand Mass in C-Minor" and in the Air Force Academy Chorale's "Messiah," will appear in the title role of "Tosca" set Feb. 5-6 at Wasson High Auditorium.

Presented by the Colorado Springs Opera Association, "Tosca" also will include a chorus of local singers under the direction of Rolf Zinger, Horace Mann Junior High School vocal music chairman, and the 43-piece Colorado Springs Opera Orchestra under the direction of Dr. J. Julius Baird, musical and production director.

Stage director for the Puccini opera is William McMillian, Colorado College drama professor.

Mrs. Estill, a resident of the city for the past 17 years, has performed with the Colorado Springs Symphony, Colorado College, the local opera association and with the academy chorale. She arrived here in 1947 to study voice at Colorado College and has become a vital part of the area music scene.

Employed at the academy, Mrs. Estill's local performances have included roles in "Cavalleria," in which she portrayed Santuzza, and the title role of "Sister Angelica" for the opera association and in "Dido and Aenaes" at Colorado College.

Mrs. Estill resides in Woodmen Valley with her 15-year-old daughter, Alice, who is a student at the academy high school.

Following the engagement, the opera association will close the season with Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus," scheduled April 2-3 at Wasson Auditorium.

Tickets for the two season concluding performances may be reserved by calling 634-6820 or by writing the Colorado Springs Opera Association, Box 2393. Tickets will be available the last week of this month at the Chinook Book Shop box offices and at Montgomery-Ward.

'Don Pasquale' Composed On the Brink of Madness

By JIM GLEN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

It is difficult to believe that "Don Pasquale," one of the gayest operas ever written, was composed by Donizetti when his mind was tottering on the brink of madness.

It will be broadcast today at noon on radio station KOA direct from the stage of the Met.

This sparkling masterpiec the last and ripest fruit on the tree of Italian opera buffa, was Donizetti's second last work. He wrote it in 11 days and it was first performed in 1843 at the Paris Italian Theatre. Two years later his reason had completely gone, and he was little better than an imbecile when he was found banging on the piano like a child, shouting "I've written four operas in a week."
